PREFACE

This is the third edition of the Code of Laws of the District of Columbia prepared and published pursuant to the Act of May 29, 1928 (45 Stat. 1007), as amended by the Act of March 2, 1929 (45 Stat. 1541). This edition contains all the general and permanent laws relating to or in force in the District of Columbia, on January 2, 1951, except such laws as are of application in the District of Columbia by reason of being laws of the United States general and permanent in their nature. The Code is prima facie evidence of existing law.

Many new features and improvements were incorporated in the 1940 edition, reflecting, as far as practicable, the preferences of the users of the Code who responded to a questionnaire sent out by the Committee on Revision of the Laws to several thousand attorneys and Government officers and employees within the District of Columbia.

An entirely new arrangement of subject matter was adopted which presents all the procedural statutes in Volume One and the general statutes, in modern alphabetical arrangement, in Volume Two. A complete index to the statutes contained in the Code will be found at the back of Volume Two, together with complete reference tables. In addition, the 1929 edition citation is indicated in brackets next to the section number of each section of the text.

A modern method of numbering the sections was adopted. The number before the dash indicates the title; the last two numbers indicate the section; and the middle number or numbers indicates the chapter. No chapter in any title has more than 60 sections. An example: Section 11–1208 would be found as Section 8 of chapter 12 in Title 11. Section 1–240 would be Title 1, chapter 2, section 40.

Provision has been made for future annual supplements in the form of pocket parts rather than separate volumes.

The 1940 edition was the first official Code containing the annotations of the court decisions interpreting these laws. Numerous cross references and historical notes have been added to increase the usefulness of this Code. These annotations, cross references and historical notes are brought up to date in this edition and will be kept current in the future annual supplements.

The work of preparing copy was done by the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives with the assistance of the Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., of Albany, N. Y. The Committee acknowledges especially the valuable assistance rendered by Charles J. Zinn, law revision counsel for the Committee. Acknowledgment is also made to the numerous officials of the District and Federal governments and the members of the bench and bar of the District whose suggestions have been most helpful.

The Committee invites all criticisms and suggestions looking to the improvement of the Code.

HISTORICAL[1]

All of the many previous efforts to compile the laws relating to the District of Columbia were balked by the difficulty of determining and setting forth the laws of Great Britain and the early laws of the State of Maryland still in force in the District by virtue of the acts of February 27, 1801, and March 3, 1901 (2 Stat. L. 103, ch. 15, sec. 2, and 31 Stat. L. 1189, respectively). Yet these laws, access to which is through a labyrinth of toil and uncertainty, have been found pertinent by the courts of the District on no less than 127 reported occasions. The task was further complicated by the fact that much of the legislation affecting the District of Columbia was buried in appropriation acts. A summary of the situation was made by an eminent member of the District bar, Mr. James S. Easby-Smith, before the committee at a hearing on July 12, 1926. An excerpt from his statement is quoted:

> The District of Columbia was created and became a Federal district in the year 1800 (1 Stat. L. 130; and 2 Stat. L. 103). The District of Columbia, as created by the First Congress, was composed of a portion of Virginia and a portion of Maryland, the same being 10 miles square. That portion of the District of Columbia which was ceded by the State of Maryland was known as the county of Washington, District of Columbia; that portion which was ceded by the State of Virginia was known as the county of Alexandria, District of Columbia. At first there was a city organized and laid out called the city of Washington, while the remaining portion of that part of Maryland which had been ceded was called the county of Washington. That portion included the city also.
> Now, the organic act (2 Stat. L. 103), provided that the laws governing that portion of the District of Columbia ceded by Virginia should be the Virginia statutes not locally inapplicable, the acts of Congress, and the acts of the Virginia Legislature. That applied in and for the county of Alexandria, and the organic act provided that the laws in force in the county of Washington, District of Columbia, which was that portion taken from Maryland, were, first, the principles and maxims of equity as they existed in England, and in the colonies in the year 1776, the common law of England, and the statutes of the British Parliament which were in effect in the colonies in 1776, and which were not locally inapplicable. I think that the last British statute which is applicable to the District of Columbia was passed about 1771. I think that there were no statutes which were locally applicable after that year.
> Therefore,
> First, we have the maxims and principles of equity as developed in the court of chancery.
> Second, the common law as it existed in 1776.
> Third, the British statutes in effect in 1776.
> Fourth, all the laws of the legislature, not only of the State of Maryland, from 1776 to 1800, but the laws of the colonial Maryland government up to the year 1800, together with such acts of Congress as had been passed, or might thereafter be passed, for the District of Columbia, or that were applicable to the District of Columbia.
> We have that great body of law here. In other words, in the State of Virginia and the State of Maryland, the State courts administer the State laws, while the Federal courts administer the Federal laws, but all of those laws are embraced in the jurisdiction of the courts here. . . .
> ALEXANDRIA COUNTY HAVING BEEN RE-CEDED TO VIRGINIA, THAT FEATURE OF THE COMPLICATION NO LONGER EXISTS. (Act of retrocession: July 9, 1846, 9 Stat. 35.)

An outline of previous compilations and their scope is as follows:

1. Code of Laws for the District of Columbia: prepared under the authority of the Act of Congress of the 29th of April, 1816. Preface signed by W. Cranch, November 19, 1818. Washington, 1819, 575 pages.

   This code was obviously designed for enactment by Congress, but no official action was taken with respect to it. It is drawn from old British statutes and acts of Maryland and Virginia, as well as from acts of Congress relating to the District of Columbia; it apparently includes all subjects of legislation except provisions relating to the municipal government of Washington, etc.

2. The Acts of Congress, in relation to the District of Columbia, 1790–1831, and of the Legislatures of Virginia and Maryland, passed especially in regard to that District. By William A. Davis. Washington City, 1831, 575 pages.

   This is merely an unofficial compilation of separate acts, with no attempt at arrangement by subject.

3. The Revised Code of the District of Columbia, prepared under the authority of the Act of Congress . . . approved March 3, 1855. Preface signed by Robt. Ould and Wm. B. B. Cross, November, 1857. Washington, 1857, 699 pages.

   The act of March 3, 1855 (10 Stat. 642–643), provided for a vote by the people of the District of Columbia as to the adoption of the code as published. The vote was adverse, according to Wilhelmus Bogart Bryan, in his History of the National Capital (v. 2, p. 439).

4. An Analytical Digest of the Laws of the District of Columbia. By M. Thompson. Washington City, 1863, 454 pages.

   This digest is entirely unofficial. It aims to give all the law in force, with a few annotations. It is not clear whether the laws have been copied verbatim, or the substance given in other words. Provisions relating to municipal government of Washington, etc., are not included.

5. Compilation of the Laws in Force in the District of Columbia, April 1, 1868. Washington, Government Printing Office, 1868, 494 pages.

   This compilation contains no preface or explanation of its scope. It gives the text of the laws, arranged by subjects. Provisions relating to the municipal government of Washington, etc., are not at all completely included.

[1] Reprinted from 1929 edition of the Code.

6. Statutes in force in the District of Columbia. Washington, 1872. 639 pages. House Miscellaneous Document No. 25—42d Congress, 3d session.

This compilation was prepared under the direction of the Legislative Assembly of the District of Columbia. While purporting to be a compilation only, it includes many innovations. It was transmitted by the Governor of the District of Columbia to the House of Representatives, but was never adopted.

7. Revised Statutes of the United States relating to the District of Columbia. Washington, 1875, 201 pages.

This revision was enacted by Congress and approved June 22, 1874. It covers all subjects of Federal legislation relating to the District, except local (i. e., portions of the District only) and private matters.

8. The Compiled Statutes in force in the District of Columbia, including the Acts of . . . 1887–'89. Compiled by William Stone Abert and Benjamin G. Lovejoy. Washington, Government Printing Office, 1894, 730 pages.

This compilation, prepared pursuant to the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 872, ch. 392), includes acts of Congress, of Maryland, of Great Britain, and of the District of Columbia legislative assembly, with a few annotations. It covers all subjects of legislation except local and private matters. This compilation is wholly unofficial, in that the completed work never received legislative sanction.

9. The District of Columbia Code, approved March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1189–1436).

This code does not include provisions relating to the government of the District and contains British statutes and Maryland acts by reference only. It repeals all prior legislation, with numerous exceptions.

10. The Code of Law for the District of Columbia. Indexed under the direction of the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia by Edwin C. Brandenburg. Washington, 1901, 334 pages.

Merely the text of the act of March 3, 1901, with an index.

11. Code of Laws enacted March, 1901. Amended and approved January and June, 1902. Compiled by Charles Moore. Indexed by Edwin C. Brandenburg. Washington, 1902, 386 pages. (Unofficial.)
12. The Code of Law for the District of Columbia, enacted March 3, 1901; amended . . . to and including March 3, 1905. Compiled by Charles Moore. Indexed by Edwin C. Brandenburg. Recompiled and indexed to March 3, 1905, by Daniel E. Garges. Washington, 1906, 394 pages. (Unofficial.)
13. The Code of Law for the District of Columbia, enacted March 3, 1901; amended . . . to and including June 9, 1910. Annotated and indexed by Richard A. Ford. Washington, 1910, 448 pages. (Unofficial.)

Appendix contains acts relating to the District not expressed as amendments of the code.

14. The Code of Law for the District of Columbia, enacted March 3, 1901; amended . . . to and including March 4, 1911. Recompiled . . . by William F. Meyers. Washington, 1911, 544 pages. (Unofficial.)
15. The Code of Law for the District of Columbia enacted March 3, 1901; amended . . . to and including March 4, 1919. Ed. by Wm. S. Torbert. Washington, 1919, 545 pages. (Unofficial.)
16. District of Columbia Code . . . as amended up to and including June 7, 1924. Washington, 1925, 711 pages. Senate Document 155—68th Congress.

This code was prepared under the direction of the Committee on Printing of the Senate. The appendix contains many acts applicable to the District of Columbia not expressed as amendments to the code.

On December 5, 1898, Mr. Justice Walter S. Cox, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, delivered an address before the Columbia Historical Society relative to the various efforts that had been made to obtain a code of laws for the District of Columbia, from which the following excerpts are taken:

I have been requested to give some account of the efforts made in or out of Congress to procure and establish a code of laws for the District of Columbia.

That part of what was designated in some of the old statutes as the Territory of Columbia, lying in the State of Maryland, and that part lying within Virginia, having been respectively ceded by those States to the United States, Congress commenced its legislation, in relation to the District, by an act of February 27, 1801, which provided, first, that the laws of Virginia, "as they now exist," shall be and continue in force in that part of the District of Columbia which was ceded by said State to the United States and by them accepted for the permanent seat of government; and that the laws of the State of Maryland, "as they now exist," shall be and continue in force in that part of the District which was ceded by that State to the United States and accepted as aforesaid, and that said District shall be divided into two counties; one county shall contain all that part which lies on the east side of the river Potomac and shall be called the county of Washington; the other county shall contain all that part of the District which lies on the west side of the said river and shall be called the county of Alexandria.

At the same time the act created a court, to be called the Circuit Court of the District of Columbia, which was to hold several sessions annually in each of the two counties. It also created an orphans court for each county.

Thus the anomalous condition was presented of two contiguous counties, under the same legislative jurisdiction, governed by different systems of statutory law, to be administered by the same court.

One would naturally expect that Congress would speedily take steps to remedy this state of affairs and enact a uniform system of law for the entire District. But such was not the case. On the contrary, what little legislation took place for years afterward only recognized and perpetuated the distinction between the counties, by sporadic measures affecting them separately.

For some 16 years following, the laws passed by Congress affecting the District related principally to the charters of Washington, Georgetown, and Alexandria, to the militia, to insolvent debtors, and to the incorporation of banks, improvement companies, and other private organizations, and very little to the improvement of judicial proceedings. . . .

On the 29th of April, 1816, an act was passed authorizing the judges of the circuit court and the district attorney to prepare a code of laws for the District. The judges at that time were Judges Cranch, Morsell, and Thurston. . . . The district attorney at the time was Walker Jones.

In November, 1818, Judge Cranch reported to Congress a code prepared by himself, and stated that the other gentlemen named in the act of Congress, in consequence of their engagements, had not been able to assist him.

In this code he grouped together, apparently without any system, the different statutes of Virginia and Maryland and the English statutes supposed to have been in force in Maryland, which he supposed, would be properly applicable to the whole District, with all their antiquated phraseology and long-since obsolete remedial provisions, giving marginal references indicating to which class each statute belonged. The statutes are given as separate laws, each with a separate enacting clause. Occasionally appears one which seems to be original and must have been devised by Judge Cranch himself, but these are few and unimportant. There was no attempt by him to introduce any material changes in judicial proceedings and remedies; and, in fact, the spirit of reform and improvement in this direction can hardly be said to have been aroused, at this early period in our history, in the country generally. This code, therefore, if it had been adopted, would have advanced us very little. It was, however, not acted upon by Congress, and the whole subject was allowed to sleep for some 12 years, when a committee of the House of Representatives, who had been directed to inquire into the expediency of providing for the appointment of commissioners to digest and form a code of civil and criminal law for the District, etc., made a report.

They had addressed a circular, with a number of questions, to sundry citizens and members of the bar, and returned with their report the answers of the persons so addressed. Among these were Judge Cranch, Messrs. Richard S. Coke, Joseph H. Bradley, Francis Key, long the district attorney in General Jackson's time, and the well-known author of the Star-Spangled Banner, and James Dunlop, afterwards chief justice of the circuit court until its abolition.

The committee go into the history of the cession of the District to the United States and express regret that it ever was withdrawn from the legislative jurisdiction of the States. They dwell on the fact that even at that date Congress had not made many essential changes in the general laws of the District nor in their administration; that the laws then in force had been accumulating for generations, many of the sanctions of which were only suited for barbarous ages, which they illustrated by reference to the criminal statutes of Maryland prescribing capital punishment for a dozen offenses, such as arson, breaking into a shop and stealing 5 shillings' worth of goods, stealing a boat, or the case of a negro burning tobacco or stealing a horse, etc. They dwell on the complicated character of the business of the circuit court, causing interminable delays in the administration of justice, the great abuses in the practice of justices of the peace, the absence of laws to restrain gaming, the sale of ardent spirits, and various other evils unnecessary to mention. They discuss the question whether the District can be retroceded to the States of Virginia and Maryland and whether a local legislature can be established, but conclude that the best remedy which they can recommend is the appointment of capable and efficient commissioners authorized to prepare and report to Congress such a code of laws as will be best suited to the wants, habits, and feelings of the people, and which shall make little innovation upon the common and statute law and be rather a revision than a new code. They also suggest the propriety of allowing the District to be represented by a Delegate in the House of Representatives, in the same manner as the Territories.

In pursuance of this report a joint committee of the two Houses was appointed to prepare and report a system of law, civil and criminal, for the District, and this committee did report such a system at the first session of the Twenty-second Congress, in February, A. D. 1832.

In this report they say they are satisfied from their inquiries and from previous documents that the inhabitants of the District cherish an affection for the great body of the law under which they have lived and deprecate any attempt to form an entire new system—which is not a mere prejudice, but an inclination founded in nature and reason. The report of the committee on the District which led to their appointment, they say, recommended that there should be as little innovation upon the common and statute law of the District as might be consistent with a complete, simple, and uniform system, and the like principle seems in a great degree to have directed the previous compilation prepared by the chief justice of the District under the order of Congress. Looking to these sources for a sound exposition of their duty and authority, they say that they have followed the leading principles of the common law, have embodied as much of the laws of Virginia and Maryland as could be blended and harmonized, selecting the best where they could not be united, adding such improvements as either State had made since the cession, and rendering the whole consistent, uniform, and adapted to the entire District; and correcting the vices, as far as possible, of the existing legislation, and deriving aid from the code heretofore prepared by Judge Cranch and the criminal code proposed to Congress by Mr. Edward Livingston.

The proposed code puts into statutory shape the common-law rules of practice which then prevailed in the two States and the ordinary rules of practice in equity causes and introduced a few changes, in the way of improvement, in the laws regulating private rights; but a considerable part of it is taken up with matters now obsolete, such as holding to bail and imprisonment for debt, a very elaborate and unwieldy judicial organization, regulations respecting slaves and free negroes, etc. A remarkable feature of it is, first, that it contains no law of descent, and, next, that out of 685 pages, 385—largely more than one-half—are taken up with a penal code, code of criminal procedure, and code of prison discipline, which seem to have been taken from the work of Edward Livingston, before referred to. His introduction to said work is printed with the report of the committee.

. . . It is very detailed and minute, and abounds in forms of indictment for every conceivable offense. When proposed for the United States generally, it does not seem to have received favorable consideration, and when thus embodied in a code for the District it met with as little favor, for there seems to have been no congressional action at all upon the report of this committee.

I think there was a good deal of truth in the view taken by the committee as to the sentiments of the people of the District and their preference for the legal system to which they had been accustomed and their indisposition to welcome any great novelties, of which, I think, a proof was furnished somewhat later on. The committee were therefore quite conservative in the system which they proposed. . . .

For a long time there was no separate publication of laws relating to the District, but one was compelled to search in the statutes at large for such legislation.

One or two private efforts were made to remedy this inconvenience. In 1823 Mr. Samuel Burch, at one time, I believe, Secretary of the Senate, published a digest of the laws of the corporation of Washington, and in an appendix published the laws of Maryland and Virginia relating to the cities of Washington, Georgetown, and Alexandria and the cession of the counties to the United States and the acts of Congress relating to the District down to that date.

In 1831 Mr. William A. Davis, of Washington, published a collection of the acts of Congress in relation to the District, from July, 1790, to March, 1831, and of the acts of Maryland and Virginia relating to the cession of the District. He states, in his preface, that the acts of Congress in relation to District affairs had been excluded from the general edition of the laws of the United States published under authority of Congress a few years previously, and it had been difficult to ascertain the course of legislation respecting the District. He refers also to laws of Maryland and Virginia in relation to the District not to be found in subsequent editions or collections of their laws, and therefore difficult to be got at, but which it is very important to compile for convenience of reference, both for Congress and the people of the District.

This collection gives all the acts of incorporation, amendments to charters of the cities, as well as all private charters and all the legislation affecting private rights and remedies down to the date of its publication. Neither this nor Burch's digest had any authentic or official character or received any recognition from Congress; but inasmuch as we had no collection of laws so recognized these publications were of great utility in legal proceedings and were relied on as correct expositions of the laws in force and were fully cited in the courts as the law of the District whenever questions arose as to the meaning or effect of statute law.

Between 1831 and 1835 efforts were made in Congress to have commissioners appointed to prepare a code for the District, but it seemed impossible to arouse a sufficient interest in the subject in Congress to procure any action. In 1846 the county of Alexandria was retroceded to Virginia and the District thus reduced in extent. In 1855 an act was passed which authorized the appointment by the President of a commission to revise, simplify, digest, and codify the laws of the District. The author of this bill was Mr. Henry May, then a Member from Baltimore. He had been a citizen of Washington and a prominent member of our bar and was acquainted with the defects of our system. It was just about this time, too, as the dates of laws in Maryland indicate, that reforms in the old system common to Maryland and the District were being agitated in that State.

Mr. Robert Ould and Mr. William B. Cross were appointed commissioners for the object. Mr. Ould was a native of Georgetown, who had been a member of the bar for some 10 years. He was district attorney afterward under Mr. Buchanan, and after the commencement of the Civil War went South and remained in Richmond until his death. Mr. Cross was also a practitioner at our bar, the son of Colonel Cross, one of the first victims of the Mexican War.

They completed a code in 1857. The law authorizing it required it to be submitted to a popular vote, and Mr. Buchanan ordered such vote to be taken on the 15th day of February, 1858. The result of this vote just illustrated what I before referred to, viz, the disinclination of the people of the District to welcome fundamental change and novelties in their system of law.

This code abounded in these features: It swept away the whole course of common-law pleadings, in which the whole bar had been educated and trained, and substituted for it a system of informal complaints and answers which must have been borrowed from some one of the radical new States, all which was utterly repugnant to the tastes of the legal profession here. It made changes in the nature of estates, abolishing the rules growing out of the necessity of livery of seisin, which would have been a very useful change. It introduced a law of divorce which was very contrary to the public sentiment at that time. It introduced some very useful reformations as we would consider them now, but they were entirely in conflict with the tastes and sentiments of the lawyers trained in the old common law. It was not free also from some glaring mistakes. For instance, it declared that law should lie in grant as well as in livery, which was equivalent to saying that it might be conveyed either by deed or the obsolete formality of livery of seisin. It also declared that estates tail might be created as theretofore, which had been virtually obsolete for at least half a century. It is no wonder, therefore, that when a vote was taken on the code only 1,138 were cast in favor of it and 3,110 against it.

In 1862 a bill was passed authorizing the President to appoint three suitable persons to codify the laws, who were to be confirmed by the Senate. Mr. Lincoln nominated Messrs. Richard S. Coxe, John A. Wells, and Philip R. Fendall to the office, but Congress adjourned before the nomination could be acted upon.

The subject was revived, however, in the act to reorganize the courts of the District which was passed in 1863, and which prescribed that the President should appoint a suitable person to revise and codify the laws. The President appointed for this purpose Mr. Return J. Meigs, who was the clerk of the newly established Supreme Court of the District. Mr. Meigs was an old Tennessee lawyer, thoroughly trained in the old common law, and very well qualified for the task assigned him. I have been unable to find a copy of a code prepared by him, but I understand from his family that it was a small affair, of limited scope, consisting of some 200 pages only, and very few copies were printed. No action was had upon it in Congress.

At the first session of the Thirty-eighth Congress a resolution was passed authorizing the District Committees of the two Houses to revise the code prepared in pursuance of the act of 1855. The matter, however, dragged along and nothing further was heard of it.

In 1872 the Legislative Assembly of the District passed an act under which George P. Fisher, one of the judges of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and Hugh Caperton, Samuel L. Phillips, E. C. Ingersoll, and R. D. Mussey, all members of our bar, prepared a report on the statutes in force in the District. It commences with the Declaration of Independence, the Articles of Confederation, and Constitution of the United States, and then gives the acts of Maryland and Virginia relating to the cession of the District. It gives the act of Congress establishing the District Territorial government and the acts of Congress relating to District affairs and acts of the District Legislature, without any distinction between them, so that it is impossible to tell what is their authority. It appears to include a good deal of the legislation of the District which is not of a municipal character and which, therefore, according to a decision rendered by our court long ago, would not be constitutionally valid. When, however, it comes to treat of real estate and titles, it does embody some modern ideas, in advance of the old common-law rules that I have before adverted to, which were evidently borrowed from the codes of some of the States and were not contained in any of the statutes in force in the District. It had no marginal notes indicating the source from which its varied provisions were derived, although it professed to be simply a compilation of existing statutes. It had no index or table of contents. . . . In December, 1872, Governor Cooke reported this code to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and it was placed on the files, but no action was had upon it.

In the fourth session of the Forty-fourth Congress, about 1877, a bill was reported in the Senate providing for a revision of the laws relating to the District, but it was recommitted, and nothing further was heard of it.

. . . Between 1861 and 1874 there was more legislation relating directly to our affairs than there had been for half a century before.

Slavery was abolished, the old circuit court and criminal court were abolished, and the present supreme court was established, modeled somewhat after the courts of New York, and a new judicial system was established, of which the principal author was a Senator from New York, without the least consultation with the people or the legal profession of the District, entirely foreign to our tastes and habits, and which it took us many years to understand. A general incorporation law was passed, the Metropolitan police created, a new law as to limited partnerships introduced and divorces authorized, the rights of married women to control their own property recognized—a complete novelty—the police court established, the jurisdiction of justices of the peace increased, new punishments prescribed for crimes, and new enactments made as to judicial proceedings, as, for instance, with reference to actions of replevin and the defenses of set-off, usury, etc., and, most important of all, a Territorial government for the District was created, and the old corporations of Washington and Georgetown and the old levy court of the county were abolished, except for the purpose of enforcing against them existing obligations.

In June, 1866, an act was passed authorizing the President to appoint three commissioners to revise and bring together all the statutes and parts of statutes which ought to be brought together, omitting redundant or obsolete enactments, and making such alterations as may be necessary to reconcile contradictions, supply the omissions, and mend the imperfections of the original text.

The act does not seem, in terms, to allude to the District of Columbia, or even embrace it.

Such commissioners were appointed and proceeded with their work, which was not completed for seven years. Without having any express authority to do so, they made a separate revision and collection of the acts of Congress relating to the District, besides the collection of general statutes relating to whole United States. Each collection was reported to Congress, to be approved and enacted into law. The concluding paragraphs of each virtually repeal every part of any act of Congress passed before December, 1873, which is not included in this collection, and the whole is enacted into law, as the body of the statute law of the United States, under the title of "Revised Statutes," as of the date June 22, 1874.

The laws relating to the District begin with the one establishing the Territorial government, of February 21, 1871, and the whole collection occupies only 149 pages in the authorized publication. This is the first collection of statute law that ever received congressional approbation. Every law previously passed was an individual act, called for by some emergency, or supposed so to be, without the least consideration of its consistency with other existing laws or its fitness to be part of a system.

But this collection of Revised Statutes in no sense deserves the name of a code. In the first place it does not even purport to give or contain all the statutory law in force in the District. The old British statutes which were in force in Maryland at the time of the cession of the District and the Maryland statutes of over a century, also in force in the territory ceded, and which were expressly continued in force, in general terms, by the act of Congress assuming jurisdiction over the District, of February 27, 1801, are not included in this collection or even alluded to. The general collection might perhaps be considered, in a limited sense, as a code for the United States, as it embraced all the laws affecting the whole United States, within the constitutional legislative jurisdiction of Congress, but there could be no complete code for the entire United States, because the subjects which would be proper to be regulated by a code in the States are entirely outside the legislative authority of Congress. But the collection of the statutes in force in the District did not profess or pretend to provide for such subjects here, even by reenacting laws already in force. And in addition to this there was a total failure to introduce any new features in the way of reform or improvement, and those changes in the law which were embraced in the proposed codes that I have already referred to were entirely wanting.

It is well known that in the very same year in which this collection was published by authority of Congress, containing the law establishing the Territorial government of the District, an act was passed abolishing that government and establishing a board of commissioners for governing temporarily the financial affairs of the District.

In 1878 the present permanent form of government for the District was established, by act of June 11 of that year, and this act provided that the commissioners to be appointed thereunder should report a draft of such additional laws or amendments to existing laws as, in their opinion, are necessary for the harmonious working of the system thereby adopted. And there was an appropriation in March, 1879, for that object, among those for the civil expenses of the Government.

In December, 1879, Mr. Dent, in the name of the commissioners, of whom he was the president, reported to the Senate a code of law and procedure for the District which had been prepared by Mr. Edward Chase Ingersoll, a member of the bar of our court, under the direction, as it was said, of Mr. N. G. Riddle, then attorney for the District. Mr. Ingersoll was a member of our bar of no special prominence, but he certainly exhibited remarkable industry in the preparation of this code. It was, however, a very singular production. It appeared to be an effort to codify the whole body of the common law and contained one treatise after another of the most abstract definitions and propositions. . . . It resembles an elementary work on law, such as would be put into the hands of students. In some places there are valuable new provisions taken from the laws of Massachusetts and New York and the code of Maryland, but they are so overlaid with the kind of matter that I have alluded to that it is a task to search them out. This is not the style in which a code should be prepared. It should consist of practical enactments, concise and brief. Dudley Field, of New York, prepared a code for that State which professed to embody the whole common law. It was not favorably received and proved to be wholly useless. The code prepared by Mr. Ingersoll met with a similar fate. It was placed on file, but no action was taken upon it.

At the second session of the Forty-sixth Congress the House District Committee reported a bill to revise the acts of Congress relating to the District, and the acts of the corporation and the levy court. It was passed in the House and reported in the Senate but did not pass.

In the Forty-seventh Congress Mr. Conners introduced a bill in the House to establish a municipal code, but it did not pass. A similar bill was introduced in the Senate, but no action was taken on it.

Senator Cameron, of Wisconsin, introduced a bill to compile and revise the statutes relating to the District, but no action was had on it.

In the first session of the Forty-seventh Congress Mr. McComas, now one of the justices of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, introduced a bill in the House to provide for a criminal code for the District and to appoint a person to prepare it. It was passed at the next session and was reported by the Senate Committee on the District and placed on the calendar, and that was the last of it.

In the Forty-ninth Congress Mr. Ingalls introduced a bill in the Senate to establish a municipal code, but no action was taken on it.

In the same Congress Mr. McComas again introduced his bill, which had failed at the previous session, but again no action was taken.

At the second session of the Forty-ninth Congress Mr. Hemphill, from the District Committee, introduced a bill providing for the compilation of the District laws by three commissioners. It passed the House, was reported in the Senate in the middle of February, 1887, but Congress adjourned before any action could be taken.

All this shows a remarkable interest in this subject on the part of the friends of the District in Congress, and at the same time a remarkable indifference in Congress, as the legislature of the District, about bringing its laws up to the standard recognized among the States as suitable for the progress of the age and the advanced conditions of business dealings.

In the Fiftieth Congress Mr. Hemphill, from the House Committee on the District, reported a bill providing that the Supreme Court of the District should appoint two persons to compile, arrange, and classify, with a proper index, all statutes and parts of statutes in force in the District, including acts of the second session of the Fiftieth Congress and relating to all such matters as would come properly within the scope of a civil and criminal code, the commissioners to receive a certain compensation upon the completion of the work and its approval by the court.

The court appointed Mr. William Stone Abert and Mr. B. F. Lovejoy commissioners, but Mr. Lovejoy died shortly afterwards and Mr. Reginald Fendall was appointed in his place. Mr. Fendall, however, took no part in the work, and it was prosecuted entirely by Mr. Abert. He pursued this work with marvelous patience and industry. It covered a vast field and was not completed until 1894. Mr. Abert included in his compilation the old English statutes in force in the Colonies, including Maryland, or supposed by him to be so, from Magna Charta to the thirteenth of George III, in the year 1773, and all the statutes of Maryland from the year 1704 to February 27, 1801, which had not been repealed and were declared to be in force in the District by the act of Congress of the last date, and the revised acts of Congress before referred to, reenacted in 1874, and also the acts of the Legislative Assembly of the District passed during its brief existence from June 2, 1871, to June 26, 1873, which were supposed to continue in force. The work abounds in marginal references to the various statutes and also to judicial decisions upon their meaning and effect.

The old English statutes and some of the old Maryland statutes abound in antiquated English and redundant verbiage, which it was unnecessary to reenact, and many provisions in them are now inapplicable and obsolete by reason of changes in the practice of the courts and social and political conditions, but it was historically correct to print the entire statutes containing them. The compilation was thereby rendered quite voluminous, but is invaluable as a collection of existing law and was extremely useful to me in a work which I undertook, and will speak of presently. It did not, however, profess to introduce anything new and can not, therefore, be treated as a code in the sense in which I employ that term. It was approved by the court, as the statute required, simply because it was considered a correct compilation, and no errors were pointed out, but it never received any recognition, approval, or indorsement by Congress, like the Revised Statutes of 1874; so that it is nothing more as authority than the work of a private compiler of existing laws and is not reenacted by Congress as the existing law. Of course Congress could not delegate to the court authority to pass a law and the mere approval of the work by the court did not make the compilation a law or a code of laws.

I am not aware of any other efforts in Congress to promote the passage of a code of laws for the District.

In November, 1895, the Board of Trade of Washington extended an invitation to me to undertake the preparation of a code based upon the existing code of Maryland. The bar association seconded this application.

I did not see how such an undertaking was possible to me at that time, burdened as I was with my judicial duties and the work of the law school of Columbian University, but I accepted the invitation with the qualification that I could not do more than collect materials for doing the work at a future time when I might be entitled to retire from the bench of our court, which time would arrive in a year. I did not take that step in the fall of 1896, as I might have done, but determined to commence the work of preparing a code very gradually in the intervals between my other engagements. . . .

It appears, then, that five codes—those of Judge Cranch, the congressional committee of 1821, of Mr. Return J. Meigs, of Messrs. Fisher and others, and of Mr. Ingersoll—have been formally submitted to Congress, but simply ignored, and that prepared by Messrs. Ould and Cross was voted down by the citizens. This does not give much encouragement for new efforts, but there seems to be such an earnest desire now on the part of the bar and the Board of trade, which is a very influential representative of public sentiment in the District, that either at the present or the next session of Congress a favorable result may be hoped for.

Judge Cox spent between four and five years preparing the code to which he last referred. The code was in two parts, the first relating to the general laws and the second consisting of the laws applicable to the municipality of the District of Columbia as such.

At the request of the judges of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, the Bar Association appointed a committee to consider the draft, and to work in conjunction with Judge Cox, with a view to proposed changes or amendments.

The committee consisted of:

A. S. Worthington, chairman.
William F. Mattingly.
R. Ross Perry.
Nathaniel Wilson.
J. J. Darlington.
George E. Hamilton.
A. A. Birney.
Leon Tobriner.
W. G. Johnson.

The committee served without compensation over a period of nearly three months, during which time they were excused by the court from all trial work in order that they might give their entire attention to the subject. The cost of stenographic services, printing, etc., was paid by voluntary contributions by members of the committee and of the bar.

The committee allotted among its members the various chapters of the code of general laws and extended an invitation to the profession in general to submit suggestions or to appear before the committee and express their views.

The various members of the committee reported to the whole committee, who, in conjunction with Judge Cox, agreed upon a proposed code of general laws to be reported to the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. The municipal code prepared by Judge Cox was not acted on by the committee.

The court thereupon adjourned for about two weeks, except for a short morning session for emergency matters, and after conferring with the Bar Association committee approved the code with very slight changes.

One of the members of the committee, in speaking of the services of Judge Cox, said: "Judge Cox did not retire from active participation in the making of the code when he submitted his draft. He continued to work with the committee. When the reports of the various members of the committee were submitted, and general sessions were held, Judge Cox was with us all the time, aiding, suggesting, and advising. I never saw a man so liberal in his efforts to carry through a work of this kind. I have always thought that the great credit for the preparation of the code was due to the thought, consideration, patience, and laborious efforts of Judge Cox. I think he was undoubtedly the one man whose efforts and ability made it possible for the members of the bar committee to get in shape the code as it went through."

The proposed code was introduced in the House of Representatives on March 21, 1900, by the Honorable John J. Jenkins of Wisconsin. It was reported to the House on April 14, 1900, and was passed on May 28, 1900. It was reported in the Senate on December 15, 1900, by Senator Pritchard, and passed that body on March 2, 1901. It was approved by the President on March 3, 1901.

The Committee is indebted to George E. Hamilton, Esq., and Leon Tobriner, Esq., the surviving members of the Bar Association committee, for the data from which the foregoing résumé of the activities of the Bar committee has been prepared.

CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

Article 1, Section 8

The Congress shall have power—* * *

To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular States, and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of the government of the United States * * *

THE CHARTER OF MARYLAND

Charles, by the Grace of God, of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c. To all to whom these presents shall come, Greeting.

II. Whereas our well beloved and right trusty subject Cæcilius Calvert, baron of Baltimore, in our kingdom of Ireland, son and heir of George Calvert, knight, late baron of Baltimore, in our said kingdom of Ireland, treading in the steps of his father, being animated with a laudable and pious zeal for extending the christian religion, and also the territories of our empire, hath humbly besought leave of us, that he may transport, by his own industry and expence, a numerous colony of the English nation, to a certain region, herein after described, in a country hitherto uncultivated, in the parts of America, and partly occupied by savages, having no knowledge of the Divine Being, and that all that region, with some certain privileges and jurisdictions, appertaining unto the wholesome government, and state of his colony and region aforesaid, may by our royal highness be given, granted, and confirmed unto him, and his heirs.

III. Know ye therefore, that we, encouraging with our royal favour, the pious and noble purpose of the aforesaid barons of Baltimore, of our special grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have given, granted and confirmed, and by this our present charter, for us, our heirs and successors, do give, grant and confirm, unto the aforesaid Cæcilius, now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, all that part of the peninsula, or chersonese, lying in the parts of America, between the ocean on the east, and the bay of Chesopeake on the west, divided from the residue thereof by a right line drawn from the promontory, or head-land, called Watkin's Point, situate upon the bay aforesaid, near the river of Wighco, on the west, unto the main ocean on the east; and between that boundary on the south, unto that part of the bay of Delaware on the north, which lieth under the fortieth degree of north latitude from the æquinoctial, where New England is terminated: And all the tract of that land within the metes underwritten (that is to say,) passing from the said bay, called Delaware bay, in a right line, by the degree aforesaid, unto the true meridian of the first fountain of the river of Pattowmack, thence verging towards the south, unto the further bank of the said river, and following the same on the west and south, unto a certain place called Cinquack, situate near the mouth of the said river, where it disembogues into the aforesaid bay of Chessopeake, and thence by the shortest line unto the aforesaid promontory or place, called Watkin's Point; so that the whole tract of land, divided by the line aforesaid, between the main ocean, and Watkin's Point, unto the promontory called Cape Charles, and every the appendages thereof, may entirely remain excepted for ever to us, our heirs and successors.

IV. Also we do grant, and likewise confirm unto the said baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, all islands and islets within the limits aforesaid, all and singular the islands and islets, from the eastern shore of the aforesaid region, towards the east, which have been, or shall be formed in the sea, situate within ten marine leagues from the said shore; with all and singular the ports, harbours, bays, rivers, and straits, belonging to the region or islands aforesaid, and all the soil, plains, woods, mountains, marshes, lakes, rivers, bays, and straits, situate, or being within the metes, bounds and limits aforesaid, with the fishings of every kind of fish, as well as of whales, sturgeons, and other royal fish, as of other fish, in the sea, bays, straits or rivers, within the premisses, and the fish there taken: And moreover all veins, mines, and quarries, as well opened as hidden, already found, or that shall be found within the region, islands or limits aforesaid, of gold, silver, gems and precious stones, and any other whatsoever, whether they be of stones, or metals, or of any other thing or matter whatsoever: And furthermore the patronages, and advowsons of all churches which (with the increasing worship and religion of Christ) within the said region, islands, islets and limits aforesaid, hereafter shall happen to be built, together with licence and faculty of erecting and founding churches, chapels, and places of worship, in convenient and suitable places, within the premisses, and of causing the same to be dedicated and consecrated according to the ecclesiastical laws of our kingdom of England, with all, and singular such, and as ample rights, jurisdictions, privileges, prerogatives, royalties, liberties, immunities, and royal rights, and temporal franchises whatsoever, as well by sea as by land, within the region, islands, islets and limits aforesaid, to be had, exercised, used and enjoyed, as any bishop of Durham, within the bishoprick or county palatine of Durham in our kingdom of England, ever heretofore hath had, held, used or enjoyed, or of right could, or ought to have, hold, use or enjoy.

V. And we do by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, make, create, and constitute him, the now baron of Baltimore, and his heirs, the true and absolute lords and proprietaries of the region aforesaid, and of all other the premisses, (except the before excepted,) saving always the faith and allegiance and sovereign dominion due to us, our heirs and successors, to have, hold, possess and enjoy, the aforesaid region, islands, islets, and other the premisses, unto the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, and to his heirs and assigns, to the sole and proper behoof and use of him, the now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, forever: To hold of us, our heirs and successors, kings of England, as of our castle of Windsor, in our county of Berks, in free and common soccage, by fealty only for all services, and not in capite, nor by knight's service, yielding therefore unto us, our heirs, and successors two Indian arrows of those parts, to be delivered at the said castle of Windsor, every year, on Tuesday in Easter-week; and also the fifth part of all gold and silver ore, which shall happen from time to time, to be found within the aforesaid limits.

VI. Now, that the aforesaid region, thus by us granted and described, may be eminently distinguished above all other regions of that territory, and decorated with more ample titles, know ye, that we, of our more especial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have thought fit that the said region and islands be erected into a province, as out of the plentitude of our royal power and prerogative, we do, for us, our heirs and successors, erect and incorporate the same into a province, and nominate the same Maryland, by which name we will that it shall from henceforth be called.

VII. And forasmuch as we have above made and ordained the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, the true lord and proprietary of the whole province aforesaid, Know ye therefore further, that we, for us, our heirs and successors, do grant unto the said now baron, (in whose fidelity, prudence, justice, and provident circumspection of mind, we repose the greatest confidence,) and to his heirs, for the good and happy government of the said province, free, full, and absolute power, by the tenor of these presents, to ordain, make, and enact laws, of what kind soever, according to their sound discretions, whether relating to the public state of the said province, or the private utility of individuals, of and with the advice, assent, and approbation of the free-men of the same province, or of the greater part of them, or of their delegates or deputies, whom we will shall be called together for the framing of laws, when, and as often as need shall require, by the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, and his heirs, and in the form which shall seem best to him or them, and the same to publish under the seal of the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, and his heirs, and duly to execute the same upon all persons, for the time being, within the aforesaid province, and the limits thereof, or under his or their government and power, in sailing towards Maryland, or thence returning, outward bound, either to England, or elsewhere whether to any other part of our, or of any foreign dominions, wheresoever established, by the imposition of fines, imprisonment, and other punishment whatsoever; even if it be necessary, and the quality of the offence require it, by privation of member, or life, by him the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, and his heirs, or by his or their deputy, lieutenant, judges, justices, magistrates, officers and ministers, to be constituted and appointed according to the tenor and true intent of these presents, and to constitute and ordain judges, justices, magistrates and officers, of what kind, for what cause, and with what power soever, within that land, and the sea of those parts, and in such form as to the said now baron of Baltimore, or his heirs, shall seem most fitting: And also to remit, release, pardon and abolish, all crimes and offences whatsoever against such laws, whether before, or after judgment passed; and to do all and singular other things belonging to the completion of justice, and to courts, prætorian judicatories, and tribunals, judicial forms and modes of proceeding, although express mention thereof in these presents be not made; and, by judges by them delegated, to award process, hold pleas, and determine in those courts, prætorian judicatories, and tribunals, in all actions, suits, causes, and matters whatsoever, as well criminal as personal, real and mixed, and prætorian: Which said laws, so to be published as abovesaid, we will, enjoin, charge and command, to be most absolute and firm in law, and to be kept in those parts by all the subjects and liege-men of us, our heirs and successors, so far as they concern them, and to be inviolably observed under the penalties therein expressed, or to be expressed. So nevertheless, that the laws aforesaid be consonant to reason, and be not repugnant or contrary, but (so far as conveniently may be) agreeable to the laws, statutes, customs and rights of this our kingdom of England.

VIII. And forasmuch as, in the government of so great a province, sudden accidents may frequently happen, to which it will be necessary to apply a remedy, before the freeholders of the said province, their delegates or deputies, can be called together for the framing of laws; neither will it be fit that so great a number of people should immediately, on such emergent occasion, be called together, we therefore, for the better government of so great a province, do will and ordain, and by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, do grant unto the said now baron of Baltimore, and to his heirs, that the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, and his heirs, by themselves, or by their magistrates and officers, thereunto duly to be constituted as aforesaid, may, and can make and constitute fit and wholesom ordinances from time to time, to be kept and observed within the province aforesaid, as well for the conservation of the peace, as for the better government of the people inhabiting therein, and publicly to notify the same to all persons whom the same in any wise do or may affect. Which ordinances we will to be inviolably observed within the said province, under the pains to be expressed in the same: So that the said ordinances be consonant to reason, and be not repugnant nor contrary, but (so far as conveniently may be done) agreeable to the laws, statutes, or rights of our kingdom of England: And so that the same ordinances do not, in any sort, extend to oblige, bind, charge, or take away the right or interest of any person or persons, of, or in member, life, freehold, goods or chattels.

IX. Furthermore, that the new colony may more happily increase by a multitude of people resorting thither, and at the same time may be more firmly secured from the incursions of savages, or of other enemies, pirates and ravagers: We therefore, for us, our heirs and successors, do by these presents give and grant power, licence and liberty, to all the liege-men and subjects, present and future, of us, our heirs and successors, except such to whom it shall be expressly forbidden, to transport themselves and their families to the said province, with fitting vessels, and suitable provisions, and therein to settle, dwell and inhabit; and to build and fortify castles, forts, and other places of strength, at the appointment of the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, and his heirs, for the public and their own defence; the statute of fugitives, or any other whatsoever to the contrary of the premisses in any wise notwithstanding.

X. We will also, and of our more abundant grace, for us, our heirs and successors, do firmly charge, constitute, ordain and command, that the said province be of our allegiance; and that all and singular the subjects and liege-men of us, our heirs and successors, transplanted, or hereafter to be transplanted into the province aforesaid and the children of them and of others their descendants whether already born there or hereafter to be born be and shall be natives and liege-men of us, our heirs and successors, of our kingdom of England and Ireland; and in all things shall be held, treated, reputed, and esteemed as the faithful liege-men of us, and our heirs and successors, born within our kingdom of England; also lands, tenements, revenues, services, and other hereditaments whatsoever, within our kingdom of England, and other our dominions, to inherit, or otherwise purchase, receive, take, have, hold, buy and possess, and the same to use and enjoy, and the same to give, sell, alien and bequeath; and likewise all privileges, franchises and liberties of this our kingdom of England, freely, quietly, and peaceably to have and possess, and the same may use and enjoy in the same manner as our liege-men born, or to be born within our said kingdom of England, without impediment, molestation, vexation, impeachment, or grievance of us, or any of our heirs or successors; any statute, act, ordinance or provision, to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

XI. Furthermore, that our subjects may be incited to undertake this expedition with a ready and chearful mind: Know ye, that we, of our especial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, do, by the tenor of these presents, give and grant, as well to the aforesaid baron of Baltimore, and to his heirs, as to all other persons who shall from time to time repair to the said province, either for the sake of inhabiting, or of trading with the inhabitants of the province aforesaid, full license to ship and lade in any the ports of us, our heirs and successors, all and singular their goods, as well moveable as immoveable, wares and merchandises, likewise grain of what sort soever, and other things whatsoever necessary for food and cloathing, by the laws and statutes of our kingdoms and dominions, not prohibited to be transported out of the said kingdoms; and the same to transport, by themselves, or their servants or assigns, into the said province, without the impediment or molestation of us, our heirs or successors, or of any officers of us, our heirs or successors, (saving unto us, our heirs and successors, the impositions, subsidies, customs, and other dues payable for the same goods and merchandises), any statute, act, ordinance, or other thing whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

XII. But because, that in so remote a region, placed among so many barbarous nations, the incursions as well of the barbarians themselves, as of other enemies, pirates and ravagers, probably will be feared, therefore, we have given, and for us, our heirs and successors, do give by these presents, as full and unrestrained power, as any captain-general of an army ever hath had, unto the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, and to his heirs and assigns, by themselves, or by their captains, or other officers, to summon to their standards, and to array all men, of whatsoever condition, or wheresoever born, for the time being, in the said province of Maryland, to wage war, and to pursue, even beyond the limits of their province, the enemies and ravagers aforesaid, infesting those parts by land and by sea, and (if God shall grant it) to vanquish and captivate them, and the captives to put to death, or, according to their discretion, to save, and to do all other and singular the things which appertain, or have been accustomed to appertain unto the authority and office of a captain-general of an army.

XIII. We also will, and by this our charter, do give unto the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, and to his heirs and assigns, power, liberty and authority, that in case of rebellion, sudden tumult, or sedition, if any (which God forbid) should happen to arise, whether upon land within the province aforesaid, or upon the high sea in making a voyage to the said province of Maryland, or in returning thence, they may, by themselves, or by their captains, or other officers, thereunto deputed under their seals (to whom we for us, our heirs and successors, by these presents, do give and grant the fullest power and authority) exercise martial law as freely, and in as ample manner and form, as any captain-general of an army, by virtue of his office may, or hath accustomed to use the same, against the seditious authors of innovations in those parts, withdrawing themselves from the government of him or them, refusing to serve in war, flying over to the enemy, exceeding their leave of absence, deserters, or otherwise howsoever offending against the rule, law, or discipline of war.

XIV. Moreover, left in so remote and far distant a region, every access to honours and dignities may seem to be precluded, and utterly barred, to men well born, who are preparing to engage in the present expedition, and desirous of deserving well, both in peace and war, of us, and our kingdoms; for this cause, we, for us, our heirs and successors, do give free and plenary power to the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, and to his heirs and assigns, to confer favours, rewards and honours, upon such subjects, inhabiting within the province aforesaid, as shall be well deserving, and to adorn them with whatsoever titles and dignities they shall appoint; (so that they be not such as are now used in England) also to erect and incorporate towns into boroughs, and boroughs into cities, with suitable privileges and immunities, according to the merits of the inhabitants, and convenience of the places; and to do all and singular other things in the premises, which to him or them shall seem fitting and convenient; even although they shall be such as, in their own nature, require a more special commandment and warrant than in these presents may be expressed.

XV. We will also, and by these presents do, for us, our heirs and successors, give and grant license by this our charter, unto the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, and to all persons whatsoever, who are, or shall be residents and inhabitants of the province aforesaid, freely to import and unlade, by themselves, their servants, factors or assigns, all wares and merchandises whatsoever, which shall be collected out of the fruits and commodities of the said province, whether the product of the land or the sea, into any the ports whatsoever of us, our heirs and successors, of England or Ireland, or otherwise to dispose of the same there; and, if need be, within one year, to be computed immediately from the time of unlading thereof, to lade the same merchandises again, in the same, or other ships, and to export the same to any other countries they shall think proper, whether belonging to us, or any foreign power which shall be in amity with us, our heirs or successors: Provided always, That they be bound to pay for the same to us, our heirs and successors, such customs and impositions, subsidies and taxes, as our other subjects of our kingdom of England, for the time being, shall be bound to pay, beyond which we will that the inhabitants of the aforesaid province of the said land, called Maryland, shall not be burthened.

XVI. And furthermore, of our more ample special grace, and of our certain knowledge, and mere motion, we do, for us, our heirs and successors, grant unto the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, full and absolute power and authority to make, erect and constitute, within the province of Maryland, and the islands and islets aforesaid, such, and so many sea-ports, harbours, creeks, and other places of unlading and discharge of goods and merchandises out of ships, boats, and other vessels, and of lading in the same, and in so many, and such places, and with such rights, jurisdictions, liberties, and privileges, unto such ports respecting, as to him or them shall seem most expedient: And, that all and every the ships, boats, and other vessels whatsoever, coming to, or going from the province aforesaid, for the sake of merchandising, shall be laden and unladen at such ports only as shall be so erected and constituted by the said now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, any usage, custom, or any other thing whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding. Saving always to us, our heirs and successors, and to all the subjects of our kingdoms of England and Ireland, of us, our heirs and successors, the liberty of fishing for sea-fish, as well in the sea, bays, straits, and navigable rivers, as in the harbours, bays, and creeks of the province aforesaid; and the privilege of salting and drying fish on the shores of the same province; and, for that cause, to cut down and take hedging-wood and twigs there growing, and to build huts and cabins, necessary in this behalf, in the same manner as heretofore they reasonably might, or have used to do. Which liberties and privileges, the said subjects of us, our heirs and successors, shall enjoy, without notable damage or injury in any wise to be done to the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, his heirs or assigns, or to the residents and inhabitants of the same province in the ports, creeks, and shores aforesaid, and especially in the woods and trees there growing. And if any person shall do damage or injury of this kind, he shall incur the peril and pain of the heavy displeasure of us, our heirs and successors, and of the due chastisement of the laws, besides making satisfaction.

XVII. Moreover, we will, appoint, and ordain, and by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, do grant unto the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, that the same baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, from time to time, for ever, shall have, and enjoy the taxes and subsidies payable, or arising within the ports, harbours, and other creeks and places aforesaid, within the province aforesaid, for wares bought and sold, and things there to be laden or unladen, to be reasonably assessed by them, and the people there as aforesaid, on emergent occasion; to whom we grant power by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, to assess and impose the said taxes and subsidies there, upon just cause, and in due proportion.

XVIII. And furthermore, of our special grace, and certain knowledge, and mere motion, we have given, granted and confirmed, and by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, do give, grant and confirm, unto the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, full and absolute licence, power and authority, that he, the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, from time to time hereafter, for ever, may and can. at his or their will and pleasure, assign, alien, grant, demise, or enfeoff so many, such, and proportionate parts and parcels of the premises, to any person or persons willing to purchase the same, as they shall think convenient, to have and to hold to the same person or persons willing to take or purchase the same, and his and their heirs and assigns, in fee-simple, or fee-tail, or for term of life, lives or years; to hold of the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, by so many, such, and so great services, customs and rents, of this kind, as to the same now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, shall seem fit and agreeable, and not immediately of us, our heirs or successors. And we do give, and by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, do grant to the same person and persons, and to each and every of them, licence, authority and power, that such person and persons, may take the premisses, or any parcel thereof, of the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, and hold the same to them and their assigns, or their heirs, of the aforesaid baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, of what estate of inheritance soever, in fee-simple or fee-tail, or otherwise, as to them and the now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, shall seem expedient; the statute made in the parliament of lord Edward, son of king Henry, late king of England, our progenitor, commonly called the "Statute quia emptores terrarum," heretofore published in our kingdom of England, or any other statute, act, ordinance, usage, law, or custom, or any other thing, cause or matter, to the contrary thereof, heretofore had, done, published, ordained, or provided to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

XIX. We also, by these presents, do give and grant licence to the same baron of Baltimore, and to his heirs, to erect any parcels of land within the province aforesaid, into manors, and in every one of those manors, to have and to hold a court-baron, and all things which to a court-baron do belong; and to have and to keep view of frank-pledge, for the conservation of the peace and better government of those parts, by themselves and their stewards, or by the lords, for the time being to be deputed, of other of those manors when they shall be constituted, and in the same to exercise all things to the view of frank-pledge belonging.

XX. And further we will, and do, by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, covenant and grant to, and with the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, that we, our heirs and successors, at no time hereafter, will impose, or make or cause to be imposed, any impositions, customs, or other taxations, quotas or contributions whatsoever, in or upon the residents or inhabitants of the province aforesaid for their goods, lands, or tenements within the same province, or upon any tenements, lands, goods or chattels within the province aforesaid, or in or upon any goods or merchandises within the province aforesaid, or within the ports or harbours of the said province, to be laden or unladen: And we will and do, for us, our heirs and successors, enjoin and command that this our declaration shall, from time to time, be received and allowed in all our courts and prætorian judicatories, and before all the judges whatsoever of us, our heirs and successors, for a sufficient and lawful discharge, payment, and acquittance thereof, charging all and singular the officers and ministers of us, our heirs and successors, and enjoining them, under our heavy displeasure, that they do not at any time presume to attempt any thing to the contrary of the premisses or that may in any wise contravene the same, but that they, at all times, as is fitting, do aid and assist the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, and his heirs, and the aforesaid inhabitants and merchants of the province of Maryland aforesaid, and their servants and ministers, factors and assigns, in the fullest use and enjoyment of this our charter.

XXI. And furthermore we will, and by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, do grant unto the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns, and to the freeholders and inhabitants of the said province, both present and to come, and to every of them, that the said province, and the freeholders or inhabitants of the said colony or country, shall not henceforth be held or reputed a member or part of the land of Virginia, or of any other colony already transported, or hereafter to be transported, or be dependent on the same, or subordinate in any kind of government, from which we do separate both the said province, and inhabitants thereof, and by these presents do will to be distinct, and that they may be immediately subject to our crown of England, and dependent on the same for ever.

XXII. And if, peradventure, hereafter it may happen, that any doubts or questions should arise concerning the true sense and meaning of any word, clause or sentence, contained in this our present charter, we will, charge and command, that interpretation to be applied, always, and in all things, and in all our courts and judicatories whatsoever, to obtain which shall be judged to be the more beneficial, profitable, and favourable to the aforesaid now baron of Baltimore, his heirs and assigns: Provided always, That no interpretation thereof be made, whereby God's holy and true christian religion, or the allegiance due to us, our heirs and successors, may in any wise suffer by change, prejudice, or diminution; although express mention be not made in these presents of the true yearly value or certainty of the premisses, or of any part thereof, or of other gifts and grants made by us, our heirs and predecessors, unto the said now lord Baltimore, or any statute, act, ordinance, provision, proclamation or restraint, heretofore had, made, published, ordained or provided, or any other thing, cause, or matter whatsoever, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

XXIII. In witness whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patent. Witness ourself at Westminster, the twentieth day of June, in the eighth year of our reign. (Kilty's Digest.)

ORIGINAL DECLARATION OF RIGHTS OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND

The parliament of Great Britain, by a declaratory act, having assumed a right to make laws to bind the colonies in all cases whatsoever, and in pursuance of such claim endeavoured by force of arms to subjugate the United Colonies to an unconditional submission to their will and power, and having at length constrained them to declare themselves independent states, and to assume government under the authority of the people, Therefore, we, the Delegates of Maryland, in free and full convention assembled, taking into our most serious consideration, the best means of establishing a good constitution in this state, for the surer foundation, and more permanent security thereof, declare,

1. That all government of right originates from the people, is founded in compact only, and instituted solely for the good of the whole.

2. That the people of this state ought to have the sole and exclusive right of regulating the internal government and police thereof.

3. That the inhabitants of Maryland are entitled to the common law of England, and the trial by jury according to the course of that law, and to the benefit of such of the English statutes as existed at the time of their first emigration, and which by experience have been found applicable to their local and other circumstances, and of such others as have been since made in England or Great Britain, and have been introduced, used, and practised by the courts of law or equity; and also to all acts of assembly in force on the first of June, seventeen hundred and seventy-four, except such as may have since expired, or have been, or may be altered by acts of convention, or this declaration of rights; subject nevertheless to the revision of, and amendment or repeal by the legislature of this state; and the inhabitants of Maryland are also entitled to all property derived to them from or under the charter granted by his majesty Charles the first, to Cæcilius Calvert, baron of Baltimore.

4. That all persons invested with the legislative or executive powers of government are the trustees of the public, and as such accountable for their conduct; wherefore, whenever the ends of government are perverted, and public liberty manifestly endangered, and all other means of redress are ineffectual, the people may, and of right ought, to reform the old, or establish a new government; the doctrine of non-resistance against arbitrary power and oppression, is absurd, slavish, and destructive of the good and happiness of mankind.

5. That the right in the people to participate in the legislature is the best security of liberty, and the foundation of all free government; for this purpose elections ought to be free and frequent, and every man having property in, a common interest with, and an attachment to the community, ought to have a right of suffrage.

6. That the legislative, executive, and judicial powers of government, ought to be for ever separate and distinct from each other.

7. That no power of suspending laws, or the execution of laws, unless by or derived from the legislature, ought to be exercised or allowed.

8. That freedom of speech and debates or proceedings in the legislature, ought not to be impeached in any other court of judicature.

9. That a place for the meeting of the legislature ought to be fixed, the most convenient to the members thereof, and to the depository of the public records; and the legislature ought not to be convened or held at any other place but from evident necessity.

10. That for the redress of grievances, and for amending, strengthening and preserving the laws, the legislature ought to be frequently convened.

11. That every man hath a right to petition the legislature for the redress of grievances in a peaceable and orderly manner.

12. That no aid, charge, tax, burthen, fee or fees, ought to be set, rated or levied, under any pretence, without the consent of the legislature.

13. That the levying taxes by the poll is grievious and oppressive, and ought to be abolished; that paupers ought not to be assessed for the support of government, but every other person in the state ought to contribute his proportion of public taxes, for the support of government, according to his actual worth in real or personal property within this state; yet fines, duties or taxes, may properly and justly be imposed or laid with a political view for the good government and benefit of the community.

14. That sanguinary laws ought to be avoided, as far as is consistent with the safety of the state; and no law to inflict cruel and unusual pains and penalties ought to be made, in any case, or at any time hereafter.

15. That retrospective laws, punishing facts committed before the existence of such laws, and by them only declared criminal, are oppressive, unjust and incompatible with liberty; wherefore no expost facto law ought to be made.

16. That no law to attaint particular persons of treason or felony, ought to be made in any case or at any time hereafter.

17. That every free man, for any injury done to him in his person, or property, ought to have remedy by the course of the law of the land, and ought to have justice and right, freely without sale, fully without any denial, and speedily without delay, according to the law of the land.

18. That the trial of facts where they arise, is one of the greatest securities of the lives, liberties, and estate of the people.

19. That in all criminal prosecutions, every man hath a right to be informed of the accusation against him; to have a copy of the indictment, or charge, in due time, (if required,) to prepare for his defence; to be allowed counsel; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have process for his witnesses; to examine the witnesses for and against him on oath, and to a speedy trial by an impartial jury, without whose unanimous consent he ought not to be found guilty.

20. That no man ought to be compelled to give evidence against himself in a court of common law, or in any other court, but in such cases as have been usually practised in this state, or may hereafter be directed by the legislature.

21. That no freeman ought to be taken or imprisoned, or disseized of his freehold, liberties or privileges, or outlawed, or exiled, or in any manner destroyed, or deprived of his life, liberty or property, but by the judgment of his peers, or by the law of the land.

22. That excessive bail ought not to be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel or unusual punishments inflicted by the courts of law.

23. That all warrants without oath, or affirmation, to search suspected places, or to seize any person, or property, are serious and oppressive; and all general warrants to search suspected places, or to apprehend suspected persons, without naming or describing the place, or the person in special, are illegal and ought not to be granted.

24. That there ought to be no forfeiture of any part of the estate of any person for any crime except murder, or treason against the state, and then only on conviction and attainder.

25. That a well regulated militia is the proper and natural defence of a free government.

26. That standing armies are dangerous to liberty, and ought not to be raised or kept up without consent of the legislature.

27. That in all cases and at all times the military ought to be under strict subordination to, and control of, the civil power.

28. That no soldier ought to be quartered in any house in time of peace without the consent of the owner, and in time of war in such manner only as the legislature shall direct.

29. That no person except regular soldiers, mariners and marines, in the service of this state, or militia when in actual service, ought in any case to be subject to, or punishable by martial law.

30. That the independency and uprightness of judges are essential to the impartial administration of justice, and a great security to the rights and liberties of the people; wherefore, the chancellor and all judges ought to hold commissions during good behaviour; and the said chancellor and judges shall be removed for misbehavior, on conviction in a court of law, and may be removed by the governor, upon the address of the general assembly: Provided, That two-thirds of all the members of each house concur in such address. That salaries, liberal, but not profuse, ought to be secured to the chancellor and the judges during the continuance of their commissions, in such manner and at such time, as the legislature shall hereafter direct, upon consideration of the circumstances of this state. No chancellor or judge ought to hold any other office, civil or military, or receive fees or perquisites of any kind.

31. That a long continuance in the first executive departments of power or trust, is dangerous to liberty; a rotation, therefore, in those departments, is one of the best securities of permanent freedom.

32. That no person ought to hold, at the same time, more than one office of profit, nor ought any person in public trust to receive any present from any foreign prince or state, or from the United States, or any of them, without the approbation of this state.

33. That, as it is the duty of every man to worship God in such manner as he thinks most acceptable to him, all persons professing the christian religion are equally entitled to protection in their religious liberty; wherefore, no person ought by any law to be molested in his person or estate, on account of his religious persuasion or profession, or for his religious practice; unless, under colour of religion, any man shall disturb the good order, peace, or safety of the state, or shall infringe the laws of morality, or injure others in their natural, civil or religious rights; nor ought any person to be compelled to frequent or maintain, or contribute, unless on contract, to maintain any particular place of worship, or any particular ministry. Yet the legislature may, in their discretion, lay a general and equal tax for the support of the christian religion, leaving to each individual the power of appointing the payment over of the money collected from him, to the support of any particular place of worship or minister, or for the benefit of the poor of his own denomination, or the poor in general of any particular county; but the churches, chapels, glebes, and all other property now belonging to the church of England, ought to remain to the church of England for ever. And all acts of assembly lately passed for collecting moneys for building or repairing particular churches or chapels of ease, shall continue in force and be executed, unless the legislature shall by act supersede or repeal the same; but no county court shall assess any quantity of tobacco or sum of money hereafter, on the application of any vestrymen or churchwardens; and every incumbent of the church of England, who hath remained in his parish and performed his duty, shall be entitled to receive the provision and support established by the act, entitled, An act for the support of the clergy of the church of England in this province, till the November court of this present year to be held for the county in which his parish shall lie, or partly lie, or for such time as he hath remained in his parish and performed his duty.

34. That every gift, sale, or devise of lands, to any minister, public teacher, or preacher of the gospel, as such, or to any religious sect, order or denomination, or to or for the support, use or benefit of, or in truth for, any minister, public teacher, or preacher of the gospel, as such, or any religious sect, order or denomination; and every gift or sale of goods or chattels, to go in succession, or to take place after the death of the seller or donor, to or for such support, use or benefit; and also every devise of goods or chattels to, or to or for the support, use or benefit of, any minister, public teacher, or preacher of the gospel, as such, or any religious sect, order or denomination, without the leave of the legislature, shall be void; except always any sale, gift, lease, or devise, of any quantity of land not exceeding two acres, for a church, meeting, or other house of worship, and for a burying ground, which shall be improved, enjoyed or used, only for such purpose, or such sale, gift, lease or devise, shall be void.

35. That no other test or qualification ought to be required, on admission to any office of trust or profit, than such oath of support and fidelity to this state, and such oath of office, as shall be directed by this convention or the legislature of this state, and a declaration of a belief in the christian religion.

36. That the manner of administering an oath to any person ought to be such as those of the religious persuasion, profession, or denomination, of which such person is one, generally esteem the most effectual confirmation by the attestation of the Divine Being; and that the people called quakers, those called tunkers, and those called menonists, holding it unlawful to take an oath, on any occasion, ought to be allowed to make their solemn affirmation in the manner that quakers have been heretofore allowed to affirm, and to be of the same avail as an oath, in all such cases as the affirmation of quakers hath been allowed and accepted within this state instead of an oath. And further, on such affirmation warrants to search for stolen goods, or the apprehension or commitment of offenders, ought to be granted, or security for the peace awarded, and quakers, tunkers, or menonists, ought also, on their solemn affirmation as aforesaid, to be admitted as witnesses in all criminal cases not capital.

37. That the city of Annapolis ought to have all its rights, privileges and benefits, agreeable to its charter and the acts of assembly confirming and regulating the same; subject, nevertheless, to such alterations as may be made by this convention or any future legislature.

38. That the liberty of the press ought to be inviolably preserved.

39. That monopolies are odious, contrary to the spirit of a free government, and the principles of commerce, and ought not to be suffered.

40. That no title of nobility, or hereditary honour, ought to be granted in this state.

41. That the subsisting resolves of this and the several conventions held for this colony, ought to be in force as laws, unless altered by this convention, or the legislature of this state.

42. That this declaration of rights, or the form of government to be established by this convention, or any part of either of them, ought not to be altered, changed, or abolished by the legislature of this state but in such manner as this convention shall prescribe and direct. (Kilty's Digest; see also 1 Dorsey's Laws of Maryland, xxv; for declaration as amended to date see 1 Md. Ann. Code (1924) 43).

ACT OF CESSION FROM THE STATE OF VIRGINIA

AN ACT For the cession of ten miles square, or any lesser quantity of territory within this State, to the United States, in Congress assembled, for the permanent seat of the General Government

[Passed December 3, 1789]

I. Whereas the equal and common benefits resulting from the administration of the General Government will be best diffused, and its operations become more prompt and certain, by establishing such a situation for the seat of the said Government as will be most central and convenient to the citizens of the United States at large; having regard as well to population, extent of territory, and a free navigation to the Atlantic Ocean, through the Chesapeake Bay, as to the most direct and ready communication with our fellow-citizens on the western frontier; and whereas it appears to this assembly that a situation combining all the considerations and advantages before recited may be had on the banks of the river Potomac, above tidewater, in a country rich and fertile in soil, healthy and salubrious in climate, and abounding in all the necessaries and conveniences of life, where, in a location of ten miles square, if the wisdom of Congress shall so direct, the States of Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia, may participate in such location:

II. Be it therefore enacted by the general assembly, That a tract of country not exceeding ten miles square, or any lesser quantity, to be located within the limits of the State, and in any part thereof, as Congress may by law direct, shall be, and the same is hereby forever ceded and relinquished to the Congress and Government of the United States, in full and absolute right, and exclusive jurisdiction, as well of soil as of persons residing or to reside thereon, pursuant to the tenor and effect of the eighth section of the first article of the Constitution of the Government of the United States.

III. Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to vest in the United States any right of property in the soil, or to affect the rights of individuals therein, otherwise than the same shall or may be transferred by such individuals to the United States.

IV. And provided also, That the jurisdiction of the laws of this commonwealth over the persons and property of individuals residing within the limits of the cession aforesaid, shall not cease or determine until Congress, having accepted the said cession, shall, by law, provide for the government thereof, under their jurisdiction, in manner provided by the article of the Constitution before recited. (Burch's Digest, p. 213.)

ACT AUTHORIZING CESSION FROM STATE OF MARYLAND

AN ACT To cede to Congress a district of ten miles square in this State for the seat of the Government of the United States

Be it enacted, by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the representatives of this state in the house of representatives in the congress of the United States, appointed to assemble at New York on the first Wednesday of March next, be and they are hereby authorized and required, on the behalf of this state, to cede to the congress of the United States, any district in this state, not exceeding ten miles square, which the congress may fix upon and accept for the seat of government of the United States. (Md. act, December 23, 1788, ch. 46.)

ACT OF MARYLAND RATIFYING THE CESSION

AN ACT Concerning the Territory of Columbia and the city of Washington

[Passed December 19, 1791]

Whereas the President of the United States, by virtue of several acts of Congress, and acts of the assemblies of Maryland and Virginia, by his proclamation, dated at Georgetown on the thirtieth day of March, seventeen hundred and ninety-one, did declare and make known that the whole of the territory of ten miles square, for the permanent seat of government of the United States, shall be located and included within the four lines following, that is to say: Beginning at Jones Point, being the upper point of Hunting Creek, in Virginia, and at an angle at the outset forty-five degrees west of north, and running a direct line ten miles for the first line; then beginning again at the same Jones Point and running another direct line at a right angle with the first across the Potomac ten miles for the second line; then from the terminations of the said first and second lines running two other direct lines ten miles each, the one across the Eastern Branch and the other Potomac, and meeting each other in a point, which has since been called the Territory of Columbia; and,

Whereas Notley Young, Daniel Carroll, of Duddington, and many others, proprietors of the greater part of the land hereinafter mentioned to have been laid out in a city, came into an agreement, and have conveyed their lands in trust to Thomas Beall, son of George, and John Mackall Gantt, whereby they have subjected their lands to be laid out as a city, given up part to the United States, and subjected other parts to be sold to raise money as a donation to be employed according to the act of Congress for establishing the temporary and permanent seat of the Government of the United States, under and upon the terms and conditions contained in each of the said deeds; and many of the proprietors of lots in Carrollsburg and Hamburg have also come into an agreement, subjecting their lots to be laid out anew, giving up one-half of the quantity thereof to be sold, and the money thence arising to be applied as a donation as aforesaid, and they to be reinstated in one-half of the quantity of their lots in the new location, or otherwise compensated in land in a different situation within the city, by agreement between the Commissioners and them, and in case of disagreement, that then a just and full compensation shall be made in money; yet some of the proprietors in Carrollsburg and Hamburg, as well as some of the proprietors of other lands, have not, from imbecility and other causes, come into any agreement concerning their lands within the limits hereinafter mentioned, but a very great number of the landholders having agreed on the same terms, the President of the United States directed a city to be laid out comprehending all the lands beginning on the east side of Rock Creek, at a stone standing in the middle of the road leading from Georgetown to Bladensburgh; thence along the middle of the said road to a stone standing on the east side of the Reedy Branch of Goose Creek; thence southeasterly, making an angle of sixty-one degrees and twenty minutes with the meridian, to a stone standing in the road leading from Bladensburgh to the Eastern Branch ferry; then south to a stone eighty poles north of the east and west line already drawn from the mouth of Goose Creek to the Eastern Branch; then east, parallel to the said east and west line, to the Eastern Branch; then with the waters of the Eastern Branch, Potomac River, and Rock Creek to the beginning, which has since been called the City of Washington; and

Whereas it appears to this general assembly highly just and expedient that all the lands within the said city should contribute, in due proportion, in the means which have already greatly enhanced the value of the whole; that an incontrovertible title ought to be made to the purchasers, under public sanction; that allowing foreigners to hold land within the said territory will greatly contribute to the improvement and population thereof; and that many temporary provisions will be necessary till Congress exercise the jurisdiction and government over the said territory; and

Whereas in the cession of this State, heretofore made, of territory for the Government of the United States, the lines of such cession could not be particularly designated; and it being expedient and proper that the same should be recognized in the acts of this State—

2. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That all that part of the said territory called Columbia which lies within the limits of this State shall be, and the same is hereby, acknowledged to be forever ceded and relinquished to the Congress and Government of the United States, and full and absolute right and exclusive jurisdiction, as well of soil as of persons residing or to reside thereon, pursuant to the tenor and effect of the eighth section of the first article of the Constitution of Government of the United States: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed to vest in the United States any right of property in the soil as to affect the rights of individuals therein, otherwise than the same shall or may be transferred by such individuals to the United States: And provided also, That the jurisdiction of the laws of this State over the persons and property of individuals residing within the limits of the cession aforesaid shall not cease or determine until Congress shall, by law, provide for the government thereof, under their jurisdiction, in manner provided by the article of the Constitution before recited.

4. And be it enacted, That where the proprietor or proprietors, possessor or possessors, of any lands within the limits of the city of Washington, or within the limits of Carrollsburg or Hamburg, who have not already, or who shall not, within three months of this act, execute deeds in trust to the aforesaid Thomas Beall and John M. Gantt, of all their land within the limits of the said city of Washington, and on the terms and conditions mentioned in the deeds already executed by Notley Young and others, and execute deeds in trust to the said Thomas Beall and John M. "I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will, to the best of my judgment, value the lands of C. D. now to be valued so as to do equal right and justice to the said C. D. and to the public, taking into consideration all circumstances," and shall then proceed to value the said lands; and such valuation, under their hands and seals and under the hand and seal of the said sheriff, shall be annexed to the said process and returned by the sheriff to the clerk appointed by virtue of this act, who shall make record of the same, and the said lands shall, on the payment of such valuation, be and is hereby vested in the said commissioners in trust, to be disposed of by them or otherwise employed to the use of the said city of Washington; and the sheriff aforesaid and freeholders aforesaid shall be allowed the same fees for their trouble as are allowed to a sheriff and juryman in executing a writ of inquiry; and in all cases where the proprietor or possessor is tenant in right of dower or by the courtesy the freeholders aforesaid shall ascertain the annual value of the lands and the gross value of such estate therein, and upon paying such gross value or securing to the possessor the payment of the annual valuation, at the option of the proprietor or possessor, the commissioners shall be and are hereby vested with the whole estate of such tenant, in manner and for the uses and purposes aforesaid.

7. And be it enacted, That the said commissioners, or any two of them, may appoint a clerk for recording deeds of land within the said territory, who shall provide a proper book for the purpose, and therein record, in a strong, legible hand, all deeds duly acknowledged, of lands in the said territory, delivered to him to be recorded, and in the same book make due entries of all divisions and allotments of lands and lots made by the commissioners in pursuance of this act, and certificates granted by them of sales, and the purchase money having been paid, with a proper alphabet in the same book of the deeds and entries aforesaid; and the same book shall carefully preserve and deliver over to the commissioners aforesaid, or their successors, or such person or persons as Congress shall hereafter appoint, which clerk shall continue such during good behaviour, and shall be removable only on a conviction of misbehaviour in a court of law; but before he acts as such he shall take an oath or affirmation well and truly to execute his office, and he shall be entitled to the same fees as are or may be allowed to the clerks of the county courts for searches, copying, and recording.

A supplement to the act entitled "An act concerning the Territory of Columbia and the city of Washington"

[Passed December 23, 1792]

Whereas, doubts have arisen upon the act to which this is a supplement, whether it be essential to the validity of deeds and other conveyances of land in that part of the Territory of Columbia which lies within this state, that the same be recorded in the manner prescribed by the laws of this state before the passage of the said act; to remove which doubts—

2. Be it enacted, by the General Assembly of Maryland, That all deeds and other conveyances of land lying within the said territory, and recorded agreeably to the directions and provisions of the said act by the clerk appointed in the manner therein provided for the recording of deeds within the said territory, shall be as good, valid, and sufficient, in law, for the purposes of passing the estates therein mentioned, and for all other purposes, as if the same were also recorded in the manner prescribed by the laws of this state, before the passage of the said act for the recording of deeds and other conveyances of land within this state. (Md. act, 1792, ch. 49.)

MARYLAND ACT OF 1793 SUPPLEMENTARY TO ACT OF CESSION

II. And be it enacted, That on sales of lots in the said city by the said commissioners, or any two of them, under terms or conditions of payment being therefor at any day or days after such contract entered into, if any sum of the purchase money or interest shall not be paid for the space of thirty days after the same ought to be paid, the commissioners, or any two of them, may sell the same lots at public vendue, in the city of Washington, at any time after sixty days notice of such sale, in some of the public newspapers of George-town and Baltimore-town, and retain in their hands sufficient of the money produced by such new sale to satisfy all principal and interest due on the first contract, together with the expenses of advertisements and sale, and the original purchaser, or his assigns, shall be entitled to receive from the said commissioners, at their treasury, on demand, the balance of the money which may have been actually received by them, or under their order, on the said second sale; and all lots, so sold, shall be freed and acquitted of all claim, legal and equitable, of the first purchaser, his heirs and assigns.

III. And be it enacted, That the commissioners aforesaid, or any two of them, may appoint a certain day for the allotment and assignment of one half of the quantity of each lot of ground in Carrollsburgh and Hamburgh, not before that time divided or assigned, pursuant to the said act concerning the territory of Columbia and the city of Washington, and on notice thereof in the Annapolis, some one of the Baltimore, the Eastern and Georgetown news-papers, for at least three weeks, the same commissioners may proceed to the allotment and assignment of ground within the said city, on the day appointed for that purpose, and therein proceed at convenient times till the whole be finished, as if the proprietors of such lots actually resided out of this state; provided, that if the proprietor of any such lot shall object in person, or by writing delivered to the commissioners, against their so proceeding as to his lot, before they shall have made an assignment of ground for the same, then they shall forbear as to such lot, and may proceed according to the before-mentioned act.

IV. And be it enacted, That the said commissioners may make a seal of office of the clerk for recording deeds within the district of Columbia, which shall be kept by him; and that the like fees shall be paid for, and the like credit shall be given to, certificates under seal, as to the like acts under the seal of a county court, and the said clerk shall be entitled to demand and receive his fees when the services enjoined him by this act, and the act to which this is a further supplement, shall be performed. (Md. act, 1793, ch. 58.)

ACT OF 1820 REORGANIZING THE GOVERNMENT OF THE CITY OF WASHINGTON

AN ACT To incorporate the inhabitants of the city of Washington, and to repeal all acts heretofore passed for that purpose

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the act, entitled "An act to incorporate the inhabitants of the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia," and the act supplementary to the same, passed on the twenty-fourth of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and four, and the act, entitled "An act further to amend the charter of the city of Washington," and all other acts, or parts of acts, inconsistent with the provisions of this act, be, and the same are hereby, repealed: Provided, however, That the mayor, the members of the board of aldermen, and the members of the board of common council, of the corporation of the said city, shall and may remain and continue as such, for and during the terms for which they have been respectively appointed, subject to the terms and conditions in such cases legally made and provided; and all acts or things done, or which may be done, by them in pursuance of the provisions, or by virtue of the authority, of the said acts, or either of them, and not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, shall be valid, and of as full force and effect as if the said acts had not been repealed.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the inhabitants of the city of Washington shall continue to be a body politic and corporate, by the name of the "Mayor, board of aldermen, and board of common council, of the city of Washington," to be elected by ballot, as hereinafter directed, and, by their corporate name, may sue and be sued, implead and be impleaded, grant, receive, and do all other acts, as natural persons; and may purchase and hold real, personal, and mixed, property, or dispose of the same, for the benefit of the city; and may have and use a city seal, and break and alter the same at pleasure.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That the mayor of the said city shall be elected on the first Monday in June next, and on the same day in every second year thereafter, at the same time and place, in the same manner, and by the persons qualified to vote for members of the board of aldermen and the board of common council. That the commissioners hereinafter mentioned shall make out duplicate certificates of the result of the election of mayor; and shall return one to the board of aldermen and the other to the board of common council, on the Monday next ensuing the election; and the person having the greatest number of votes shall be the mayor: but in case two or more persons, highest in vote, shall have an equal number of votes, then it shall be lawful for the board of aldermen and the board of common council to proceed forthwith, by ballot, in joint meeting, to determine the choice between such persons. The mayor shall, on the Monday next ensuing his election, before he enters on the duties of his office, in the presence of the boards of aldermen and common council, in joint meeting, take an oath, to be administered by a justice of the peace, "lawfully to execute the duties of his office, to the best of his skill and judgment, without favour or partiality." He shall, ex officio, have and exercise all the powers, authority, and jurisdiction, of a justice of the peace for the county of Washington, within the said county. He shall nominate, and with the consent of the board of aldermen, appoint to all offices under the corporation, (except commissioners of election,) and may remove any such officer from office at his will and pleasure. He shall appoint persons to fill up all vacancies which may occur during the recess of the board of aldermen, to hold such appointments until the end of the then ensuing session. He may convene the two boards when, in his opinion, the public good may require it; and he shall lay before them, from time to time, in writing, such alterations in the laws of the corporation as he may deem necessary and proper; and he shall receive, for his services, annually a just and reasonable compensation, to be allowed and fixed by the two boards, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during his continuance in office. Any person shall be eligible to the office of mayor who is a free white male citizen of the United States, who shall have attained to the age of thirty years, who shall have resided in the said city for two years immediately preceding his election, and who shall be the bona fide owner of a freehold estate in the said city; and no other person shall be eligible to the said office. In case of the refusal of any person to accept the office of mayor, upon his election thereto, or of his death, resignation, inability, or removal from the city, the said boards shall assemble and elect another in his place, to serve for the remainder of the term, or during such inability.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the board of aldermen shall consist of two members to be residents in, and chosen from, each ward, by the qualified voters therein, and to be elected for two years, from the Monday next ensuing their election: and the board of common council shall consist of three members, to be residents in, and chosen from, each ward, by the qualified voters therein, and to be elected for one year, from the Monday next ensuing their election; and each board shall meet at the council chamber, on the second Monday in June next, for the despatch of business, at ten o'clock in the morning, and at the same hour on the second Monday in June, in every year thereafter; and at such other times as the two boards may, by law, direct. A majority of each board shall be necessary to form a quorum to do business, but a less number may adjourn from day to day; they may compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner, and under such penalties, and allow such compensation for the attendance of the members, as they may, by law, provide; each board shall appoint its own President, who shall preside during its sessions, and who shall be entitled to vote on all questions; they shall settle their rules of proceedings, appoint their own officers, regulate their respective compensations, and remove them at pleasure; and may, with the concurrence of three-fourths of the whole, expel any member for disorderly behaviour or malconduct in office, but not a second time for the same offence; each board shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and the yeas and nays shall be entered thereon, at the request of any member; and their deliberations shall be public. All ordinances or acts, passed by the two boards, shall be sent to the mayor for his approbation, and, when approved by him, shall be obligatory as such. But, if the mayor shall not approve of any ordinance or act, so sent to him, he shall return the same, within five days, with his reasons in writing therefor; and if two thirds of both boards, on reconsideration thereof, agree to pass the same, it shall be in force, in like manner as if he had approved it; but, if the two boards shall, by their adjournment, prevent its return, the same shall not be obligatory.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That no person shall be eligible to a seat in the board of aldermen, or board of common council, unless he shall be more than twenty-five years of age, a free white male citizen of the United States, and shall have been a resident of the city of Washington for one year next preceding the day of election, and shall, at the time of his election, be a resident of the ward for which he shall be elected, and be then the bona fide owner of a freehold estate in the said city, and shall have been assessed on the books of the corporation, for the year ending on the thirty-first day of December next preceding the day of election. And every free white male citizen of the United States, of lawful age, who shall have resided in the city of Washington for one year next preceding the day of election, and shall be a resident of the ward in which he shall offer to vote, and who shall have been assessed on the books of the corporation, for the year ending on the thirty-first day of December next preceding the day of election, and who shall have paid all taxes legally assessed and due on personal property, when legally required to pay the same, and no other person shall be entitled to vote at any election for members of the two boards. And it shall be the duty of the register of the city, or such officer as the corporation may hereafter direct, to furnish the commissioners of election in each ward, previous to opening the polls at every election, a list of the persons having a right to vote, agreeably to the provisions of this section.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That an election for members of the board of aldermen and board of common council shall be held on the first Monday of June next, and on the first Monday in June annually thereafter; and all elections shall be held by three commissioners to be appointed in each ward by the two boards in joint meeting, which appointment shall be at least ten days previous to the day of each election. And it shall be the duty of the commissioners so appointed, to give at least five days' previous notice of the place in each ward where such elections are to be held. The said commissioners shall, before they receive any ballot, severally take an oath or affirmation, to be administered by some justice of the peace for the county of Washington, "truly and faithfully to receive and return the votes of such persons as are by law entitled to vote for members of the board of aldermen and board of common council, in their respective wards, according to the best of their judgment and understanding; and not knowingly to receive or return the vote of any person who is not legally entitled to the same." The polls shall be opened at ten o'clock in the morning, and be closed at seven o'clock in the evening of the same day. Immediately on closing the polls, the said commissioners for each ward, or a majority of them, shall count the ballots, and make out, under their hands and seals, a correct return of the persons having the greatest number of legal votes for members of the board of aldermen and for members of the board of common council, respectively, together with the number of votes given to each person voted for; and the persons having the greatest number of votes for the two boards, respectively, shall be duly elected; and, in all cases of an equality of votes, the commissioners shall decide the choice by lot. The said returns shall be delivered to the mayor, on the day succeeding the election, who shall cause the result of the election to be published in some newspaper printed in the city of Washington; a duplicate return shall, together with a list of the persons who voted at such election, also to be made, on the day succeeding the election, to the register of the city, who shall preserve and record the same; and shall, within two days thereafter, notify the several persons, so returned, of their election. And each board shall judge of the legality of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members, and shall supply vacancies in its own body, by causing elections to be held to fill the same, and appoint commissioners to hold the same, and such commissioners shall give at least five days' public notice of the time and place of holding such elections; each of the members of either board, shall, before entering on the duties of his office, take an oath or affirmation, "faithfully to execute the duties of his office, to the best of his knowledge and ability;" which oath or affirmation shall be administered by the mayor or some justice of the peace for the county of Washington.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That the corporation aforesaid shall have full power and authority to lay and collect taxes upon the real and personal property within the said city; provided that no tax shall be laid upon real property, at a higher rate than three quarters of one per centum on the assessment valuation thereof, except for the special purposes hereinafter provided; and that no tax shall be laid upon the wearing apparel, or necessary tools and implements used in carrying on the trade or occupation, of any person; nor shall the same be subject to distress and sale for any tax; and, after providing for all objects of a general nature, the taxes raised on the assessable property in each ward shall be expended therein, and in no other; to establish a board of health, with competent authority to enforce its regulations, and to establish such other regulations as may be necessary to prevent the introduction of contagious diseases, and for the preservation of the health of the city; to prevent and remove nuisances; to establish night watches or patrols, and erect lamps in the streets; to preserve the navigation of the Potomac and Anacostia rivers adjoining the city; to erect, repair, and regulate, public wharves, and to deepen creeks, docks, and basins; to regulate the manner of erecting, and the rates of wharfage, at private wharves; to regulate the stationing, anchorage, and mooring of vessels; to provide for licensing, taxing, and regulation, auctions, retailers, ordinaries, and taverns, hackney carriages, wagons, carts, and drays, pawn-brokers, venders of lottery tickets, money-changers, and hawkers and pedlars; to provide for licensing, taxing, regulating, or restraining, theatrical or public shows and amusements; to restrain or prohibit tippling houses, lotteries, and all kinds of gaming; to regulate and establish markets; to erect and repair bridges; to open and keep in repair streets, avenues, lanes, alleys, drains, and sewers, agreeably to the plan of the city, to supply the city with water; to provide for the safe-keeping of the standard weights and measures as fixed by Congress, and for the regulation of all weights and measures used in the city; to regulate the sweeping of chimneys, and fix the rates or fees therefor; to provide for the prevention and extinguishment of fires; to regulate the size of bricks to be made or used; and to provide for the inspection of lumber and other building materials to be sold in the city; to regulate, with the approbation of the President of the United States, the manner of erecting, and the materials to be used in the erection, of houses; to regulate the inspection of tobacco, flour, butter, and lard, in casks or boxes, and salted provisions; to regulate the gauging of casks and liquors; the storage of gunpowder, and all naval and military stores, not the property of the United States; and the weight and quality of bread; to impose and appropriate fines, penalties, and forfeitures, for the breach of their laws or ordinances; and to provide for the appointment of inspectors, constables, and such other officers, as may be necessary to execute the laws of the corporation.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That the said corporation shall have full power and authority to lay taxes on particular wards, parts, or sections, of the city, for their particular local improvements; and, upon application of the owners of more than one half of the property upon any portion of a street, to cause the curb-stones to be set, and the footways to be paved, on such portion of a street, and to lay a tax on such property, to the amount of the expense thereof: Provided, That such tax shall not exceed three dollars per front foot; and, upon a like application to cause the carriage-way of any portion of a street to be paved, or lamps to be erected therein, and light the same, and lay a tax, not exceeding the whole expense thereof, in due proportion, on the lots fronting on such portion of a street; and, also, to impose an addition or interest on the amounts of any such taxes, not exceeding ten per centum per annum, when the same shall not have been paid within thirty days after the same shall become due. SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the marshal of the District of Columbia shall receive and safely keep within the jail for the county of Washington, at the expense of the said corporation, all persons committed thereto under or by authority of the provisions of this act. And in all cases where suit shall be brought before a justice of the peace, for the recovery of any fine or penalty arising or incurred for a breach of any law or ordinance of the corporation, execution shall and may be issued, as in all other cases of small debts.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That real property, whether improved or unimproved, in the city of Washington, on which two or more years' taxes shall have remained due and unpaid, or on which any special tax, imposed by virtue of authority of the provisions of this act, shall have remained unpaid for two or more years after the same shall have become due, or so much thereof, not less than a lot, (when the property upon which the tax has accrued is not less than that quantity,) as may be necessary to pay any such taxes, with all legal costs and charges arising thereon, may be sold at public sale to satisfy the corporation therefor: Provided, That public notice be given of the time and place of sale, by advertising once a week in some newspaper printed in the city of Washington, for at least six months, where the property is assessed to persons residing out of the United States; for three months, where the property is assessed to persons residing in the United States, but without the District of Columbia; and for six weeks, where the property is assessed to persons residing within the District of Columbia; in which advertisement shall be stated the number of the lot or lots, (if the square has been divided into lots,) the number of the square or squares, or other sufficient or definite description of the property selected for sale, the name of the person or persons to whom the same may have been assessed, for the respective years' taxes due thereon, as also the name of the person to whom the same is assessed, and the aggregate amount of taxes due. The purchaser or purchasers of any such property shall pay, at the time of such sale, the amount of the taxes due on the property so purchased by him, her, or them, respectively, with the amount of the expenses of sale; and he, she, or they, shall pay the residue of the purchase money within ten days after the expiration of two years from the day of sale, to the collector of taxes, or other officer of the corporation authorized to receive the same; and the amount of such residue shall be placed in the city treasury, where it shall remain, subject to the order of the original proprietor or proprietors, his, her, or their, legal representatives; and the purchaser or purchasers shall receive a title in fee simple, in and to the lot or lots so sold and purchased, under the hand of the mayor and seal of the corporation, which shall be deemed good and valid in law and equity: Provided nevertheless, That if, within two years from the day of any such sale, or before such purchaser or purchasers shall have paid the residue of the purchase money as aforesaid, the proprietor or proprietors of any property which shall have been sold as aforesaid, his, her, or their heirs, agents, or legal representatives, shall repay to such purchaser or purchasers the moneys paid for the taxes, and expenses as aforesaid, together with ten per centum per annum, as interest thereon, or make a tender thereof, or shall deposit the same in the hands of the mayor of the city, or other officer of the corporation appointed to receive the same, for the use of such purchaser or purchasers, and subject to his, her, or their, heirs, or legal representatives' order, of which such purchaser, his heirs or legal representatives, shall be immediately informed, by notice in some newspaper printed in the city of Washington, or otherwise; he, she, or they, shall be reinstated in his, her, or their, original right and title, as if no such sale had been made. And if any such purchaser shall fail to pay the residue of the purchase money as aforesaid, within the time required by this section, for any property so purchased by him, he shall pay ten per centum per annum, as interest thereon, and in addition to such residue, to be computed from the expiration of the two years as aforesaid, until the actual payment of such residue, and the receiving of a conveyance from the corporation; and the said interest shall alike be subject to the order of the original proprietor or proprietors, as the residue of the purchase money as aforesaid: Provided, also, That no sale shall be made, in pursuance of this section, of any improved property whereon there is personal property of sufficient value to pay the said taxes: and that minors, mortgagees, or others having equitable interest in real property, which property shall be sold for taxes as aforesaid, shall be allowed one year after such minors' coming to, or being of full age, or after such mortgagees, and others having equitable interests, obtaining possession of, or a decree for the sale of, such property, to redeem the property so sold from the purchaser or purchasers, his, her, or their, assigns, on paying the amount of purchase money so paid therefor, with ten per cent. interest thereon as aforesaid, and all the taxes that have been paid thereon by the purchaser, or his assigns, between the day of sale and the period of such redemption, with ten per cent. interest on the amount of such taxes, and also the full value of the improvements which may have been made or erected on such property, by the purchaser or his assigns, while the same was in his or their possession. And provided, moreover, That where the estate of the tenant in default, as for years, or for life or lives, shall be sufficient to defray the taxes chargeable thereupon, such estate only shall be liable to be sold under the provisions of this act.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for the collector or other officer (duly authorized) to postpone, after such advertisement, the sale of any property advertised according to the provisions of the foregoing section, to any future day, for the want of bidders, he giving public notice of such postponement, and the sale made at such postponed time shall be equally valid as if made on the day stated in the advertisement.

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That the person or persons appointed to collect any tax imposed by virtue of the powers granted by this act, shall have authority to collect the same by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the person chargeable therewith; but no such sale shall be made unless ten days' previous notice thereof be given in some newspaper printed in the city of Washington. And the provisions of the acts of Assembly of Maryland, now in force within the county of Washington, relating to the right of replevying personal property taken in execution for public taxes, shall apply to all cases of personal property taken by distress to satisfy taxes imposed by virtue of this act.

SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That the present boards of aldermen and common council shall, before the last Monday in May next, divide the said city into as many wards as in their opinion shall be most conducive to the interests of the city; and the boards of aldermen and common council, may, from time to time, as the interests of the city shall require, alter the number and boundaries of the said wards: Provided, That the said wards shall, at all times, be so laid off, altered, and bounded, that each ward shall comprise, as near as may be, an equal number of the inhabitants of the said city: And provided, however, That if such division shall not be made prior to the said last Monday in May, then the said city shall be divided into six wards, in manner following, to wit: All that part of said city to the westward of Sixteenth street west, shall constitute the first: that part to the eastward of Sixteenth street west, and to the westward of Tenth street west, shall constitute the second; that part to the eastward of Tenth street west, to the westward of First street west, and to the northward of E street south, shall constitute the third; that part to the eastward of First street west, to the westward of Eighth street east, and to the northward of E street south, shall constitute the fourth; that part to the eastward of Tenth street west, to the westward of Fourth street east, and to the southward of E street south, shall constitute the fifth; and the residue of the city shall constitute the sixth ward. And the board of aldermen shall, so soon as the same shall have been organized, on the second Monday in June next, divide the members into two classes, in manner following, to wit: Those members who are now in office, and, by virtue of their election in June last, shall be entitled to take their seats in the new board, as members from the wards in which they shall, respectively, reside, shall be placed in the first class; and those members who shall be elected from the same wards in June next, shall be placed in the second class; and the other members shall be placed in their respective classes by lot; and the seats

ACT OF RETROCESSION OF COUNTY OF ALEXANDRIA

AN ACT To retrocede the county of Alexandria, in the District of Columbia, to the State of Virginia

Whereas no more territory ought to be held under the exclusive legislation given to Congress over the District which is the seat of the General Government than may be necessary and proper for the purposes of such a seat; and whereas experience hath shown that the portion of the District of Columbia ceded to the United States by the State of Virginia has not been, nor is ever likely to be, necessary for that purpose; and whereas the State of Virginia, by an act passed on the third day of February, eighteen hundred and forty-six, entitled "An act accepting by the State of Virginia the county of Alexandria, in the District of Columbia, when the same shall be receded by the Congress of the United States," hath signified her willingness to take back the said territory ceded as aforesaid: Therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That with the assent of the people of the county and town of Alexandria, to be ascertained as hereinafter prescribed, all of that portion of the District of Columbia, ceded to the United States by the State of Virginia, and all the rights and jurisdiction therewith ceded over the same, be, and the same are hereby, ceded and forever relinquished to the State of Virginia, in full and absolute right and jurisdiction, as well of soil as of persons residing or to reside thereon.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to vest in the State of Virginia any right of property in the custom-house and post-office of the United States within the town of Alexandria, or in the soil of the territory hereby re-ceded, so as to affect the rights of individuals or corporations therein, otherwise than as the same shall or may be transferred by such individuals or corporations to the State of Virginia.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That the jurisdiction and laws now existing in the said territory, ceded to the United States by the State of Virginia, as aforesaid, over the persons and property of individuals therein residing, shall not cease or determine until the State of Virginia shall hereafter provide, by law, for the extension of her jurisdiction and judicial system over the said territory hereby re-ceded.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That this act shall not be in force until after the assent of the people of the county and town of Alexandria shall be given to it, in the mode hereinafter provided. Immediately after the close of the present session of Congress, the President of the United States shall appoint five commissioners, (any three of whom may act,) citizens of the said town or county of Alexandria, and freeholders within the same, who shall be sworn, before some justice of the peace in and for the said town or county, to discharge the duties hereby imposed upon them faithfully, impartially, and to the best of their ability. These commissioners, or any of them, shall proceed, within ten days after they are notified of their appointment, to fix upon the time, place, and manner, of taking the vote within the town or county of Alexandria, and shall give notice of the same by advertisement in the newspapers of the said town. And on the day and at the place so appointed, every free white male citizen of the United States, who shall have resided in said county of Alexandria for six months preceding the time when he offers his vote, insane persons and paupers excepted, shall vote viva voce upon the question of accepting or rejecting the provisions of this act. The said commissioners shall preside when this vote is taken, and decide all questions arising in relation to the right of voting under this act. Within three days after this vote is taken as aforesaid, the said commissioners shall make out three statements of the result of this poll, upon oath, and under their seals. Of these, one shall be transmitted to the President of the United States, one to the governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia, and one shall be deposited in the clerk's office of the county court of Alexandria. If a majority of the votes so given shall be cast against accepting the provisions of this act, then it shall be void and of no effect; but if a majority of the said votes should be in favor of accepting the provisions of this act, then this act shall be in full force, and it shall be the duty of the President of the United States to inform the governor of Virginia that this act is in full force and effect, and to make proclamation of the fact.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That, in such case, the right of property in the half square in Alexandria on which stands the courthouse, bounded by Columbus, Queen, and Princess streets, and the half square on which stands the jail, bounded by Princess, St. Asaph, and Pitt streets, shall be conveyed to the governor of Virginia, and his successors, for the use of the county and corporation of Alexandria forever; and the Solicitor of the Treasury of the United States is hereby authorized and required, in the name and on the behalf of the United States, to make all the proper and necessary conveyances for that purpose.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That Congress will in no event assume and pay the debt, or any part thereof, now due by the corporation of the city of Alexandria. (July 9, 1846, 9 Stat. 35, ch. 35.)

VIRGINIA ACT ACCEPTING RETROCESSION

AN ACT Accepting by the State of Virginia the county of Alexandria, in the District of Columbia, when the same shall be re-ceded by the Congress of the United States

[Passed February 3, 1846]

Whereas the general assembly of this commonwealth, on the third day of December, in the year seventeen hundred and eighty-nine, passed an act, entitled "an act for the cession of ten miles square, or any lesser quantity of territory within this state, to the United States, in congress assembled, for the permanent seat of the general government;" and by the said act it was enacted, that "a tract of country not exceeding ten miles square, or any lesser quantity, to be located within the limits of this state, and in any part thereof as congress may by law direct, shall be and the same is hereby forever ceded and relinquished to the congress and government of the United States, in full and absolute right, and exclusive jurisdiction as well of soil as of persons residing or to reside thereon, pursuant to the tenor and effect of the eighth section of the first article of the constitution of the government of the United States." And whereas the congress of the United States did, under the provisions of the said act, locate that portion of the territory of Virginia now known as the county of Alexandria in the District of Columbia, lying south and west of the river Potomac, and bounded by said river and the lines which separate the District of Columbia from Virginia: And whereas the congress of the United States, on the twenty-seventh day of February, in the year eighteen hundred and one, passed an act, entitled "an act concerning the District of Columbia," by the provisions of which act the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States was extended over the territory so located as aforesaid, which territory has since formed a part of the District of Columbia: And whereas a petition has been presented to the general assembly by the citizens residing in said county of Alexandria, representing that they now have pending before the congress of the United States an application for the re-cession of the said county of Alexandria to the commonwealth of Virginia, and praying the consent of the general assembly to such re-cession, and for the passage of a law to give effect thereto, if the same should be granted by congress; and as the prayer of the said petition is deemed reasonable,

1. Be it therefore enacted by the general assembly, That so soon as the congress of the United States shall by law re-cede to the commonwealth of Virginia the said county of Alexandria, and relinquish their exclusive jurisdiction, as well of territory as of persons residing or to reside thereon, the same shall be re-annexed to the said commonwealth, and constitute a portion thereof, subject to such reservation and provisions respecting the public property of the United States, as congress may enact in their act of re-cession.

2. Be it further enacted, That the general assembly hereby assents that the jurisdiction and laws of the United States, as well as the rights and privileges of the citizens of said county, and bodies politic and corporate thereof, shall continue in force and be exercised in like manner, and to the same extent, as they now exist, until the general assembly of Virginia shall by law provide for the government of said county under the constitution and laws of this commonwealth.

3. This act shall be in force from the passing thereof. (Virginia act, February 3, 1846, ch. 64.)

PROCLAMATION RELATIVE TO RETROCESSION

A proclamation by the President of the United States of America declaring Alexandria County to be retroceded to Virginia

Whereas, by the act of Congress, approved July 9, 1846, entitled "An Act to retrocede the County of Alexandria, in the District of Columbia, to the State of Virginia," it is enacted, That, with the assent of the people of the county and town of Alexandria, to be ascertained in the manner therein prescribed, all that portion of the District of Columbia ceded to the United States by the State of Virginia, and all the rights and jurisdiction therewith ceded over the same, shall be ceded and forever relinquished to the State of Virginia, in full and absolute right and jurisdiction, as well of soil as of persons residing or to reside thereon: And whereas, it is further provided, that the said act "shall not be in force until after the assent of the people of the county and town of Alexandria shall be given to it, in the mode therein provided;" and if a majority of the votes should be in favor of accepting the provisions of the said act, it shall be the duty of the President to make proclamation of the fact:

And whereas, on the 17th day of August, 1846, after the close of the late session of the Congress of the United States, I duly appointed five citizens of the county or town of Alexandria, being freeholders within the same, as commissioners, who, being duly sworn to perform the duties imposed on them, as prescribed in the said act, did proceed, within ten days after they were notified, to fix upon the first and second days of September, 1846, as the time, the court-house of the county of Alexandria, as the place, and viva voce as the manner of voting; and gave due notice of the same; and at the time, and at the place, in conformity with the said notice, the said commissioners presiding, and deciding all questions arising in relation to the right of voting under the said act, the votes of the citizens qualified to vote were taken viva voce, and recorded in poll-books, duly kept, and on the third day or [of] September instant, after the said polls were closed, the said commissioners did make out, and on the next day did transmit to me, a statement of the polls so held, upon oath, and under their seals; and of the votes so cast and polled, there were, in favor of accepting the provisions of the said act, seven hundred and sixty-three votes, and against accepting the same, two hundred and twenty-two—showing a majority of five hundred and forty-one votes for the acceptance of the same:

Now, therefore, be it known, that I, James K. Polk, President of the United States of America, in fulfilment of the duty imposed upon me by the said act of Congress, do hereby make proclamation of the "result" of said "poll," as above stated, and do call upon all and singular the persons whom it doth or may concern, to take notice, that the act aforesaid, "is in full force and effect."

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this seventh day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and of the Independence of the United States, the seventy-first.

JAMES K. POLK.

By the President.

N. P. TRIST,
Acting Secretary of State.

ACT OF 1862 RELATIVE TO HIGHWAYS IN THE COUNTY OF WASHINGTON

AN ACT Relating to highways in the county of Washington and District of Columbia

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, from and after the passage of this act, it shall be lawful for the levy court of Washington county, in the District of Columbia, to alter, repair, widen, and regulate the public roads and highways in said county, and to lay out additional roads as hereinafter specified.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That all roads within said county of Washington which have been used by the public for a period of twenty-five years or more as a highway, and have been recognized by the said levy court as public county roads, and for the repairs of which the said levy court has appropriated and expended money, are declared public highways, whether the same have been recorded or not; and any person who shall obstruct the free use of said highways, or any one of them, without authority from said levy court, shall be subject to a fine for each and every offence of not less than one hundred or more than two hundred and fifty dollars, to be imprisoned till the said fine and the costs of suit and collection of the same are paid; said fines to be collected in the name of the United States, for the use of the levy court.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That within one year from the passage of this act the levy court shall cause the surveyor of the said county of Washington to survey and plat all such roads as are named in the last preceding section, and have the same recorded among the records of said county now used for recording surveys and plats of other public county roads; and, in making said survey, the county surveyor shall follow, as nearly as possible, the lines and boundaries heretofore used and known as a highway, and he shall cause the lines and boundaries of the same to be permanently marked and fixed by the erection of stones or posts at the different angles thereof.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That all such roads as are named in the second section of this act as have been obstructed by any person or persons in any manner within the last six years shall be re-opened by the levy court, if, in the judgment of said court, the public convenience requires it; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person or persons who shall have obstructed the same, which expenses shall be collected as fines are required to be collected under the second section of this act.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That hereafter, in laying out new roads in said county of Washington, the levy court shall cause such roads to be of a width of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred feet, and it may also cause the width of any of the existing roads in said county to be increased to not more than one hundred feet, and change the location of any of them, as the said levy court may deem best for the public interest; and, for the purpose of opening or widening such roads, the said levy court is hereby empowered to cause to be condemned any land or lands necessary for the same, as other lands are now condemned by law.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That in any case where materials shall be necessary for making or repairing a public road, if the levy court cannot agree with the owner as to their purchase, the said court may proceed in the same manner for condemning said materials as in cases of condemnation of land for the purposes of a public road.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That no field or garden or yard, in actual cultivation, shall be laid open or used as a public highway until after the usual time of taking off the crops growing thereon.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That the requirement in the existing laws, that members of the levy court shall be appointed from amongst the justices of the peace in the county of Washington, is hereby repealed.

Approved, May 3, 1862 (12 Stat. 383, ch. 63).

ACT OF 1863 DEFINING POWERS OF LEVY COURT

AN ACT To define the powers and duties of the levy court of the county of Washington, District of Columbia, in regard to roads, and for other purposes

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the levy court of the county of Washington, District of Columbia, shall hereafter consist of nine members, to be appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, who shall hold their offices for the term of three years. But of the members to be first appointed one third shall be appointed and hold their offices for one year, or until the thirty-first day of December, eighteen hundred and sixty-three; one third for two years, or until the thirty-first of December, eighteen hundred and sixty-four; and one third for three years, or until the thirty-first of December, eighteen hundred and sixty-five. The terms of members shall commence on the first day of January, and end on the thirty-first day of December; and it shall be the duty of the President to nominate members, to fill the places of those whose term is about to expire, as early as the fifteenth day of December; and he may renominate any out-going member, should he think proper to do so. Of the nine members of the court, five shall be residents of the county, three of the city of Washington, and one of the city of Georgetown. In case of vacancies happening, the President shall fill them as other vacancies are filled; and the term of the person appointed to fill any vacancy shall expire when the term of him in whose place he is appointed would have expired.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That every person appointed as a member of the levy court shall, before he enters on his duties, take an oath faithfully to discharge the duties of the office, and also to support the Constitution of the United States; and he shall also take the oath of allegiance prescribed by the act of July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two. The members of said court shall hereafter be entitled to receive four dollars a day, each, for every day they shall attend a sitting of the court, and not absent themselves without permission of the court, and four dollars for every day they shall serve on a committee, to be paid by the county treasurer upon the certificate of the president of said court.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That the said court shall have the care and charge of, and the exclusive jurisdiction over, all the roads and bridges in said county, except such roads and bridges as belong to and are under the care of the United States. And the said court shall have power, and it shall be their duty—

First. To lay out, alter, repair, discontinue, and regulate any of the public roads and highways within said county, and at any time hereafter to inquire and to decide whether any road in said county held by any incorporated company, has been, and is at the time of such inquiry, kept in the condition required by the charter thereof, and if not, to take legal proceedings to acquire possession of the same as other county roads.

Second. To levy and collect taxes for that purpose upon and from the inhabitants of said county, of the age of twenty-one years and over; those having no property to assess to be assessed to labor.

Third. To appoint, annually, and take bond and security from, a clerk and treasurer, and also to appoint a collector of taxes, who shall have power to collect all the taxes (not to be paid in labor) levied by said court, and to proceed to collect the same, in such manner and within such periods of time as the said levy court may direct.

Fourth. To appoint, annually, a general superintendent of roads and such number of supervisors of roads as they may deem expedient; to remove them, as well as the clerk and treasurer and tax collector, whenever, in their judgment, there is sufficient cause, or the public interests will be subserved thereby.

Fifth. To cause bridges to be erected whenever necessary or convenient, and to keep all bridges in good repair.

Sixth. To fix, from time to time, the pay of the clerk, treasurer, tax collector, superintendent, and supervisors of roads, and the rates per day or hour, to be paid for labor to be performed by men or teams when employed upon roads or bridges.

Seventh. To levy a tax upon all lands and other assessable property lying in said county, at a rate not exceeding one dollar in the hundred dollars of their valuation, and also a tax of not exceeding one dollar each on dogs.

Eighth. To require reports or the rendition of accounts from the collector of taxes, the treasurer of the county, and from supervisors of roads, whenever they shall deem it expedient or proper. Also, reports from supervisors as to the condition of the roads and bridges in their respective districts, and estimates of the probable amount that will be required to put and keep the same in good repair for the ensuing year.

Ninth. To pass ordinances imposing fines for trespassing upon or obstructing or injuring any road or trees therein, or bridge, in said county, and to empower and require the tax collector to collect the same in the same manner as other fines are now collected, and to exercise a general police power over all roads and bridges in said county.

Tenth. To lay out private roads.

Eleventh. To provide for the maintenance and support of the poor; to erect a "poor-house" for that purpose, if deemed by said court necessary and proper; and, in addition to the tax otherwise herein authorized, to levy and collect a tax on real and personal property in said county to pay for the same. The powers herein given are to apply only to that portion of the county not included within the corporate bounds of Washington and Georgetown.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the said court may authorize any portion, not exceeding three fourths of the taxes levied for road and bridge purposes, to be paid in labor, of men, horses, mules, oxen, the use of ploughs, cars, and wagons, at rates per day or hour, for each to be fixed by said court. But in case any one assessed shall have no visible property, and shall prefer it, he may pay the whole of his tax in labor. All labor upon roads and bridges shall be performed at such times and places as the superintendent of roads shall direct, and under his supervision, or that of the supervisor of the road, or such other person as may be appointed to superintend the work. And it shall be the duty of the superintendent to notify all persons liable to pay road tax, or to labor on roads, of the time and place, when and where they must appear and perform such labor, at least one week before the day they are required to appear. And he may notify such as have teams of horses, mules, or oxen, or may have a cart or wagon, to come or send an able-bodied hand with such team, cart or wagon, to be used in repairing or making roads or bridges; such notice to be given personally or in writing left at the residence of the individual notified. If the person so notified shall fail to appear at the time and place, or send an able-bodied substitute, or shall not conform to the directions of the person having charge of the work, or shall not labor diligently, in the latter case he shall be dismissed, and in either case he shall pay the whole amount of his road tax in cash, with an addition of twenty per centum thereon. For the convenience of the tax collector and the superintendent of roads, it shall be the duty of all tax-payers who desire to work out that portion of their road tax which is herein provided they may work out, as early as the first Monday of April of each year, to give notice to the supervisor of their district of such desire, and such supervisor shall notify the tax collector. But in case any one shall fail to perform the labor required of him, the tax collector shall, upon being notified thereof, collect the said tax in cash, with the twenty per centum added.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the superintendent and supervisors of roads to have at least three fourths of the work to be done on them during the year performed as early as the middle of July; and in making and repairing the roads they shall be raised full twelve inches higher in the middle than at the sides, and shall be gradually rounded off to the gutters, which shall be made capacious enough to carry off all the falling water.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That no bill for labor performed upon any road or bridge shall be allowed or paid to any supervisor by the levy court which is not accompanied by a certificate of the superintendent of roads that he has personally examined the road or bridge so made or repaired, and that the work has been well done and according to law, and that the charges are reasonable and just: Provided, however, That one or more members of the court, to be appointed for that purpose, may, after personal examination, make such certificate.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That on extraordinary occasions, when any public road or bridge shall be destroyed, or so injured as to require immediate repair, it shall be the duty of the superintendent as well as the supervisor of the road to cause the necessary repairs to be forthwith made; and if there are no funds in hand with which to hire laborers and teams, or if laborers and teams cannot be otherwise procured, the said supervisor shall immediately summon a sufficient number of men living nearest the place to appear and labor on said road or bridge until it shall be repaired; and he may also require any person owning a team and living within a reasonable distance to appear with said team and cart or wagon and plough. And if any one thus called upon, having received two days' notice, shall neglect or refuse to appear and labor, or send an ablebodied substitute, or shall refuse his team, cart, wagon, or plough, he shall forfeit and pay to the levy court a sum not less than three dollars, nor more than ten, to be recovered before any justice of the peace in said county, with costs. For labor, the use of teams, and other necessary implements, performed and furnished on such occasions, a just and fair compensation shall be paid, to be fixed by the said court.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That whenever the levy court shall deem it conducive to the public interests to open a new road, or change the course of an old one, they shall direct the route of such road to be surveyed by the county surveyor, and a plat or map of the same to be prepared. They shall then cause notice to be given, by advertisement, twice a week for three weeks, of the proposed opening of the new road, or of the alteration of an existing one, calling upon all persons who may have any objections thereto to present them to the court at its next regular meeting. If any objections are made, the court shall then and there hear them. If the route only is objected to, and another or others suggested as more advantageous, the court may adopt it, or appoint five discreet, disinterested men, of whom the county surveyor shall be one, to examine all the proposed routes, and report such an one as they shall deem most feasible and advantageous to the county, and such report shall be made to the court at its next session. If no objection to the opening or altering a road by the owners of the land through which it must pass after such notice [is made], it shall be taken for granted that no damages are or will be claimed, and the road may be recorded and opened, and shall then be a public road or highway; but if any owner or owners of the land shall object and claim damages, and the court cannot agree with such owner or owners upon the amount, then the court shall direct the marshal of the District to summon a jury of seven judicious, disinterested men, not related to any party interested, to be and appear on the premises on a day specified to assess the damages, if any, which each owner of land through which the road is to pass may sustain by reason thereof. And the marshal shall summon such jury, and administer an oath or affirmation to them that they will, without favor or partiality to any one, to the best of their judgment, decide what damage, if any, each owner may sustain by reason of running the road through his premises; but in doing this they shall take into consideration the benefit it may be to him or her by enhancing the value of his or her land, or otherwise, and give their verdict accordingly. It shall be the duty of the marshal, upon receiving the order from the court, to give the owner or owners aforesaid not less than ten days' notice of the time and place of the meeting of the jury to assess their damages. In cases where notice cannot be served on the owner or owners, the same proceedings shall be had as is provided in this section in the case of minors. The jury, having been upon the premises and assessed the damages, shall make out a written verdict, to be signed by them, or a majority of them, and attested by the marshal, which the marshal shall transmit to the court at its next session and which shall be recorded. If the court or any owner or owners of the land aforesaid are dissatisfied with the verdict thus rendered, and no arrangement being made between the court and the said owner or owners, the court shall order the marshal to summon a second jury of twelve judicious, disinterested men, not related to any one interested, to meet and view the premises, giving the parties interested at least ten days' notice of the time and place of meeting. And the marshal and jury shall proceed as before directed in regard to the first jury. And the verdict, signed by each of the jurors, or a majority of them, shall be returned to the court at its next session, and recorded as final and conclusive, and the road shall then be declared a public road, and the court shall order it to be opened as such. And the same mode of proceeding shall be observed in cases where application shall be made to the court by the residents of the county to lay out a new, or alter any existing road. In all cases where the land through which it is proposed to run a road shall belong to a minor or minors, it shall be presumed that objection is made, and the damages assessed accordingly. In all cases where it becomes necessary to summon a second jury to assess damages, if the amount assessed by the second jury shall not be greater than the amount assessed by the first, the costs of the second jury shall be paid by the party or parties objecting to the first verdict; but if greater, they shall be paid by the county. All expenses up to the second jury shall be paid by the county.

MARSHAL'S FEES

For summoning each juror the marshal shall be entitled to fifty cents.

For travel, per mile, going and coming to the premises to be examined, twelve and a half cents.

For each day's attendance, two dollars and fifty cents.

JUROR'S FEES

For each day's attendance, two dollars.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That in any case where materials of any kind shall be deemed necessary for making or repairing a public road, if the levy court cannot agree with the owner as to their purchase, the said court may proceed in the same manner for condemning said materials as in cases of condemnation of land for the purposes of a public road, as is provided for in the next preceding section of this act.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That said levy court shall have full power to make sanitary rules and regulations in said county, to abate nuisances, and to pass such ordinances as it may deem necessary for their condemnation and removal, and for the punishment of persons creating them or suffering them to exist on their premises; which punishment shall not exceed a fine of twenty dollars, for the use of the county, or imprisonment in the county jail thirty days for each offence. Said levy court shall also have power to pass such ordinances as it may deem necessary to effectually prevent Sabbath-breaking in said county by hunting, gaming, fishing, or otherwise, on Sunday; to prohibit the killing of such game as said court may think proper during certain periods; to regulate fishing in the waters of said county, and to provide for sufficient penalties for the violation thereof. And it shall be the duty of the metropolitan police of the District of Columbia to enforce any and all of the ordinances of the said levy court in the same manner as they are now required to enforce the ordinances of the cities of Washington and Georgetown; the funds required for that purpose to be paid by said levy court from the county treasury. And from and after the passage of this act the duties of county constable shall be confined exclusively to the service of civil process and the collection of strictly private debts within the said District of Columbia. And each of the county constables holding office at the time of the passage of this act, and each of said constables hereafter appointed, shall, before performing any duties required to be performed in his said office, take the oath of allegiance required by the act of July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, in addition to any oath of office required of him at the time, and shall moreover enter into a bond to the United States in the sum of five thousand dollars, with security to be approved by the clerk of the circuit court, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, and for the punctual payment of all moneys coming into his hands to the persons entitled to receive the same, and shall renew the said bond on the thirty-first day of June in every alternate year of his continuance in office.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That the act entitled "An act to authorize the levy court to issue tavern and other licenses in the District of Columbia," approved June twelfth, eighteen hundred and sixty, be so extended as to authorize the levy court to grant licenses to wholesale and retail dealers in goods, wares, or merchandise in the county of Washington outside the limits of the cities of Washington and Georgetown, under such restrictions and penalties as the said levy court may deem expedient

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That fines, under any of the ordinances of the levy court, may be recovered in the name, and for the use, of said levy court, before any magistrate of said county of Washington, and the person or persons against whom a fine may be imposed shall pay the same at the time it is so imposed with costs, or give security for the payment of such fine and costs, as required by the sixth section of an act entitled "An act to amend 'An act to create a metropolitan police district of the District of Columbia, and to establish a police therefor,'" approved August six, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, or shall stand committed till the whole is paid.

SEC. 13. And be it further enacted, That all laws inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Approved, March 3, 1863 (12 Stat. 799, ch. 106).

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all that part of the territory of the United States included within the limits of the District of Columbia be, and the same is hereby, created into a government by the name of the District of Columbia, by which name it is hereby constituted a body corporate for municipal purposes, and may contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, have a seal, and exercise all other powers of a municipal corporation not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States and the provisions of this act.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the executive power and authority in and over said District of Columbia shall be vested in a governor, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and who shall hold his office for four years, and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified. The governor shall be a citizen of and shall have resided within said District twelve months before his appointment, and have the qualifications of an elector. He may grant pardons and respites for offenses against the laws of said District enacted by the legislative assembly thereof; he shall commission all officers who shall be elected or appointed to office under the laws of the said District enacted as aforesaid, and shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That every bill which shall have passed the council and house of delegates shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the District of Columbia; if he approve, he shall sign it, but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two thirds of all the members appointed or elected to the house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two thirds of all the members appointed or elected to that house, it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislative assembly by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

Said commissioners shall each, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, take an oath to support the Constitution of the United States and to faithfully discharge the duties imposed upon him by law; and shall each give bond in the penal sum of fifty thousand dollars, to be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office; and shall each receive for his services a compensation at the rate of five thousand dollars per annum: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be construed to abate or in any wise interfere with any suit pending in favor of or against the District of Columbia: And provided further, That in suits hereafter commenced against the District of Columbia, process may be served on any one of said commissioners, until otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 3. That the President of the United States shall detail an officer of the Engineer Corps of the Army of the United States, who shall, subject to the general supervision and direction of the said board of commissioners, have the control and charge of the work of repair and improvement of all streets, avenues, alleys, sewers, roads, and bridges of the District of Columbia; and he is hereby vested with all the power and authority of, and shall perform the duties heretofore devolved upon, the chief engineer of the board of public works. He shall take possession of, and preserve and keep, all the instruments pertaining to said office, and all the maps, charts, surveys, books, records, and papers relating to said District, or to any of the avenues, streets, alleys, public spaces, squares, lots and buildings thereon, sewers, or any of them. as are now in or belonging to the office of said engineer of the board of public works, and shall, in books provided for that purpose, keep and preserve the records now required to be kept, and such as may be required by regulations of said board. He may, with the advice and consent of said board of commissioners, appoint not more than two assistant engineers from civil life, who shall each receive a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum, and shall be subject to his direction and control. He shall receive no additional compensation for such services. And he shall not be deemed by reason of anything in this act contained to hold a civil office under the laws of the United States. as now provided by law for the assessment and collection of general taxes for the District of Columbia; and of the sums so collected, one fourth thereof shall be applied, first, to re-imburse the United States for its advances on account of interest, which shall have been paid by the United States on the funded debt of the District of Columbia and Washington and Georgetown, due and payable July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-four; and the remainder shall be used to pay deficiencies in the various funds for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four. And all the remainder of said taxes not required for the aforesaid purposes shall be distributed for the purposes and in the proportions provided by the act of the legislative assembly of the District of Columbia, approved June twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, entitled "An act imposing taxes for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four," so far as said apportionment is not inconsistent with this act: Provided, That no evidence of debt issued by the District of Columbia, or any branch thereof, or by the board of public works, shall in any manner be received in payment for said taxes: And provided further, That no payment shall be made on account of the militia of said District, or for the purpose of erecting a District jail. And all the provisions of said act as to the sale of property and the collection of taxes in arrears are hereby made applicable to the taxes hereby imposed and in arrears as aforesaid, except that the deed conveying the property so sold shall be executed by the said board of commissioners instead of the governor and the secretary.

SEC. 5. That a joint select committee shall be appointed, consisting of two Senators, to be appointed by the presiding officer of the Senate, and two members of the House, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, whose duty it shall be to prepare a suitable frame of government for the District of Columbia and appropriate draughts of statutes to be enacted by Congress for carrying the same into effect, and report the same to the two Houses, respectively, on the first day of the next session thereof; and they shall also prepare and submit to Congress a statement of the proper proportion of the expenses of said government, or any branch thereof, including interest on the funded debt, which should be borne by said District and the United States, respectively, together with the reasons upon which their conclusions may be based; and in the discharge of the duty hereby imposed, said committee is authorized to employ such assistance as it may deem advisable, at an expense not to exceed the sum of five thousand dollars; and said sum, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated for that purpose.

And it shall further be the duty of said board to ascertain the amount of sewer-tax or assessment paid by any person, persons, or corporation, under the act of the legislative assembly of said District, entitled "An act creating drainage and sewerage sections in the cities of Washington and Georgetown, in the District of Columbia, and providing for the payment of the construction of sewers and drains therein by assessments, and issuing certificates therefor," approved the twenty-sixth day of June, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, and to prepare a tabulated statement thereof. Said board of audit shall also issue to each claimant a certificate, signed by each of said board and countersigned by the comptroller of said District, stating the amount found to be due to each and on what account; and a register thereof shall be kept by said board, to be transmitted to Congress, and also by the comptroller of said District; and said board of audit shall also ascertain and report to Congress, at the next session thereof, the amount equitably chargeable to the street-railroad companies on account of paving along and within the tracks of said companies, pursuant to the charters of said companies or the acts of Congress relating thereto, together with their reasons therefor. It shall further be the duty of said board of audit to examine into and audit all of the accounts of the auditor and of the treasurer of the board of public works, and of the auditor, the treasurer, the collector, and the comptroller of the District of Columbia, from the date of the organization of said board and of the present government of said District; and for the purposes hereinbefore specified shall have the power to subpœna witnesses, administer oaths, and examine witnesses under oath, and shall have full access to all of the records, books, papers, and vouchers of every kind whatsoever of the board of public works and of the District of Columbia; and to the end that said books and accounts may be thoroughly examined, and the indebtedness of said District, and of the board of public works, and the state of the books and accounts of each of the officers aforesaid, may be accurately ascertained, shall employ one or more skillful and impartial accountants non-resident of the District of Columbia, and such other assistants as they may deem necessary, to make examination of said books, vouchers, and papers, and discharge their other duties under this act, and shall procure inspection of such bank books and papers as may be necessary; and they are hereby authorized to allow for the services of such accountant or accountants and assistants such sums as they may deem proper which shall be paid by the Board of Commissioners out of the revenues of said District. And said accountant or accountants shall take an oath to faithfully discharge the duties imposed by this act. Said board of audit shall give notice for the presentation of the claims hereinbefore specified in such manner as may be deemed necessary; and no claim shall be audited or allowed unless presented within ninety days after the first publication of such notice, and said board shall make full report of all their acts and proceedings to the President, to be by him transmitted to Congress on the first day of the next session thereof. Each of the said officers constituting said board shall be paid the sum of two thousand dollars for his services under this act, out of the funds of said District, in addition to his present compensation.

SEC. 7. That the sinking-fund commissioners of said District are hereby continued; and it shall be the duty of said sinking fund commissioners to cause bonds of the District of Columbia to be prepared, in sums of fifty and five hundred dollars, bearing date August first, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, payable fifty years after date, bearing interest at the rate of three and sixty-five hundredths per centum per annum, payable semiannually, to be signed by the secretary and the treasurer of said sinking-fund commissioners and countersigned by the comptroller of said District, and sealed as the board may direct; which bonds shall be exempt from taxation by Federal, State, or municipal authority, engraved and printed at the expense of the District of Columbia, and in form not inconsistent herewith. And the faith of the United States is hereby pledged that the United States will, by proper proportional appropriations as contemplated in this act, and by causing to be levied upon the property within said District such taxes as will provide the revenues necessary to pay the interest on said bonds as the same may become due and payable, and create a sinking-fund for the payment of the principal thereof at maturity. Said bonds shall be numbered consecutively, and registered in the office of the comptroller of said District, and shall also be registered in the office of the Register of the Treasury of the United States, for which last named registration the Secretary of the Treasury shall make such provision as may be necessary. And said commissioners shall use all necessary means for the prevention of any unauthorized or fraudulent issue of any such bonds. And the said sinking-fund commissioners are hereby authorized to exchange said bonds at par for like sums of any class of indebtedness in the preceding section of this act named, including sewer taxes or assessments paid, evidenced by certificates of the auditing board provided for in this act.

SEC. 8. That the authority conferred on the board of public works to issue additional certificates of indebtedness by section four of the act of the legislative assembly approved on the twenty-ninth day of May, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, is hereby annulled. No property shall be advertised for sale or sold for the collection of any assessment authorized by the legislative assembly by the act entitled "An act creating drainage and sewerage sections in the cities of Washington and Georgetown, in the District of Columbia, and providing for the payment of the construction of sewers and drains therein by assessments and issuing certificates therefor" approved on the twenty-sixth day of June, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, until otherwise ordered by Congress; and it shall be unlawful to issue any further certificates of indebtedness authorized by said act.

SEC. 9. That no board or commission of which the governor is ex officio a member (the board of public works excepted) shall be abolished by this act, but the members of the same, other than the governor, shall constitute such board or commission.

SEC. 10. That the act of the legislative assembly of the District of Columbia entitled "An act to fund unsettled liabilities of the city of Washington, and providing for the issuing of the bonds, and levying and collecting taxes to pay the same" approved June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, is hereby ratified and approved; but none of the bonds authorized by said act remaining unsold shall be negotiated or sold at less than par.

Approved, June 20, 1874 (18 Stat. 116, ch. 337).

PRESENT ORGANIC ACT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

AN ACT Providing a permanent form of government for the District of Columbia

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all the territory which was ceded by the State of Maryland to the Congress of the United States for the permanent seat of the government of the United States shall continue to be designated as the District of Columbia. Said District and the property and persons that may be therein shall be subject to the following provisions for the government of the same, and also to any existing laws applicable thereto not hereby repealed or inconsistent with the provisions of this act. The District of Columbia shall remain and continue a municipal corporation, as provided in section two of the Revised Statutes relating to said District, and the Commissioners herein provided for shall be deemed and taken as officers of such corporation; and all laws now in force relating to the District of Columbia not inconsistent with the provisions of this act shall remain in full force and effect.

SEC. 2. That within twenty days after the approval of this act the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, is hereby authorized to appoint two persons, who, with an officer of the Corps of Engineers of the United States Army, whose lineal rank shall be above that of captain, shall be Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and who, from and after July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, shall exercise all the powers and authority now vested in the Commissioners of said District, except as are hereinafter limited or provided, and shall be subject to all restrictions and limitations and duties which are now imposed upon said Commissioners. The Commissioner who shall be an officer detailed, from time to time, from the Corps of Engineers, by the President, for this duty, shall not be required to perform any other, nor shall he receive any other compensation than his regular pay and allowances as an officer of the Army. The two persons appointed from civil life shall, at the time of their appointment, be citizens of the United States, and shall have been actual residents of the District of Columbia for three years next before their appointment, and have, during that period, claimed residence nowhere else, and one of said three Commissioners shall be chosen president of the Board of Commissioners at their first meeting, and annually and whenever a vacancy shall occur, thereafter; and said Commissioners shall each of them, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, take an oath or affirmation to support the Constitution of the United States, and to faithfully discharge the duties imposed upon him by law; and said Commissioners appointed from civil life, shall each receive for his services a compensation at the rate of five thousand dollars per annum, and shall, before entering upon the duties of the office, each give bond in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, with surety as is required by existing law. The official term of said Commissioners appointed from civil life shall be three years, and until their successors are appointed and qualified; but the first appointment shall be one Commissioner for one year and one for two years, and at the expiration of their respective terms their successors shall be appointed for three years. Neither of said Commissioners, nor any officer whatsoever of the District of Columbia, shall be accepted as surety upon any bond required to be given to the District of Columbia; nor shall any contractor be accepted as surety for any officer or other contractor in said District.

SEC. 3. That as soon as the Commissioners appointed and detailed as aforesaid shall have taken and subscribed the oath or affirmation hereinbefore required, all the powers, rights, duties, and privileges lawfully exercised by, and all property, estate, and effects now vested by law in the Commissioners appointed under the provisions of the act of Congress approved June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, shall be transferred to and vested in and imposed upon said Commissioners; and the functions of the Commissioners so appointed under the act of June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, shall cease and determine. And the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall have power, subject to the limitations and provisions herein contained, to apply the taxes or other revenues of said District to the payment of the current expenses thereof, to the support of the public schools, the fire department, and the police, and for that purpose shall take possession and supervision of all the offices, books, papers, records, moneys, credits, securities, assets, and accounts belonging or appertaining to the business or interests of the government of the District of Columbia, and exercise the duties, powers, and authority aforesaid; but said Commissioners, in the exercise of such duties, powers, and authority, shall make no contract, nor incur any obligation other than such contracts and obligations as are hereinafter provided for and shall be approved by Congress. The Commissioners shall have power to locate the places where hacks shall stand and change them as often as the public interests require. Any person violating any orders lawfully made in pursuance of this power shall be subject to a fine of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars, to be recovered before any justice of the peace in an action in the name of the Commissioners. All taxes heretofore lawfully assessed and due, or to become due, shall be collected pursuant to law, except as herein otherwise provided; but said Commissioners shall have no power to anticipate taxes by a sale or hypothecation of any such taxes or evidences thereof, but they may borrow, for the first fiscal year after this act takes effect, in anticipation of collection of revenues, not to exceed two hundred thousand dollars, at a rate of interest not exceeding five per centum per annum, which shall be repaid out of the revenues of that year. And said Commissioners are hereby authorized to abolish any office, to consolidate two or more offices, reduce the number of employees, remove from office, and make appointments to any office under them authorized by law; said Commissioners shall have power to erect light, and maintain lamp-posts, with lamps, outside of the city limits, when, in their judgment, it shall be deemed proper or necessary: Provided, That nothing in this act contained shall be construed to abate in any wise or interfere with any suit pending in favor of or against the District of Columbia or the Commissioners thereof, or affect any right, penalty, forfeiture, or cause of action existing in favor of said District or Commissioners, or any citizen of the District of Columbia, or any other person, but the same may be commenced, proceeded for, or prosecuted to final judgment, and the corporation shall be bound thereby as if the suit had been originally commenced for or against said corporation. The said Commissioners shall submit to the Secretary of the Treasury for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, and annually thereafter, for his examination and approval, a statement showing in detail the work proposed to be undertaken by them during the fiscal year next ensuing, and the estimated cost thereof; also the cost of constructing, repairing, and maintaining all bridges authorized by law across the Potomac River within the District of Columbia, and also all other streams in said District; the cost of maintaining all public institutions of charity, reformatories, and prisons belonging to or controlled wholly or in part by the District of Columbia, and which are now by law supported wholly or in part by the United States or District of Columbia; and also the expenses of the Washington Aqueduct and its appurtenances; and also an itemized statement and estimate of the amount necessary to defray the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for the next fiscal year: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed as transferring from the United States authorities any of the public works within the District of Columbia now in the control or supervision of said authorities. The Secretary of the Treasury shall carefully consider all estimates submitted to him as above provided, and shall approve, disapprove, or suggest such changes in the same, or any item thereof, as he may think the public interest demands; and after he shall have considered and passed upon such estimates submitted to him, he shall cause to be made a statement of the amount approved by him and the fund or purpose to which each item belongs, which statement shall be certified by him, and delivered, together with the estimates as originally submitted, to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, who shall transmit the same to Congress. To the extent to which Congress shall approve of said estimates, Congress shall appropriate the amount of fifty per centum thereof; and the remaining fifty per centum of such approved estimates shall be levied and assessed upon the taxable property and privileges in said District other than the property of the United States and of the District of Columbia; and all proceedings in the assessing, equalizing, and levying of said taxes, the collection thereof, the listing return and penalty for taxes in arrears, the advertising for sale and the sale of property for delinquent taxes, the redemption thereof, the proceedings to enforce the lien upon unredeemed property, and every other act and thing now required to be done in the premises, shall be done and performed at the times and in the manner now provided by law, except in so far as is otherwise provided by this act: Provided, That the rate of taxation in any one year shall not exceed one dollar and fifty cents on every one hundred dollars of real estate not exempted by law; and on personal property not taxable elsewhere, one dollar and fifty cents on every one hundred dollars, according to the cash valuation thereof: And provided further, Upon real property held and used exclusively for agricultural purposes, without the limits of the cities of Washington and Georgetown, and to be so designated by the assessors in their annual returns, the rate for any one year shall not exceed one dollar on every one hundred dollars. The collector of taxes, upon the receipt of the duplicate of assessment, shall give notice for one week, in one newspaper published in the city of Washington, that he is ready to receive taxes; and any person who shall, within thirty days after such notice given, pay the taxes assessed against him, shall be allowed by the collector a deduction of five per centum on the amount of his tax; all penalties imposed by the act approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, chapter one hundred and seventeen, upon delinquents for default in the payment of taxes levied under said act, at the times specified therein, shall, upon payment of the said taxes assessed against such delinquents within three months from the passage of this act, with interest at the rate of six per centum thereon, be remitted.

SEC. 4. That the said Commissioners may, by general regulations consistent with the act of Congress of March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, entitled "An act for the support of the government of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, and for other purposes," or with other existing laws, prescribe the time or times for the payment of all taxes and the duties of assessors and collectors in relation thereto. All taxes collected shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States, and the same, as well as the appropriations to be made by Congress as aforesaid shall be disbursed for the expenses of said District, on itemized vouchers, which shall have been audited and approved by the auditor of the District of Columbia, certified by said Commissioners, or a majority of them; and the accounts of said Commissioners, and the tax-collectors, and all other officers required to account, shall be settled and adjusted by the accounting officers of the Treasury Department of the United States. Hereafter the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay the interest on the three-sixty-five bonds of the District of Columbia issued in pursuance of the act of Congress approved June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, when the same shall become due and payable; and all amounts so paid shall be credited as a part of the appropriation for the year by the United States toward the expenses of the District of Columbia, as hereinbefore provided.

SEC. 5. That hereafter when any repairs of streets, avenues, alleys, or sewers within the District of Columbia are to be made, or when new pavements are to be substituted in place of those worn out, new ones laid, or new streets opened, sewers built, or any works the total cost of which shall exceed the sum of one thousand dollars, notice shall be given in one newspaper in Washington and if the total cost shall exceed five thousand dollars, then in one newspaper in each of the cities of New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore also for one week, for proposals, with full specifications as to materials for the whole or any portion of the works proposed to be done; and the lowest responsible proposal for the kind and character of pavement or other work which the Commissioners shall determine upon shall in all cases be accepted: Provided, however, That the Commissioners shall have the right, in their discretion, to reject all of such proposals: Provided, That work capable of being executed under a single contract shall not be subdivided so as to reduce the sum of money to be paid therefor to less than one thousand dollars. All contracts for the construction, improvement, alteration, or repairs of the streets, avenues, highways, alleys, gutters, sewers, and all work of like nature shall be made and entered into only by and with the official unanimous consent of the Commissioners of the District, and all contracts shall be copied in a book kept for that purpose and be signed by the said Commissioners, and no contract involving an expenditure of more than one hundred dollars shall be valid until recorded and signed as aforesaid. No pavement shall be accepted nor any pavement laid except that of the best material of its kind known for that purpose, laid in the most substantial manner; and good and sufficient bonds to the United States, in a penal sum not less than the amount of the contract, with sureties to be approved by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, shall be required from all contractors, guaranteeing that the terms of their contracts shall be strictly and faithfully performed to the satisfaction of and acceptance by said Commissioners; and that the contractors shall keep new pavements or other new works in repair for a term of five years from the date of the completion of their contracts; and ten per centum of the cost of all new works shall be retained as an additional security and a guarantee fund to keep the same in repair for said term, which said per centum shall be invested in registered bonds of the United States or of the District of Columbia and the interest thereon paid to said contractors. 2. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the mayor, recorder, aldermen, and common council, of Georgetown, be, and they are hereby, authorized and empowered to pass, make, and ordain, all laws necessary to take up, fine, imprison, or punish, any and all vagrants, loose and disorderly persons, and persons having no visible means of support, that may be found within the limits or jurisdiction of said town; provided, that they shall not in any case pass, make, or ordain, any law to fine for any one offence a sum exceeding twenty dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days.

6. And be it enacted, That the said mayor, recorder, aldermen, and common council, shall have full power and authority to make such by-laws and ordinances for the graduation and leveling of the streets, lanes, and alleys, within the jurisdiction of the same town, as they may judge necessary for the benefit thereof.

The act of Oct. 31, 1945, ch. 443, titles I and II, §§ 101–108, 201, 59 Stat. 552, 554, provided:

"SEC. 101. The boundary line between the District of Columbia and the Commonwealth of Virginia is hereby established as follows:

"Said boundary line shall begin at a point where the northwest boundary of the District of Columbia intercepts [1] the high-water mark on the Virginia shore of the Potomac River and following the present mean high-water mark; thence in a southeasterly direction along the Virginia shore of the Potomac River to Little River, along the Virginia shore of Little River to Boundary Channel, along the Virginia side of Boundary Channel to the main body of the Potomac River, along the Virginia side of the Potomac River across the mouths of all tributaries affected by the tides of the river to Second Street, Alexandria, Virginia, from Second Street to the present established pierhead line, and following said pierhead line to its connection with the District of Columbia-Maryland boundary line; that whenever said mean high-water mark on the Virginia shore is altered by artificial fills and excavations made by the United States, or by alluvion or erosion, then the boundary shall follow the new mean high-water mark on the Virginia shore as altered, or whenever the location of the pierhead line along the Alexandria water front is altered, then the boundary shall follow the new location of the pierhead line.

"SEC. 102. All that part of the territory situated on the Virginia side of the Potomac River lying between the boundary line as described in section 101 and the mean high-water mark as it existed January 24, 1791, is hereby ceded to and declared to be henceforth within the territorial boundaries, jurisdiction, and sovereignty of the State of Virginia: Provided, however, That concurrent jurisdiction over the said area is hereby reserved to the United States.

"SEC. 103. Nothing in this Act shall be construed as relinquishing any right, title, or interest of the United States to the lands lying between the mean high-water mark as it existed January 24, 1791, and the boundary line as described in section 101; or to limit the right of the United States to establish its title to any of said lands as provided by Act of Congress of April 27, 1912 (37 Stat. 93); or the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States for the District of Columbia to hear and determine suits to establish the title of the United States in all lands in the bed, marshes, and lowlands of the Potomac River, and other lands as described by said Act below the mean high-water mark of January 24, 1791; or to limit the authority to make equitable adjustments of conflicting claims as provided for in the Act approved June 4, 1934 (48 Stat. 836).

"SEC. 104. The 'present' mean high-water mark shall be construed as the mean high-water mark existing on the effective date of this Act.

"SEC. 105. The United States Coast and Geodetic Survey is hereby authorized, empowered, and instructed to survey and properly mark by suitable monuments the said boundary line as described in section 101, and from time to time to monument such sections of said boundary line as may be changed as provided for in section 101; and the necessary appropriations for this work are hereby authorized.

"SEC. 106. The provisions of sections 272 to 289, inclusive, of the Criminal Code (U. S. C., title 18, secs. 451–468) shall be applicable to such portions of the George Washington Memorial Parkway and of the Washington National Airport as are situated within the Commonwealth of Virginia. Any United States commissioner specially designated for that purpose by the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Virginia shall have jurisdiction to try and, if found guilty, to sentence persons charged with petty offenses against the laws of the United States committed on the above-described portions of the said parkway or airport. The probation laws shall be applicable to persons so tried. For the purposes of this section, the term 'petty offense' shall be defined as in section 335 of the Criminal Code (U. S. C., title 18, sec. 541). If any person charged with any petty offense as aforesaid shall so elect, however, he shall be tried in the said district court.

"SEC. 107. The State [2] of Virginia hereby consents that exclusive jurisdiction in the Washington National Airport (as described in sec. 1 (b) of the Act of June 29, 1940 (54 Stat. 686)), title to which is now in the United States, shall be in the United States. The conditions upon which this consent is given are the following and none others: (1) There is hereby reserved in the Commonwealth of Virginia the jurisdiction and power to levy a tax on the sale of oil, gasoline, and all other motor fuels and lubricants sold on the Washington National Airport for use in over-the-road vehicles such as trucks, busses, and automobiles, except sales to the United States: Provided, That the Commonwealth of Virginia shall have no jurisdiction or power to levy a tax on the sale or use of oil, gasoline, or other motor fuels and lubricants for other purposes; (2) there is hereby expressly reserved in the Commonwealth of Virginia the jurisdiction and power to serve criminal and civil process on the Washington National Airport; and (3) there is hereby reserved in the Commonwealth of Virginia the jurisdiction and power to regulate the manufacture, sale, and use of alcoholic beverages on the Washington National Airport (as described in sec. 1 (b) of the Act of June 29, 1940 (54 Stat. 686)).

"Subject to the limitation on the consent of the State [2] of Virginia as expressed herein exclusive jurisdiction in the Washington National Airport shall be in the United States and the same is hereby accepted by the United States.

"This Act shall have no retroactive effect except that taxes and contributions in connection with operations, sales and property on and income derived at the Washington National Airport heretofore paid either to the Commonwealth of Virginia or the District of Columbia are hereby declared to have been paid to the proper jurisdictions and the Commonwealth of Virginia and the District of Columbia each hereby waives any claim for any such taxes or contributions heretofore assessed or assessable to the extent of any such payments to either jurisdiction.

"Any provision of law of the United States or the Commonwealth of Virginia which is to any extent in conflict with this Act is to the extent of such conflict hereby expressly repealed.

"SEC. 108. This title shall not become effective unless and until the State [2] of Virginia shall accept the provisions thereof.

"TITLE II—MISCELLANEOUS

"SEC. 201. Nothing in this Act shall be construed (a) to prevent the acceptance by the United States pursuant to the provisions of section 355 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (40 U. S. C., sec. 255), of such jurisdiction as may be granted by the State of Virginia over any lands to which the United States now has, or may hereafter have, title within the boundaries of the State as established by this Act; or (b) to affect any jurisdiction heretofore obtained by the United States from the State of Virginia over lands adjoining or adjacent to those herein ceded; and all jurisdiction whether partial, concurrent, or exclusive, which Virginia has ceded and which the United States has accepted over any part or parts of the ceded total is hereby expressly retained."

Section 202 of said act Oct. 31, 1945, amended section 111 of the Judicial Code [28 U. S. C. § 192] which provided for the division of the State of Virginia into two judicial districts, to be known as the eastern and western district of Virginia.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

BOUNDARIES

The boundary between the District and Virginia is, at least, the low-water mark of the Potomac River on the Virginia shore. Marine R. & Coal Co. v. United States (257 U. S. 47, 66 L. ed. 124, 42 Sup. Ct. 32, affg. 49 App. D. C. 285, 265 Fed. 437).

"The entire part of the Potomac River between the District and Virginia shores is a part of the District of Columbia, and as such is subject to all local legislation and police regulations, unless the intent appears to exclude it therefrom." Jefferson v. District of Columbia (40 App. D. C. 381). To same effect, District of Columbia v. Tyrrell (41 App. D. C. 463); Herald v. United States (52 App. D. C. 147, 284 Fed. 927); Croson v. District of Columbia (55 App. D. C. 122, 2 Fed. (2d) 924).

HISTORICAL

By the Act of Congress of 1801, assuming the government of the District of Columbia, in virtue of the cession from Maryland and Virginia, the laws of these States, and, of course, the proceedings in their courts as parts of these laws were expressly recognized within such portions of the District, respectively, as originally were within the limits of the ceding States. United States v. Eliason (16 Pet. (41 U. S.) 291, 10 L. ed. 968).

The District of Columbia was considered as exercising the same general jurisdiction in both counties of Washington and Alexandria; but the rights of its citizens were not governed by the same laws. Rhodes v. Bell (2 How. (43 U. S.) 397, 11 L. ed. 314).

When the Government of the United States took possession of the District in 1800, it was divided by Congress into two counties, that of Alexandria on the west side of the Potomac, and that of Washington on the east side; and the laws of Virginia governed the former and the laws of Maryland the latter. A circuit court was established with general jurisdiction, civil and criminal, to hold sessions alternately in each county; but the corporate rights of Alexandria and Georgetown were expressly left unimpaired, except as related to judicial powers. Metropolitan R. Co. v. District of Columbia (132 U. S. 1, 33 L. ed. 231, 10 Sup. Ct. 19).

The county of Washington embraced all that portion of the original District of Columbia acquired from the State of Maryland and lying north of the Potomac River, a fact of which a court will take judicial knowledge. Green v. McIntire (42 App. D. C. 250).

§ 1–102 [20: 2]. District created body corporate for municipal purposes.

The District is created a government by the name of the "District of Columbia," by which name it is constituted a body-corporate for municipal purposes, and may contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, have a seal, and exercise all other powers of a municipal corporation not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States and the provisions of this code. (R. S., D. C., § 2; June 11, 1878, 20 Stat. 102, ch. 180, § 1.)

Present Organic Act, § 2

"Within twenty days after the approval of this act the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, is hereby authorized to appoint two persons, who, with an officer of the Corps of Engineers of the United States Army, whose lineal rank shall be above that of captain, shall be Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and who, from and after July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, shall exercise all the powers and authority now vested in the Commissioners of said District, except as are hereinafter limited or provided, and shall be subject to all restrictions and limitations and duties which are now imposed upon said Commissioners. The Commissioner who shall be an officer detailed, from time to time, from the Corps of Engineers, by the President, for this duty, shall not be required to perform any other, nor shall he receive any other compensation than his regular pay and allowances as an officer of the Army. The two persons appointed from civil life shall, at the time of their appointment, be citizens of the United States, and shall have been actual residents of the District of Columbia for three years next before their appointment, and have, during that period, claimed residence nowhere else, and one of said three Commissioners shall be chosen president of the Board of Commissioners at their first meeting, and annually and whenever a vacancy shall occur, thereafter; and said Commissioners shall each of them, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, take an oath or affirmation to support the Constitution of the United States, and to faithfully discharge the duties imposed upon him by law; and said Commissioners appointed from civil life, shall each receive for his services a compensation at the rate of five thousand dollars per annum. The official term of said Commissioners appointed from civil life shall be three years, and until their successors are appointed and qualified; but the first appointment shall be one Commissioner for one year and one for two years, and at the expiration of their respective terms their successors shall be appointed for three years. Neither of said Commissioners, nor any officer whatsoever of the District of Columbia, shall be accepted as surety upon any bond required to be given to the District of Columbia; nor shall any contractor be accepted as surety for any officer or other contractor in said District.

"The said Commissioners are hereby authorized and empowered to determine which officers and employees of the District of Columbia shall hereafter be required to give, or renew, bond for the faithful discharge of their duties and to fix the penalty of any such bond: Provided, That this power of the Commissioners shall not apply to officers and employees who receive, disburse, account for, or otherwise are responsible for the handling of money, and whose bonds are now fixed by law. The provisions of the Act of Congress entitled 'An Act making appropriations to supply urgent deficiencies in appropriations for the fiscal year nineteen hundred and nine, and for other purposes, approved August 5, 1909 (36 Stat. 118, 125 (U. S. C., title 6, § 14)), relating to rates of premiums for bonds for officers and employees of the United States shall be, and are hereby, made applicable to the rates of premiums for bonds of officers and employees of the government of the District of Columbia." (June 11, 1878, 20 Stat. 102, ch. 180, § 2; June 28, 1935, 49 Stat. 430, ch. 332, § 1.)

Amendment

The act of June 28, 1935, amended § 2 of the Organic Act by striking out a provision requiring each Commissioner to give bond before entering on the duties of his office, and added the last two sentences.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Effect of "Commerce Clause"

While the case does not hold that the District of Columbia is a "State" within the meaning of the commerce clause, the dissenting opinion is on the ground that commerce between a citizen of Maryland and citizens of the District is not commerce "among the several States," the majority opinion having held the commerce clause applicable. Stoutenburgh v. Hennick (129 U. S. 141, 32 L. Ed 637, 9 Sup. Ct. 256).

The commerce clause operates as a limitation solely upon the States; it constitutes no bar to the action of Congress in any event so far as the District of Columbia is concerned. Neild v. District of Columbia (110 Fed. (2d) 246) stating that "if the dictum to the contrary in Potomac Electric Power Co. v. Hazen (67 App. D. C. 161, 90 Fed. (2d) 406), certiorari denied (302 U. S. 692, 82 L. Ed. 535, 58 Sup. Ct. 11, 82 L. Ed. 535), was intended to apply to the District of Columbia, we decline to follow it."

Legislative Jurisdiction

The District possesses no sovereign or legislative power. United States ex rel. Daly v. Macfarland (28 App. D. C. 552); Croson v. District of Columbia (55 App. D. C. 122, 2 Fed. (2d) 924).

Congress possesses full and unlimited jurisdiction to provide for the general welfare of citizens within the District of Columbia by any and every act of legislation which it may deem conducive to that end. Neild v. District of Columbia (71 App. D. C. 306, 110 Fed. (2d) 246).

Within the District of Columbia there is no division of legislative powers such as exists between the State and Federal Governments. Neild v. District of Columbia (71 App. D. C. 306, 110 Fed. (2d) 246).

Congress by keeping in force for 70 years this section creating the District of Columbia as a body corporate for municipal purposes and authorizing it to contract and to be contracted with and to sue and "be sued" and by re-enacting it after District of Columbia courts repeatedly decided that the act does not subject the District of Columbia to garnishment, has in effect ratified the decisions, as against contention that authority to "be sued" as used therein includes garnishment for the collection of a private judgment. Chewning v. District of Columbia, 1941 (119 F. 2d 459, 73 App. D. C. 392, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 74, 314 U. S. 639, 86 L. Ed. 513, rehearing denied 62 S. Ct. 175, 314 U. S. 710, 86 L. Ed. 566).

Parties

Where one who had been wrongfully compelled to pay water bill of another brought action to recover back the sum paid against commissioners, water registrar and collector of taxes, individually and officially, without naming District of Columbia as a party defendant, no judgment could be entered against the District. Farrell v. Ward (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 53 A. 2d 46).

Although there is express authority under this section for suing District of Columbia in its own name, a money judgment against District is not authorized in an action to which it is not a party. Farrell v. Ward (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 53 A. 2d 46).

Power To Sue and Be Sued

District of Columbia is a municipal corporation, having a right to sue and be sued, and subject to the ordinary rules that govern the law of procedure between private persons. Metropolitan R. Co. v. District of Columbia (132 U. S. 1, 33 L. Ed. 231, 10 Sup. Ct. 19).

Public Works

District of Columbia is a municipal corporation and is responsible for the negligence of its officers having the care of streets, avenues, and sidewalks, as resulted in personal injuries to individuals. District of Columbia v. Woodbury (136 U. S. 450, 34 L. Ed. 472, 10 Sup. Ct. 990).

Under this section, the powers of the Board of Public Works has been vested in the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. Bauman v. Ross (167 U. S. 548, 42 L. Ed. 270, 17 Sup. Ct. 966).

The District of Columbia was not liable for damage to abutting realty resulting from widening and changing the natural grade of a street, in absence of negligence in manner in which such work was done. Bealle v. District of Columbia (D. C., D. C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 75).

Qualifications

The civil persons appointed should be citizens of the United States and actual residents of the District of Columbia for 3 years next before their appointment. Newman v. United States ex rel. Frizzell (238 U. S. 537, 59 L. Ed. 1446, 35 Sup. Ct. 881).

§ 1–103 [20: 3]. Commissioners made officers of corporation.

The Commissioners herein provided for shall be deemed and taken as officers of such corporation. (June 11, 1878, 20 Stat. 102, ch. 180, § 1.)

Present Organic Act, § 3

"As soon as the Commissioners appointed and detailed as aforesaid shall have taken and subscribed the oath or affirmation hereinbefore required, all the powers, rights, duties, and privileges lawfully exercised by, and all property, estate, and effects now vested by law in the Commissioners appointed under the provisions of the act of Congress approved June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, shall be transferred to and vested in and imposed upon said Commissioners; and the functions of the Commissioners so appointed under the act of June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, shall cease and determine. And the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall have power, subject to the limitations and provisions herein contained, to apply the taxes or other revenues of said District to the payment of the current expenses thereof, to the support of the public schools, the fire department, and the police, and for that purpose shall take possession and supervision of all the offices, books, papers, records, moneys, credits, securities, assets, and accounts belonging or appertaining to the business or interests of the government of the District of Columbia, and exercise the duties, powers, and authority aforesaid; but said Commissioners, in the exercise of such duties, powers, and authority, shall make no contract, nor incur any obligation other than such contracts and obligations as are hereinafter provided for and shall be approved by Congress. The Commissioners shall have power to locate the places where hacks shall stand and change them as often as the public interests require. Any person violating any orders lawfully made in pursuance of this power shall be subject to a fine of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars, to be recovered before any justice of the peace in an action in the name of the Commissioners. All taxes heretofore lawfully assessed and due, or to become due, shall be collected pursuant to law, except as herein otherwise provided; but said Commissioners shall have no power to anticipate taxes by a sale or hypothecation of any such taxes or evidences thereof, but they may borrow, for the first fiscal year after this act takes effect, in anticipation of collection of revenues, not to exceed two hundred thousand dollars, at a rate of interest not exceeding five per centum per annum, which shall be repaid out of the revenues of that year. And said Commissioners are hereby authorized to abolish any office, to consolidate two or more offices, reduce the number of employees, remove from office, and make appointments to any office under them authorized by law; said Commissioners shall have power to erect light, and maintain lamp-posts, with lamps, outside of the city limits, when, in their judgment, it shall be deemed proper or necessary: Provided, That nothing in this act contained shall be construed to abate in any wise or interfere with any suit pending in favor of or against the District of Columbia or the Commissioners thereof, or affect any right, penalty, forfeiture, or cause of action existing in favor of said District or Commissioners, or any citizen of the District of Columbia, or any other person, but the same may be commenced, proceeded for, or prosecuted to final judgment, and the corporation shall be bound thereby as if the suit had been originally commenced for or against said corporation. The said Commissioners shall submit to the Secretary of the Treasury for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, and annually thereafter, for his examination and approval, a statement showing in detail the work proposed to be undertaken by them during the fiscal year next ensuing, and the estimated cost thereof; also the cost of constructing, repairing, and maintaining all bridges authorized by law across the Potomac River within the District of Columbia, and also all other streams in said District; the cost of maintaining all public institutions of charity, reformatories, and prisons belonging to or controlled wholly or in part by the District of Columbia, and which are now by law supported wholly or in part by the United States or District of Columbia; and also the expenses of the Washington Aqueduct and its appurtenances; and also an itemized statement and estimate of the amount necessary to defray the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for the next fiscal year: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed as transferring from the United States authorities any of the public works within the District of Columbia now in the control or supervision of said authorities. The Secretary of the Treasury shall carefully consider all estimates submitted to him as above provided, and shall approve, disapprove, or suggest such changes in the same, or any item thereof, as he may think the public interest demands; and after he shall have considered and passed upon such estimates submitted to him, he shall cause to be made a statement of the amount approved by him and the fund or purpose to which each item belongs, which statement shall be certified by him, and delivered, together with the estimates as originally submitted, to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, who shall transmit the same to Congress. To the extent to which Congress shall approve of said estimates, Congress shall appropriate the amount of fifty per centum thereof; and the remaining fifty per centum of such approved estimates shall be levied and assessed upon the taxable property and privileges in said District other than the property of the United States and of the District of Columbia; and all proceedings in the assessing, equalizing, and levying of said taxes, the collection thereof, the listing return and penalty for taxes in arrears, the advertising for sale and the sale of property for delinquent taxes, the redemption thereof, the proceedings to enforce the lien upon unredeemed property, and every other act and thing now required to be done in the premises, shall be done and performed at the times and in the manner now provided by law, except in so far as is otherwise provided by this act: Provided, That the rate of taxation in any one year shall not exceed one dollar and fifty cents on every one hundred dollars of real estate not exempted by law; and on personal property not taxable elsewhere, one dollar and fifty cents on every one hundred dollars, according to the cash valuation thereof: And provided further, Upon real property held and used exclusively for agricultural purposes, without the limits of the cities of Washington and Georgetown, and to be so designated by the assessors in their annual returns, the rate for any one year shall not exceed one dollar on every one hundred dollars. The collector of taxes, upon the receipt of the duplicate of assessment, shall give notice for one week, in one newspaper published in the city of Washington, that he is ready to receive taxes; and any person who shall, within thirty days after such notice given, pay the taxes assessed against him, shall be allowed by the collector a deduction of five per centum on the amount of his tax; all penalties imposed by the act approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, chapter one hundred and seventeen, upon delinquents for default in the payment of taxes levied under said act, at the times specified therein, shall, upon payment of the said taxes assessed against such delinquents within three months from the passage of this act, with interest at the rate of six per centum thereon, be remitted." NOTES TO DECISIONS

Right to Office

If a private citizen and taxpayer could institute quo warranto proceedings to test the title to the office of civil commissioner of the District, he could, under the same claim of right, institute like proceedings against any of those statutory officers of the United States who, in the District, exercise many important functions which affect persons and things throughout the entire country. Newman v. United States ex rel. Frizzell (238 U. S. 537, 59 L. Ed. 1446, 35 Sup. Ct. 881).

§ 1–104 [20: 4]. District of Columbia successor of former corporations.

The District of Columbia is the successor of the corporations of Washington and Georgetown, and all the property of said corporations, and of the county of Washington, is vested in the District of Columbia. (R. S., D. C., § 96.)

§ 1–105 [20: 5]. Former corporation continued for certain purposes.

The corporation of the District of Columbia is continued for all the purposes of this section and other acts for the collection of taxes, for suing and being sued, for causes arising prior to June 20th, 1874, and for acquiring and holding real estate for school and municipal purposes. (Mar. 3, 1877, 19 Stat. 402, ch. 117, § 15.)

Compiler's Note

This section and § 8 are the only sections of the Tax Act of 1877 that would seem to be still in force. The first part of this section concerning causes of action prior to June 20, 1874, is clearly obsolete. Section 8, set forth as § 47–801 of this Code, relates to exempt property.

§ 1–106 [20: 6]. Records of former corporations and of levy court made property of District of Columbia.

All records, books, files, maps plats, surveys, drawings, writings and other papers, of the late corporations of Washington [and] Georgetown, or of the levy court of the District of Columbia, or made by persons in the employment or service of either of them, or of the District of Columbia, in the course of such employment or service, or which shall be so made after Feb. 4, 1878, are, and shall be the property of the District of Columbia. § 1–107 [20: 7]. "Limits of city of Washington" defined—Georgetown abolished—General laws of Washington extended to former Georgetown.

That portion of the District included within the limits of the city of Washington, as the same existed on the 21st day of February, 1871, and all that part of the District of Columbia embraced within the bounds and constituting on February 11, 1895 the city of Georgetown (as referred to in the Acts of Congress approved Feb. 21, 1871, 16 Stat. 419, ch. 62, and June 20, 1874, 18 Stat. 116, ch. 337) shall be known as and shall constitute the city of Washington, the federal capital; and all general laws, ordinances, and regulations of the city of Washington are extended and made applicable to that part of the District of Columbia formerly known as the city of Georgetown. The title and existence of said Georgetown as a separate and independent city by law is abolished. Nothing in this section shall operate to affect or repeal existing law making Georgetown a port of entry, except as to its name. (R. S., D. C., § 94; Feb. 11, 1895, 28 Stat. 650, ch. 79.)

That portion of the District of Columbia prior to April 22, 1886 known and designated as Uniontown, [shall] be known and designated as Anacostia. (Apr. 22, 1886, 24 Stat. 14, ch. 58.)

(June 11, 1878, 20 Stat. 103, ch. 180, § 2; Dec. 24, 1890, 26 Stat. 1113, Res. No. 7.)

Compiler's Note

In the act of June 11, 1878, the words "whose lineal rank shall be above that of captain," followed the words "United States Army." The act of December 24, 1890, did not specifically amend the first-mentioned act but provided that the engineer commissioner might be detailed from among captains or higher ranking officers with at least 15 years' service in the Engineer Corps, see § 1–202.

Such engineer commissioner may, in the discretion of the President of the United States, be detailed from among the captains or officers of higher grade having served at least fifteen years in the Corps of Engineers of the Army of the United States. (Dec. 24, 1890, 26 Stat. 1113, Res. No. 7.)

Compiler's Note

From the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925, to the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, the various appropriation acts for the District of Columbia fixed the salary of the Engineer Commissioner at $7,500. See acts of June 7, 1924, 43 Stat. 539, ch. 302, § 1, and May 21, 1928, 45 Stat. 645, ch. 659, § 1. Since that time the appropriation acts, after making a specific appropriation, add the words: "plus so much as may be necessary to compensate the Engineer Commissioner at such rate in Grade 8 of the professional and scientific service of the Classification Act of 1923 (U. S. C., title 5, sec. 673), as amended, as may be determined by the Board of Commissioners." See acts of February 25, 1929, 45 Stat. 1262, ch. 314, § 1, and June 12, 1940, 54 Stat. 307, ch. 333, § 1. The salary ranges provided for Grade 8 are $8,000, $8,500, and $9,000.

§ 1–205 [20: 16]. Engineer Commissioner not deemed to hold civil office.

The engineer commissioner shall not be deemed by reason of anything in this act contained to hold a civil office under the laws of the United States. (June 20, 1874, 18 Stat. 117, ch. 337, § 3.)

Compiler's Note

The words "this act" relate to the act of June 20, 1874, 18 Stat. 117, ch. 337. It is known as the Temporary Organic Act of 1874, and but little of it was retained in the 1929 Code and that in fragmentary form. In the first place, the Organic Act of 1878 may have been intended to entirely supersede the temporary act of 1874, and second, even if this is not true it is not clear that the provision set out in this section should be regarded as applying to the Engineer Commissioner appointed under section 2 of the Organic Act of 1878 (§§ 1–201 to 1–203). If it does apply, it seems that the section should read: "The Engineer Commissioner shall not be deemed to hold a civil office under the laws of the United States."

§ 1–206 [20: 17]. Civilian Commissioners — Qualifications.

The two persons appointed from civil life shall, at the time of their appointment, be citizens of the United States, and shall have been actual residents of the District of Columbia for three years next before their appointment, and have, during that period, claimed residence nowhere else. NOTES TO DECISIONS

NATURE OF POWERS

Under this section, Congress gave every evidence of being familiar with the distinction between the delegation of the power to prohibit or exclude. Smallwood v. District of Columbia (57 App. D. C. 58, 17 Fed. (2d) 210).

Commissioners may make, modify, and enforce police regulations. Thomas v. District of Columbia (67 App. D. C. 179, 90 Fed. (2d) 424).

La Forest v. Board of Commissioners of District of Columbia (67 App. D. C. 396, 92 Fed. (2d) 547).

§ 1–224 [20: 32]. Police regulations authorized in certain cases.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized and empowered to make, modify, and enforce usual and reasonable police regulations in and for said District as follows:

First. For causing full inspection to be made, at any reasonable times, of the places where the business of pawnbroking, junk-dealing, or second-hand clothing business may be carried on.

Second. To regulate the storage of highly inflammable substances in the thickly populated portions of the District.

Third. To locate the places where licensed venders on streets and public places shall stand, and change them as often as the public interests require, and to make all the necessary regulations governing their conduct upon the streets in relation to such business.

Fourth. [Repealed.]

Fifth. To establish and regulate the charges to be made by owners of hacks and hackney carriages of any kind whatsoever.

Sixth. To prohibit conducting droves of animals upon such streets and avenues as they may deem needful to public safety and good order.

Seventh. To regulate the keeping and running at large of dogs and fowls.

Tenth. [Repealed.]

Eleventh. To prescribe reasonable penalties for the violation of any of the regulations in this act (§§ 1–224, 1–225) mentioned; and said penalties may be enforced in any court of the District of Columbia having jurisdiction of minor offenses, and in the same manner that such minor offenses are now by law prosecuted and punished. (Jan. 26, 1887, 24 Stat. 368, ch. 49, § 1; Mar. 3, 1925, 43 Stat. 1125, ch. 443, § 16.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

GRADE CROSSINGS

Regulations of Commissioners of District of Columbia, adopted in pursuance of the act of Congress of January 26, 1887, 24 Stat. 368, ch. 49 (this section), and a joint resolution of February 26, 1892, 27 Stat. 394 (§ 1–226 of this code), required that "whenever the grade of a steam railroad track is approximately even with the adjacent surface" of the street in which it is laid, the road should be securely closed on both sides with a substantial fence. A railroad track was, at the time and place of an accident, not over two feet two inches higher than the level of the street, and was not fenced. The question whether, within the meaning of the regulations, the grade of the track was "approximately even with the adjacent surface" was properly submitted to jury. Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Cumberland (176 U. S. 232, 44 L. Ed. 447, 20 Sup. Ct. 380).

STREET VENDORS

This section did not authorize the Commissioners to prohibit vending on the streets or public places, but merely regulated such use. Crane v. District of Columbia (53 App. D. C. 159, 289 Fed. 557).

A police regulation designating stands for street vendors is valid. Carranzo v. District of Columbia (56 App. D. C. 118, 10 Fed. (2d) 983).

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS

Traffic regulations apply to United States employees driving government automobiles. Croson v. District of Columbia (55 App. D. C. 122, 2 Fed. (2d) 924).

"Vehicles" and "movement of vehicles" embrace automobiles. White v. District of Columbia (55 App. D. C. 197, 4 Fed. (2d) 163).

Commissioners may make traffic regulations inconsistent with postal regulations. White v. District of Columbia (55 App. D. C. 197, 4 Fed. (2d) 163).

Police regulations are admissible in evidence in trial for murder of policeman while enforcing vehicle regulations. Holmes v. United States (56 App. D. C. 183, 11 Fed. (2d) 569).

Director of Traffic was authorized to exclude horse-drawn vehicles from arterial highways or boulevards. District of Columbia v. Wheeler (57 App. D. C. 106, 17 Fed. (2d) 953).

Traffic Act delegates to the Commissioners of the District power and authority to make rules and regulations in relation to traffic on the public thoroughfares, and to the Director of Parks authority to make rules and regulations in relation to traffic on the roads in the public parks, and to provide for the prosecution for violations, whether on the public streets or in the parks, by proceedings in the police court at the instance of the corporation counsel and to exclude United States attorney from any part in the commencement of such prosecutions except smoke screen violation. Persham v. United States (70 App. D. C. 116, 104 Fed. (2d) 249).

Even at an intersection, a streetcar has preferential, though no exclusive, right of way, and a motorist on or near track must use reasonable care, as streetcar approaches, to get off or keep off the track until it passes.—Capital Transit Co. v. Smallwood (App. D. C. 1947, 162 F. 2d 14).

Even if, as a general proposition, a streetcar's preferential right of way at intersection must yield to right of way conferred by traffic regulation on an automobile which precedes streetcar into intersection, where motorist has precedence under traffic regulations by less than two seconds, motorist is negligent if he proceeds into path of streetcar so close at hand when he is able to stop within 3 or 4 feet and save himself from injury.—Capital Transit Co. v. Smallwood (App. D. C. 1947, 162 F. 2d 14).

Traffic Regulation requiring a vehicle approaching an intersection to slow down and be kept under such control as to avoid colliding with pedestrians or vehicles is not so unreasonable, indefinite or uncertain as to render it void.—Lohman v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 51 A. 2d 382).

§ 1–224a. Additional penalties for violation of regulations.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized to prescribe reasonable penalties of fine not to exceed $300 or imprisonments not to exceed ten days, in lieu of or in addition to any fine, for the violation of any building regulation promulgated under authority of section 1–228, and any regulation promulgated under authority of section 1–224, and any regulation promulgated under authority of section 1–226. (Dec. 17, 1942, 56 Stat. 1056, ch. 762, § 7.)

§ 1–225 [20: 33]. Publication of regulations—Effective date.

The regulations herein provided for shall, when adopted, be printed in one or more of the daily newspapers published in the District of Columbia; and no penalty prescribed for the violation of said regulations shall be enforced until thirty days after such publication. (Jan. 26, 1887, 24 Stat. 369, ch. 49, § 2.)

CONSTITUTIONALITY

This section does not invade the property rights of the plaintiffs, for they do not possess any peculiar right, interest, or franchise in the streets of the District. Their rights are held by license only, and are such as belong to the public in general. They cannot be called franchises or vested property interests. Cave v. Rudolph (53 App. D. C. 12, 287 Fed. 989).

NATURE OF POWER

Commissioners were not vested with power to prohibit harmless street sales. Crane v. District of Columbia (53 App. D. C. 159, 289 Fed. 557).

Commissioners cannot prescribe a condition for licensing junk and second-hand dealers which Congress did not see fit to impose. Coombe v. United States ex rel. Selis (55 App. D. C. 190, 3 Fed. (2d) 714).

Careful operation of mail trucks is required quite as much as other similar vehicles, and it is reasonable to believe that the regulation of all such vehicles was intrusted to the Commissioners for protection of lives, limbs, health, comfort, and quiet of all persons. White v. District of Columbia (55 App. D. C. 197, 4 Fed. (2d) 163).

POLICE POWER

It is within the police power of municipal corporations to control and regulate the manner of collection and disposition of garbage, refuse and filth, and in so doing they may provide for the inspection of premises as a health measure but must not unduly infringe upon individual rights in absence of immediate danger or nuisance per se. Little v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 874).

SUMMARY ACTION

Unless the condition which is the object of inspection amounts to an immediate danger or a dangerous nuisance per se, municipal authorities would be acting beyond their power in taking any summary action. Little v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 874).

§ 1–227 [20: 35]. Regulations relative to firearms, explosives, and weapons.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized and empowered to make and enforce all such usual and reasonable police regulations, in addition to those already made under sections 1–224 to 1–226 as they may deem necessary for the regulation of firearms, projectiles, explosives, or weapons of any kind in the District of Columbia. (June 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 809, ch. 3932, § 4.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

SALE OF FIREARMS

A police regulation prohibiting the sale of firearms to children may not be construed beyond its plain meaning though other provisions of the regulation may reveal an intent to include in the prohibition weapons not covered by the words used. Tendler v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 50 A. 2d 263).

An "air pistol" is not a "firearm", or a "missile", or a "projectile", within police regulation prohibiting the sale to children of such devices. Tendler v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 50 A. 2d 263).

§ 1–228 [20: 36]. Building regulations.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia, are authorized and directed to make and enforce such building regulations for the said District as they may deem advisable.

Such rules and regulations made as above provided shall have the same force and effect within the District of Columbia as if enacted by Congress. (June 14, 1878, 20 Stat. 131, ch. 194, § 1 in part, § 2.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

As originally enacted, this section contained the words "such rules and regulations relative to the sale of coal in the District of Columbia as shall insure full weight to purchasers of coal"; also immediately preceding the words "such building regulations." The provision concerning coal has been superseded by act of March 3, 1921, 41 Stat. 1217, ch. 118, § 11, which is set out as § 10–111.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Enforcement

It is a matter of common knowledge that the failure of builders in erecting structures for public use to conform to recognized standards has often resulted in disaster and tragedy, and that to prescribe standards without means for enforcing compliance therewith would be as futile as to prohibit an act without affixing a penalty, and all this Congress is presumed to have contemplated when it passed the act of March 3, 1909 [§ 5–429], supplementing this section. Simmons v. District of Columbia (53 App. D. C. 372, 290 Fed. 347).

Force and Effect

By this section the Commissioners of the District of Columbia were authorized to make "such building regulations for the said District as they may deem advisable," and provided that these should have the same force within the District as if enacted by Congress. Smoot v. Heyl (227 U. S. 518, 57 L. Ed. 621, 33 Sup. Ct. 336); D. J. Dunigan, Inc., v. District of Columbia (59 App. D. C. 384, 44 Fed. (2d) 892); Hill v. Raymond (65 App. D. C. 144, 81 Fed. (2d) 278).

In order to be valid, building regulations must be reasonable and not arbitrary, and must have a tendency to promote the public health, safety, or general welfare; and although a regulation may be lawful on its face and apparently fair on its terms, yet if it is enforced in such a manner as to work a discrimination against a part of the community for no lawful reason, such exercise of power will be invalidated by the courts. D. J. Dunigan, Inc. v. District of Columbia (59 App. D. C. 384, 44 Fed. (2d) 892).

Liability for Damages

Mere continued use of a tenant of common stairs and hallways of the tenement premises, when he is aware of the failure of the owner to provide lights, as required by the statute and municipal regulations, does not constitute contributory negligence as a matter of law. Hill v. Raymond (65 App. D. C. 144, 81 Fed. (2d) 278).

Party Wall

If a lot owner uses the party wall, he waives the right to object that this section deprives him of property without due process of law. Walker v. Gish (43 Sup. Ct. 174, 260 U. S. 447, 67 L. Ed. 344).

Zoning Commission

Repealing clause of the Zoning Act of March 1, 1920, was in praesenti and operated immediately to deprive the Commissioners of the District of jurisdiction to enact building regulations in conflict with the jurisdiction conferred upon the Zoning Commission. Schwartz v. Brownlow (50 App. D. C. 279, 270 Fed. 1019).

§ 1–229 [20: 37]. Regulations for construction and operation of elevators—Penalty.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized and directed to make and publish such orders as may be necessary to regulate the construction, repair, and operation of all elevators within the District of Columbia, and prescribe such means of security as may be found necessary to protect life and limb.

Any person or persons, or corporation, who shall neglect or refuse to comply with the orders made pursuant to this section, shall, upon conviction thereof in the police court of the District of Columbia, on information filed in the name of the District of Columbia, be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each offense. (Mar. 3, 1887, 24 Stat. 580, ch. 390, §§ 1, 2.)

§ 1–230 [20:38]. Regulations for control of rabies—Vaccination of dogs—Penalties.

Whenever it shall be made to appear to the Commissioners that any dog or other animal within the District is afflicted with rabies, or is suspected of being rabid, or whenever said Commissioners shall be notified by the Health Officer of the District of Columbia that rabies may spread within said District, said Commissioners are empowered to issue proclamations requiring such of the following measures as said Commissioners may deem necessary with respect to any or all dogs or other animals within said District: (1) Muzzling; (2) leashing; (3) confinement or quarantine; (4) vaccination against rabies. Such measure or measures shall be required for such periods or at such times as the Commissioners may designate in any such proclamation. The Commissioners are authorized to prescribe in any such proclamation such regulations as may be necessary to carry out the measure or measures required.

Whenever the Commissioners shall by proclamation require dogs or other animals in the District to be vaccinated against rabies, the owners or keepers of such dogs or other animals may have such vaccination done at their own expense by private veterinarians or at the expense of the District of Columbia by veterinarians designated for that purpose by the Commissioners. For the purposes of this section, the Commissioners are authorized and directed to provide the necessary personnel and facilities, including vaccine tags and vaccine.

Any person violating any provision of any such proclamation shall be punished by a fine of not more than $300 or imprisonment for not more than ninety days. (June 19, 1878, 20 Stat. 174, ch. 323, § 7; June 27, 1879, 21 Stat. 35, ch. 38; July 5, 1945, 59 Stat. 409, ch. 267, § 3.)

Compiler's Note

There is nothing amendatory of the original act in the act of June 27, 1879, 21 Stat. 35, ch. 38, cited to the text. It merely authorizes the Commissioners to extend the area for the impounding of animals in the District of Columbia.

AMENDMENTS

The act of July 5, 1945, cited to text, amended section generally to control rabies and provide for the vaccination of dogs.

§ 1–244. Additional powers of Commissioners.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized and empowered within their discretion—

(a) Waiver of business license renewal fees for personnel of armed forces.—In accordance with such regulations as they may make, to provide for the waiver of payment by any person in the military service of the United States of any annual or other periodic fee required by law to be paid to the District of Columbia or to any District of Columbia board or commission as a condition to retaining or renewing any license or permit to engage in any business or calling or to practice any profession in the District of Columbia.

S. C., title 6, sec. 8), and by the Insurance Department of the District of Columbia to do business in the District of Columbia in an amount not exceeding $5,000, conditioned upon the performance in accordance with law and regulations in force in the District of Columbia of all such work undertaken by such person, firm, or corporation, and to keep the District of Columbia harmless from the consequences of any and all acts performed by said person, firm, or corporation in connection with

The surety on any such bond may terminate its liability under such bond by giving thirty days' written notice thereof, served either personally or by registered mail, to the principal and to the Commissioners; and upon giving such notice the surety shall be discharged from all liability under such bond for any act or omission of the principal occurring after the expiration of thirty days from the date of service of such notice. Unless on or before the expiration of such period the principal shall duly file a new bond in like amount and conditioned as the original in substitution of the bond so terminated, the license of the principal to engage in such business shall likewise terminate upon the expiration of such period. Upon making any payment on account of its bond, the surety shall immediately notify the Commissioners.

The Commissioners shall furnish to anyone applying therefor a certified copy of any such bond filed with them upon payment of a fee to be fixed by the Commissioners therefor, and such certified copy shall be prima facie evidence in any court that such bond was duly executed and delivered by the person, firm, or corporation whose name appears therein.

The Commissioners are further authorized to provide, in accordance with such regulations as they may prescribe, for the examination of the qualifications and fitness of all applicants for licenses to engage in any of the businesses herein enumerated by a board, consisting of not less than two persons who have been actively engaged in the District of Columbia for at least five years next preceding their appointment in the business for which license is sought (one of whom shall have been an owner or manager and one of whom shall have been an employee competent to superintend the performance of work) and not less than one official of the District of Columbia, appointed by the said Commissioners: Provided, That nothing herein shall repeal existing law relating to the examination and licensing of master plumbers and gas fitters.

(c) Leasing powers.—To rent any building or land belonging to the District of Columbia or under the jurisdiction of the Commissioners, or any available space therein, whenever such building or land, or space therein, is not then required for the purpose for which it was acquired, and to rent any used personal property belonging to the District of Columbia which is not then needed for the purpose for which it was acquired: Provided, That nothing contained in this paragraph shall have the effect of changing in any manner Public Law Numbered 732, Seventy-fourth Congress, entitled "An Act to authorize the operation of stands in Federal buildings by blind persons, to enlarge the economic opportunities of the blind, and for other purposes", approved June 20, 1936 (U. S. C., title 20, secs. 107–107f).

(d) Issuance of revocable permits for construction of tunnels, and laying of conduits and pipes.—To grant revocable permits upon such terms, conditions, bonds, and rentals as the Commissioners may impose for the construction of tunnels, and the laying of conduits and pipes in the alleys, streets, and avenues in the District of Columbia under the jurisdiction of the Commissioners.

COMPILER'S NOTE

The act of Aug. 13, 1894, as amended, referred to in subsection (b) has been repealed and reenacted as section 8 of Title 6, United States Code, by the act of July 30, 1947, enacting Title 6 into positive law.

§ 1–245. Appointment of contracting officers—Powers—Approval of contracts over $3,000—Void contracts—Liquidated damage contracts.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized to appoint such number of employees of the District of Columbia as they shall consider advisable as contracting officers, who, under the direction of the said Commissioners, may exercise any powers with respect to making and entering into contracts on behalf of said District of Columbia and administering said contracts that are now vested by law in the said Commissioners, except as herein otherwise provided; but no contract of $3,000 or more entered into on behalf of said District of Columbia by any contracting officer appointed pursuant to sections 1–244 to 1–249 shall be binding upon said District of Columbia, or give rise to any claim or demand against said District of Columbia, until approved by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, or a majority of them, sitting as a Board.

All contracts entered into by any contracting officer in which such contracting officer or any of the Commissioners shall be personally interested shall be void, and no payment shall be made on any of such contracts by the District of Columbia or by any officer thereof.

With respect to all contracts of the District of Columbia which contain stipulations for liquidated damages for delay the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized and empowered to remit the whole or any part of such damages as in their discretion may be just and equitable. The surveyor shall, as speedily as possible, execute any order of survey made by any court or private individual of any lot or square within the city of Washington, or of any land within the District of Columbia outside of said city, and shall make due return of a true plat and certificate thereof. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1426, ch. 854, § 1590.)

§ 1–618 [25: 445]. Subdivisions — Alterations — Changes.

Whenever the proprietor of any tract or parcel of land in the District of Columbia shall desire or deem it necessary to subdivide or alter boundaries, or change the surveys of any such tract or parcel of land, such subdivision, alteration, or change shall be by the surveyor of the District of Columbia, or his assistant, only, and shall be entered in the plat book or books of said surveyor. All such subdivisions, alterations, or changes shall be certified by the surveyor, the party wishing such plat, and two competent witnesses, whose names shall be appended thereto. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1427, ch. 854, § 1595.)

§ 1–619 [25: 446]. Boundaries of lots to be marked.

It shall also be the duty of the surveyor on the request of the proprietor or proprietors of any square, lot, or piece of ground within the District of Columbia to set out and mark the proper lines, and furnish to him, her, or them a certificate describing the dimensions and boundaries of the same, according to the plan. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1427, ch. 854, § 1598.)

§ 1–620 [25: 447]. Subdivisions.

Whenever the proprietor of any square or lot shall deem it necessary to subdivide the same into convenient building lots or portions for sale and occupancy and alleys for their accommodation, he may cause a plat to be made by the surveyor, on which shall be expressed the dimensions and length of all the lines of such portions as are necessary for defining and laying off the same on the ground, and may certify such subdivision under his hand and seal, in the presence of two or more credible witnesses, upon the same plat or on a paper or parchment attached thereto. At the request of the proprietor the surveyor shall examine whether the lots or parcels into which any square or lot may be subdivided as provided in section 1–620 agree in dimensions with the whole of the square or lot so intended to be subdivided, and whether the dimensions expressed on the plat of subdivision be the true dimensions of the parts so expressed; and whether said lots or parcels conform to the general orders of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia made under existing law or under authority of section 1–613; and if upon such examination he shall find the plat correct he shall

§ 1–624 [25: 451]. Deficiency or excess in number of feet—Apportionment.

Whenever the surveyor shall lay off any lot, or any parts into which a square or lot may be subdivided, as provided in this chapter, he shall measure the whole of that front of the square on which said lot or part lies, and if, on such admeasurement, the whole front of the square exceeds or falls short of the aggregate of the fronts of the lots on that side of the square, as the same are recorded, he shall, except in that portion of the city of Washington included within the limits of what formerly constituted the city of Georgetown, apportion such excess or deficiency among the lots or pieces on that front agreeably to their respective dimensions; and in that portion of the city of Washington included within the limits of what formerly constituted the city of Georgetown he shall allow such excess or charge such deficiency to the highest numbered original lot on that front of the square, or apportion such excess or deficiency among any lots into which such highest numbered original lot may have been subdivided: Provided, That wherever in the former city of Georgetown a square or block of land is intersected by the division line between two original additions to said city, the excess or deficiency found between the street lines and said division line shall be applied to the highest numbered original lot on each side of said division line, or apportioned among any lots into which such highest numbered original lot may have been subdivided. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1425, ch. 854, § 1585; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 544, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

Act of Mar. 3, 1901, read as follows: "Whenever the surveyor shall lay off any lot, or any parts into which a square or lot may be subdivided, as provided in this chapter, he shall measure the whole of that front of the square on which such lot or part lies, and if, on such admeasurement, the whole front of the square exceeds or falls short of the aggregate of the fronts of the lots on that side of the square, as the same are recorded, he shall apportion such excess or deficiency among the lots or pieces on that front agreeably to their respective dimensions."

§ 1–625 [25: 454]. Party walls.

Whenever, on such admeasurement, the wall of a house previously erected by any proprietor shall appear to stand on the adjoining lot of any other person in part less than seven inches in width thereon, such wall shall be considered as standing altogether on the land of such proprietor, who shall pay to the owner of the lot on which the wall may stand a reasonable price for the ground so occupied, to be decided by arbitrators or a jury, as the parties interested may agree. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1425, ch. 854, § 1586.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

There are but two lawful ways in which a party wall can be established, (1) by contract between the owners of the adjoining properties or (2) by force of statute. Fowler v. Koehler (43 App. D. C. 349, Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1161).

BUILDING REGULATIONS

"That the person or persons appointed by the commissioners to superintend the buildings may enter on the land of any person to set out the foundation and regulate the walls to be built between party and party, as to the breadth and thickness thereof: which foundation shall be laid equally upon the lands of the persons between whom such party walls are to be built, and shall be of the breadth and thickness determined by such person proper; and the first builder shall be reimbursed one moiety of the charge of such party wall, or so much thereof as the next builder shall have occasion to make use of, before such next builder shall any ways use or break into the wall. The charge or value thereof, to be set by the person or persons so appointed by the commissioners." Promulgated by President Washington, October 17, 1791.

The regulations governing party walls in force in the original federal city have been made applicable by custom to the territory of the city of Washington outside the original city, except where the property-owner objected at the time to an attempted construction of a party wall and took measures to prevent it. Walker v. Gish (260 U. S. 447, 67 L. Ed. 344, 43 Sup. Ct. 174), affg. (51 App. D. C. 4, 273 Fed. 366).

The building regulations of the District of Columbia in respect of party walls are neither statutes nor ordinances; they are mere rules for the enforcement of existing rights, and have no force outside the limits of the city of Washington as they existed at the time the regulations were promulgated. Fowler v. Koehler (43 App. D. C. 349, Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1161).

CONTRIBUTION

One making use of a party wall cannot avoid contributing to the cost thereof on the theory that the regulations governing such walls are so discriminatory as to the second users as to render them unconstitutional. Walker

v. Gish (260 U. S. 447, 67 L. Ed. 344, 43 Sup. Ct. 174), affg. (51 App. D. C. 4, 273 Fed. 366).

A landowner making use of a party wall erected by the adjoining owner is required to contribute his fair proportion of the cost thereof to the person erecting the wall, or his successor in interest, though the wall was not erected under an agreement to contribute. Fowler v. Koehler (43 App. D. C. 349, Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1161).

Where plaintiff built a substantial wall on the dividing line with the knowledge of one of the trustees of the adjoining property and with the consent and approval of the building inspector, and the said trustee made use of the said wall, the wall was a "party wall" and the trustees were bound to pay half of the cost thereof although the other trustee did not have knowledge. Krupsaw v. Welch ((D. C.-D. C.), 34 Fed. Sup. 396).

DAMAGES

An adjoining owner is obliged to make good all damages occasioned by his interference with a party wall. Fowler v. Saks (7 Mackey (18 D. C.) 570, 7 L. R. A. 649).

DIVISION WALL

Where the owner of two pieces of property erected attached buildings on each lot, the supporting wall between the buildings not being exactly on the dividing line between the lots, such wall was not a party wall but a division wall and when thereafter the owner sold the properties to different purchasers after which the buildings were torn down no party wall easement existed. The question of whether the purchasers might have made the division wall a party wall by mutual consent was not decided. Moore v. Shoemaker (10 App. D. C. 6).

One cannot compel the removal of a new, appropriate, and more substantial division wall and fence erected by one of the adjacent owners at his own expense, but without the consent of the other owner, when the original wall and fence had been erected by mutual consent and it was impractical to repair the old wall. Perry v. Reeve (56 App. D. C. 243, 12 Fed. (2d) 184).

EASEMENT CREATED

The erection of a party wall by one of two adjoining owners does not amount to a taking of property for private use but amounts only to the establishment of a mutual easement or servitude. Fowler v. Koehler (43 App. D. C. 349, Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1161). To same effect, Perry v. Reeve (56 App. D. C. 243, 12 Fed. (2d) 184).

ENCROACHMENT NOT PARTY WALL

Wall of bay window built on party line, the rest of the wall being 3 feet from the line, is merely an encroachment on adjoining property, rather than a wall built on dividing line for mutual advantage. Smoot v. Heyl (227 U. S. 518, 57 L. Ed. 621, 33 Sup. Ct. 336), affg. (34 App. D. C. 480).

MUST PROVE TITLE

Plaintiff must prove his own title in land in order to establish that he was owner of dominant servitude in party wall. Johnson v. Simmons (53 App. D. C. 356, 290 Fed. 331).

RIGHT OF SUBSEQUENT OWNER

Purchaser of lot with party wall on it, in which adjoining owner has not exercised his right, succeeds to rights of the builder, and is entitled to compensation when such wall is used by adjoining owner. Walker v. Gish (51 App. D. C. 4, 273 Fed. 366).

§ 1–626 [25: 455]. Wall extending over lot line.

If the wall of any house already erected cover seven inches or more in width of the adjoining lot, it shall be deemed a party wall, according to the regulations for building in the District, and the ground so occupied more than seven inches in width shall be paid for as provided in section 1–625. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1426, ch. 854, § 1587.)

§ 1–627 [25: 456]. Surveyor to certify and record location of party wall.

The surveyor shall ascertain and certify and put on record, at the request and expense of any person interested therein, the fact of the occupation of land by a party wall, as mentioned in section 1–626. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1426, ch. 854, § 1588.)

§ 1–628 [25: 457]. Adjusting lines of buildings—Certificate as evidence.

It shall be the duty of the surveyor to attend, and examine the foundation or walls of any house to be erected for the purpose of adjusting the line of the front of such building to the line of the street and correctly placing the party wall on the line of division between that and the adjoining lot; and his certificate of the fact shall be admitted as evidence and binding on the parties interested. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1426, ch. 854, § 1589; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 545, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

Section 1589 of the act of 1901, cited to text, was amended by striking out the words "when requested," following "to attend," and by striking out the words "when the same shall be level with the street or surface of the ground," following the word "erected."

§ 1–629 [10: 22]. Commissioners of the District of Columbia to prescribe fees for surveyor—Schedule of fees to be displayed.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized from time to time to prescribe a schedule of fees to be charged by the surveyor for his services, which schedule shall be printed and conspicuously displayed in the office of the surveyor. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1426, ch. 854, § 1593.)

§ 1–804 [20: 47]. Bond of contractors, laborers, materialmen—Right to sue, intervene—Surety—Liability—Limitations—Notice.

Any person or persons entering into a formal contract with the District of Columbia for the construction of any public building, or the prosecution and completion of any public work, or for alteration and/or repairs, including painting and decorating, upon any public building or public work, shall be required, before commencing such work, to execute the usual penal bond in an amount not less than the contract price, with good and sufficient sureties, with the additional obligation that such contractor or contractors shall promptly make payments to all persons supplying him or them with labor and materials in the prosecution of the work provided for in such contract; and any person, company, or corporation who has furnished labor or materials used in the construction or repair of any public building or public work, and payment for which has not been made, shall have the right to intervene and be made a party to any action instituted by the District of Columbia on the bond of the contractor, and to have their rights and claims adjudicated in such action and judgment rendered thereon, subject, however, to the priority of the claim and judgment of the District of Columbia.

If the full amount of the liability of the surety on said bond is insufficient to pay the full amount of said claims and demands, then, after paying the full amount due the District of Columbia, the remainder shall be distributed pro rata among said interveners. If no suit should be brought by the District of Columbia within six months from the completion and final settlement of said contract, then the person or persons supplying the contractor with labor and materials shall, upon application therefor, and furnishing affidavit to the District of Columbia that labor or materials for the prosecution of such work has been supplied by him or them, and payment for which has not been made, be furnished with a certified copy of said contract and bond, upon which he or they shall have a right of action, and shall be, and are hereby, authorized to bring suit in the name of the District of Columbia in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, irrespective of the amount in controversy in such suit, and not elsewhere for his or their use and benefit, against said contractor and his sureties, and to prosecute the same to final judgment and execution: Provided, That where suit is instituted by any of such creditors on the bond of the contractor it shall not be commenced until after the complete performance of said contract and final settlement thereof, and shall be commenced within one year after the performance and final settlement of said contract, and not later: Provided further, That where a suit is instituted by a creditor or by creditors, only one action shall be brought, and any creditor may file his claim in such action and be made party thereto within one year from the completion of the work under said contract, and not later. If the recovery on the bond should be inadequate to pay the amounts found due to all of said creditors, judgment shall be given to each creditor pro rata of the amount of the recovery. The surety on said bond may pay into the registry of said court, for distribution among said claimants and creditors, the full amount of the sureties' liability, to wit, the penalty named in the bond, less any amount which said surety may have had to pay to the District of Columbia by reason of the execution of said bond, and upon so doing the surety will be relieved from further liability: And provided further, That in all suits instituted under the provisions of this section such personal notice of the pendency of such suits, informing them of their right to intervene as the court may order, shall be given to all known creditors, and in addition thereto notice of publication in some newspaper of general circulation, published in the District of Columbia, for at least three successive weeks, the last publication to be at least three months before the time limited therefor. (Feb. 28, 1899, 30 Stat. 906, ch. 218; July 7, 1932, 47 Stat. 608, ch. 441.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The 1932 act. cited to the text, did not expressly amend the act of 1899, but rather superseded it.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

BOND MANDATORY

It is clearly evident from reading the enacting clause as well as title, that Congress recognized that no legislation was necessary to enable the Commissioners to require the usual penal bond with sufficient sureties. Equitable Surety Co. v. United States ex rel. McMillan (234 U. S. 448, 58 L. Ed. 1394, 34 Sup. Ct. 803).

There are two reasons why the bond cannot be treated as voluntary. One is that the declaration counts specifically upon a statutory bond. The second is that a suit in the name of the United States could not be brought upon a voluntary bond. United States ex rel. W. A. Pierce Co. v. Faircloth (49 App. D. C. 323, 265 Fed. 963).

CHANGES IN CONTRACT

In a contractor's bond given under this section for the erection of a public building, changes in the contract, without knowledge of the surety, do not release him from his obligation to pay for supplies, so far as they are supplied in accordance with the original contract. Equitable

Surety Co. v. United States ex rel. McMillan (234 U. S. 448, 58 L. Ed. 1394, 34 Sup. Ct. 803).

CONSTRUCTION

This act should receive liberal construction in aid of the object whose accomplishment is so evidently intended. Equitable Surety Co. v. United States ex rel. McMillan (234 U. S. 448, 58 L. Ed. 1394, 34 Sup. Ct. 803).

Decisions of Third Circuit Court of Appeals and Maryland Federal District Court, construing 40 U. S. C. § 270, limiting time for filing of creditor's intervening petition in action on bond of contractor for public work, are persuasive, but are not binding on District of Columbia Federal District Court construing this section. District of Columbia v. American Excavation Co. (D. C., D. C. 1946, 64 F. Supp. 19).

CONTRACT RELIED UPON

In action on a contractor's statutory bond, the exclusion of testimony as to the terms of a prior oral agreement was proper, when the witnesses had just made clear to the court that they were relying upon two instruments which together embodied the terms of the verbal agreement. H. Herfurth, Jr., Inc. v. United States (66 App. D. C. 220, 85 Fed. (2d) 719).

"FINAL SETTLEMENT"

Congress by merely transferring the function previously performed by the treasury to the General Accounting Office, did not intend to disturb the construction of the statute or to make final determinations in the executive departments any the less final settlements within the meaning of the Heard Act (U. S. C., title 40, sec. 270) than they had been before. Globe Indemnity Co. v. United States (291 U. S. 476, 78 L. Ed. 924, 54 Sup. Ct. 499).

Action taken by the assistant administrator in approving the report of the director of construction constituted a determination, made and recorded in accordance with established administrative practice by the department having the contract in charge, that the contract was completed and that the final payment was due. This action of the assistant administrator was a "final settlement" within the meaning of the Heard Act. H. G. Christman Co. v. Michigan Gypsum Co. (85 Fed. (2d) 474).

The settlement which is held "final" for the periods of limitation is a settlement of the entire contract and of all substantial claims arising under it and its performance. United States Casualty Co. v. District of Columbia (71 App. D. C. 92, 107 Fed. (2d) 652).

In construing the term "final settlement" in this section, the court considered decisions construing the Heard Act (U. S. C. Title 40, § 270) controlling. United States Casualty Co. v. District of Columbia (71 App. D. C. 92, 107 Fed. (2d) 652).

LIMITATION ON INTERVENTION

The limitation of one year in this section for filing of creditor's intervening petition in action on bond of contractor for public work is not jurisdictional, and the District of Columbia Federal District Court has discretion for good cause shown to grant leave to file such petition after the expiration of one year. District of Columbia v. American Excavation Co. (D. C., D. C. 1946, 64 F. Supp. 19).

In enacting this section prescribing one-year period within which must be filed a creditor's intervening petition in action on bond of contractor for public work, Congress would be assumed to have acted reasonably and not to have intended to place on a creditor desiring to assert his rights the burden of examining in the clerk's office the file of every suit instituted within the preceding year. District of Columbia v. American Excavation Co. (D. C., D. C. 1946, 64 F. Supp. 19).

Where a claimant had not been aware of pendency of another suit on bond of contractor for public work, and became aware of such fact after the expiration of a year, the District of Columbia Federal District Court had authority, in the exercise of sound discretion, to grant claimant leave to intervene nunc pro tunc, notwithstanding this section prescribing one-year period within which claimant's intervening petition must be filed. District of Columbia v. American Excavation Co. (D. C., D. C. 1946, 64 F. Supp. 19).

PARTIES TO ACTION

It is verified from the language of the act that an action on the bond may be brought against the surety alone. Adequate rules of procedure are available to make the contractor a party defendant should he interpose a defense helpful to the bondsman or one of the creditors. United States ex rel. Goodenow v. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. (C. C. A. 6; 5 Fed. (2d) 412).

RIGHTS OF UNPAID MATERIALMEN

The object of the legislation was to give laborers and materialmen the right to bring an action on the bond. The nominal obligee is, with respect to these third parties, a mere trustee, and the obligors as well as the surety and principal contractor enter into the obligation in full view of this. Equitable Surety Co. v. United States ex rel. McMillan (234 U. S. 448, 58 L. Ed. 1394, 34 Sup. Ct. 803).

If under state statutes of similar language and purpose recovery would be allowed from the private owner of a building on the theory that plaintiff's material went into its construction, there is even greater reason for liability under a bond to pay all persons supplying materials in the prosecution of the work. United States ex rel. Turnover v. Charles H. Tompkins Co. (63 App. D. C. 332, 72 Fed. (2d) 383).

Although unpaid materialmen are not named parties in the reinsurance agreements and hence cannot at common law sue thereon as parties, and when appellants do not sue upon the first reinsurance agreements in the strict common-law sense, they may sue as a third-party beneficiary of the agreements as having rights in equity. Bruckner-Mitchell v. Sun Indemnity Co. (65 App. D. C. 178, 82 Fed. (2d) 434).

Materialman has action against surety on contractor's bond for balance of materials furnished although he contracted with dealer through which cement was supplied to the contractor, as the dealer was in financial difficulties and the materials were furnished to the contractor. Continental Casualty Co. v. North American Cement Corp. (67 App. D. C. 234, 91 Fed. (2d) 307).

SUIT ON BOND REMOVABLE

A suit wherein claim is made under a bond furnished pursuant to a law of the United States arises under a law of the United States and is removable. Rogge v. Michael Del Balso, Inc. (15 Fed. Supp. 499).

§ 1–805 [20: 48]. Contractors' bond not required for contracts not exceeding $1,000—Contracts not to be subdivided to reduce amount.

In all cases where the Commissioners of the District of Columbia contract for work or material involving a sum not exceeding $1,000, it shall not be necessary for said Commissioners to require a bond with said contract; but no work capable of execution under a single contract, nor any purchase of material where the total expenditure involved is greater than $1,000, shall be subdivided or lessened for the purpose of reducing the sum of money to be paid therefor to less than that amount. (June 28, 1906, 34 Stat. 546, ch. 3575; June 26, 1912, 37 Stat. 168, ch. 182.)

The 1912 amendment raised the amount from $500 to $1,000.

CROSS REFERENCE

Application of this section to contracts for construction or repair of streets or sewers, §§ 7–602 to 7–603.

§ 1–806 [20: 49]. Formal contract with bond not required in contracts not exceeding $1,000.

Formal written contracts with bond for work or the purchase of supplies and materials for the District of Columbia shall not be required in cases where the cost of such work or supplies or materials does not exceed the sum of $1,000. (June 26, 1912, 37 Stat. 168, ch. 182.)

§ 1–807 [20: 50]. Retents.

On all contracts made by the District of Columbia for construction work there shall be withheld, until completion and acceptance of the work, a retent of 10 per centum of the total amount of any payments made thereunder as a guaranty fund that the terms of such contracts shall be strictly and faithfully performed: Provided, however, That whenever 50 per centum of the work required under a contract for construction work has been completed and payments therefor have been made the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, in their sole discretion, may authorize subsequent payments to be made to the contractor without withholding from such subsequent payments 10 per centum thereof as required by this section, or the said Commissioners may authorize retention from such subsequent payments of less than 10 per centum thereof; and the said Commissioners, in their sole discretion, may further authorize payment in full, including retained percentages, for each separate building or public work on which the price is stated separately in the contract upon completion and acceptance of such building or work. (Mar. 3, 1887, 24 Stat. 501, ch. 355; Mar. 31, 1906, 34 Stat. 94, ch. 1356, § 1; Aug. 3, 1949, 63 Stat. 493, ch. 386.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of Aug. 3, 1949, cited to text, removed the exception: "(except as provided in section 7–603)," formerly a part of the first sentence appearing after the words "construction work." The act deleted provisions regarding the duration of retent on contracts for the construction of pavements, bridges, sewers, buildings and other works, and added the proviso giving discretionary powers to the commissioners of the District of Columbia re retents and payments thereof.

§ 1–808 [20: 51]. Advertisement for proposals—Limitation on authority to contract for purchase—Exception.

Except as otherwise provided by law all purchases and contracts for supplies or services by the government of the District of Columbia, except for personal services, shall be made by advertising a sufficient time previously for proposals respecting the same, when the public exigencies do not require the immediate delivery of the articles, or performance of the service. When immediate delivery or performance is required by the public exigency, the articles or services required may be procured by open purchase or contract, at the places and in the manner in which such articles are usually bought and sold, or such services engaged, between individuals. No contract for purchase shall hereafter be made unless the same be authorized by law or be made under an appropriation adequate to its fulfilment. If any or all of such proposals shall be rejected, advertisements for proposals shall again be invited and proceeded with in the same manner: Provided, That this section shall not be construed to be applied to any purchase or service rendered for the District of Columbia when the aggregate amount involved does not exceed the sum of $100. (Mar. 2, 1861, 12 Stat. 220, ch. 84, § 10; Jan. 27, 1894, 28 Stat. 33, ch. 22; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 975, ch. 192; Oct. 10, 1940, 54 Stat. 1109, ch. 851, § 1.)

LABORERS

Executive order requiring employment of persons on relief for all projects would seem to exceed the executive authority given by the act which limits such preference to road-building projects only. It also prohibits discrimination in favor of veterans, and thereby denies the applicability of the Veterans' Preference Act. Spang v. Roper (13 Fed. Supp. 840).

RATE WHEN FIXED BY SECRETARY OF LABOR

Secretary of Labor does not have the power, when he has once found that the rates prevailing at a particular point of time differ from the rates then being paid by the contractor, to postpone or defer the time when his findings shall become effective. United States ex rel. Wylie v. W. S. Barstow & Co. (79 Fed. (2d) 496).

Surety cannot reduce the amount of the claims on the ground that the prevailing rate of wages for work of a similar nature in Batavia, N. Y., where the buildings were constructed, was lower than the rate fixed by the Secretary of Labor, as the contract and statute provide the rate of the Secretary of Labor shall be conclusive and acknowledgment of the contractor before laborers went to work of the right of the Government to fix the rate of wage. United States ex rel. Johnson v. Morley Construction Co. (17 Fed. Supp. 378).

RELEASE BY ANOTHER CONTRACT

This section which forbade any contract that did not protect laborers on public buildings also forbade any release—another contract—which deprived them of the protection so granted. United States ex rel. Johnson v. Morley Construction Co. (98 Fed. (2d) 78).

REMEDY OF LABORERS

Congress did not contemplate that laborers and mechanics employed on public buildings may accept compensation at something less than the alleged prevailing wage and thereafter proceed under the Heard Act (U. S. C., title 40, § 270) upon the contractor's bond in a court of law to recover additional compensation upon theory that they were entitled to a different classification as to character of labor performed and therefore to a higher rate of wages. United States ex rel. Boucher v. Murphy (11 Fed. Sup. 572).

SUFFICIENCY OF INDICTMENT

When action is based upon the failure to pay workmen the prevailing wage, the indictment is defective for failure to specify what was the prevailing wage. United States v. Terranova (7 Fed. Sup. 989).

§ 1–816 [20: 57]. Insurance of District of Columbia property.

After February 25, 1885, property belonging to the District of Columbia may be insured in advance for periods of five years or less. (Feb. 25, 1885, 23 Stat. 313, ch. 145.)

§ 1–816a. Payment of fire insurance premiums.

No District of Columbia appropriation shall be used for the payment of premiums or other cost of fire insurance. (June 28, 1944, 58 Stat. 533, ch. 300, § 12.)

§ 1–817 [20: 58]. Sewerage agreement with Maryland authorized.

For the protection of streams flowing through United States government parks and reservations in the District of Columbia from pollution by sewage discharged therein from sewerage systems of Maryland towns and villages bordering said District, the Commissioners are authorized to enter into an agreement with the proper authorities of the state of Maryland for the drainage of such sewerage systems into and through the sewerage system of the District of Columbia; and the said Commissioners are further authorized to permit connections of Maryland sewers with the District of Columbia sewerage system at or near the District line whenever, in their judgment, the sanitary conditions of streams flowing into and through such United States government parks and reservations in the District of Columbia are such as to demand the elimination of such pollution: Provided, That all cost of construction of such sewers to and connection with the sewerage system of the District of Columbia shall be paid by the proper authorities of the state of Maryland, and that said state shall enter into such agreement with the Commissioners and shall guarantee the protection of the District of Columbia sewerage system from unauthorized connections thereto, and shall reimburse the District of Columbia for the actual cost of pumping and handling such sewerage by annual payments for such service as determined by the commissioners in such agreement; all such sums collected therefor to be paid into the treasury of the United States through the Collector of Taxes to the credit of the District of Columbia. (Sept. 1, 1916, 39 Stat. 717, ch. 433, § 9.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

Act of July 11, 1940, 54 Stat. 748, ch. 579, grants the consent of Congress to the States of Maryland and West Virginia and the Commonwealths of Virginia and Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia as signatory bodies, to enter into a compact for the creation of a Potomac Valley Conservancy District and the establishment of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River basin.

§ 1–818 [20: 99]. Sale of property unfit for service—Proceeds credited to appropriation.

Whenever any horses, carriages, or wagons, or property, of any description may become unfit for service, in the judgment of the commissioners, the same shall be sold at auction to the highest bidder, after due advertisement, and the proceeds thereof shall be paid into the treasury of the United States to the credit of the appropriation out of which the purchase was made. (Mar. 3, 1883, 22 Stat. 470, ch. 95, § 1.)

§ 1–819 [20: 100]. Exchange of equipment on purchase of new.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized and empowered, when in their discretion it shall be deemed to the advantage of the public service, to exchange typewriters, adding machines, pianos, machinery, and other equipment, in part or full payment for new articles of similar or improved character, credit for the value of said personal property so exchanged to be allowed on vouchers in payment for such new articles as may be purchased, the balance remaining due after said credit to be paid out of the appropriation to which said purchase is properly chargeable. The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are empowered to settle, in their discretion, claims and suits, either at law or in equity, against the District of Columbia whenever the cause of action—

(a) Arises out of the negligence or wrongful act, either of commission or omission, of any officer or employee of the District of Columbia for whose negligence or acts the District of Columbia, if a private individual, would be liable prima facie to respond in damages, irrespective of whether such negligence occurred or such acts were done in the performance of a municipal or a governmental function of said District: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall be construed as depriving the District of Columbia of any defense it may have to any suit, either at law or in equity, which may be instituted against it or to give any person, corporation, partnership, or association any right to institute any suit against the District of Columbia which did not exist prior to June 5, 1930.

(b) Arises out of the existence of facts and circumstances which place the claim or suit within the doctrines and principles of law decided by the courts of the District of Columbia or by the Supreme Court of the United States to be controlling in the District of Columbia. (Feb. 11, 1929, 45 Stat. 1160, ch. 173, § 1; June 5, 1930, 46 Stat. 500, ch. 400.)

DEFENSES

District is not responsible when conducting a hospital in a governmental capacity and when exerting its police power in caring for the sick. Jones v. District of Columbia (51 App. D. C. 319, 279 Fed. 188).

Congress authorized the Commissioners to waive the statute of limitations in favor of property owners where claims were presented not later than February 11, 1930; but as to claims filed later, the District was required to avail itself of the defense of the statute. Lake, to Use of Peyser v. District of Columbia (63 App. D. C. 306, 72 Fed. (2d) 174).

SETTLEMENT OF CLAIM

Section allows the Commissioners to settle claims in suits against the District for negligent or wrongful acts of its employees when the District, "if a private individual would be liable prima facie to respond in damages, irrespective of whether such negligence occurred or such acts were done in the performance of a municipal or governmental function of said District." District of Columbia v. World Fire and Marine Insurance Co. (D. NOTES TO DECISIONS

LIABILITY OF HOSPITAL

Where judgment was obtained against appellant hospital for the death by negligence of a patient resulting from a transfusion of incompatible blood erroneously tested and reported as compatible by a technician in the hospital laboratory, such judgment must be affirmed since the doctrine of respondent superior applies. Such responsibility is unaffected even though agreeably to the requirements of Title 2 of the Code, the technical work was put under the "direction of a physician." National Homeopathic Hospital v. Phillips (C. A. D. C. 1950, 181 F. 2d 293, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 295).

SCOPE

This section embraces "the practice of the healing art," instead of merely "the practice of medicine and surgery." Rubin v. United States (59 App. D. C. 195, 37 Fed. (2d) 991).

§ 2–102 [20: 122]. License required—Terms of license to be observed.

No person shall practice the healing art in the District of Columbia who is not (a) licensed so to do, or (b) if exempted from licensure under sections 2–133 or 2–134, then duly registered.

No person shall practice the healing art in the District of Columbia otherwise than in accordance with the terms of his license or of his registration, as the case may be. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1327, ch. 352, §§ 2, 3.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CIVIL ACTION

Where defendant, who was not licensed under this section, represented to plaintiff that he could either cure or help her by giving her treatments for arthritis for a price, and plaintiff paid part of price, plaintiff was entitled to recover from defendant amount paid on ground that she was not in pari delicto with defendant and, even if she were, the law having been passed for protection of public, public interest would be best served by requiring defendant to pay back fruits of his illegal agreement. Rubin v. Douglas (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 59 A. 2d 690).

EVIDENCE

Evidence that defendant told patient he would cure her of asthma for a stated price, that patient was put to bed in rear bedroom of defendant's home, and that defendant put patient on a diet, brought food to her, and administered pills and liquid medicine was sufficient to sustain conviction for "practicing the healing art" without a license. Powers v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1942, 128 F. 2d 300, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 1300, 316 U. S. 693, 86 L. Ed. 1764).

INFORMATION

An information charging in language of this section that defendant unlawfully practiced the healing art by examining, treating, and prescribing for a named person without having first obtained a license to do so was sufficient to charge an offense even though it did not include the definition of practice in section 2–101. Powers v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1942, 128 F. 2d 300, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 1300, 316 U. S. 693, 86 L. Ed. 1764).

REVIEW

In determining whether evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for unlawfully practicing the healing art without a license, the reviewing court was required to look at all of defendant's actions as they appeared in the record and to conclude therefrom whether the evidence was sufficient to support the determination of the trial court. Powers v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1942, 128 F. 2d 300, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 1300, 316 U. S. 693, 86 L. Ed. 1764).

§ 2–103 [20: 123]. Commission on licensure—Creation—Officers—Seal—Standards—License on years of practice.

There is hereby created a Commission on Licensure to Practice the Healing Art in the District of Columbia, consisting of the president of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, the United States Commissioner of Education, the United States District Attorney for the District of Columbia, the superintendent of public schools of the District of Columbia, and the health officer of the District of Columbia, each ex officio. The Commission shall elect a president and a vice-president. The health officer shall be the secretary and treasurer of the commission. The Commission shall make and from time to time may alter such rules as it deems necessary for the conduct of its business, and for the execution and enforcement of the provisions of this chapter. It shall adopt a common seal, and from time to time alter the same as to it seems proper. The courts shall take judicial notice of such seal.

The Commission shall establish minimum standards of preprofessional and professional education in the healing art and may establish minimum standards for hospitals for interne training. It may determine whether preprofessional and professional schools, and whether hospitals, attain such standards. It shall keep a record of its investigations and determinations with respect to all schools and hospitals and shall approve and enter in a proper register every school and every hospital attaining the prescribed standard or which had attained such standard during its existence. The Commission may redetermine from time to time the standing of any school or hospital and may revise its register accordingly. The Commission shall give no credit for any certificate, diploma, or degree emanating from any school, and it may refuse to give any credit for any certificate or diploma emanating from any hospital, not duly registered as provided by this chapter: Provided, That this requirement as to registration shall not apply in the case of persons applying for license on years of practice under the provisions of section 2–120. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1327, ch. 352, §§ 4, 5.)

§ 2–104 [20: 124]. Commission on licensure to receive and record applications for licenses—Issuance of licenses—Registration and payment of fees—Penalties.

The Commission shall receive, number consecutively, and record all applications presented in due form for licenses and for registration; but such applications may be classified according to their respective purposes, and numbered consecutively and registered according to the several classes thus established. If the Commission finds that an applicant is entitled to a license by virtue of an outstanding license to practice medicine and surgery in the District of Columbia or by virtue of years of practice, under the provisions of section 2–120, or by virtue of reciprocity, under the provisions of section 2–121, or by virtue of a certificate or diploma by a national examining board as provided in section 2–121a, it shall issue to him a license accordingly. If the Commission finds that an applicant has submitted satisfactory proof of age, moral character, preprofessional education, professional education, and, if required by the Commission, of hospital training, but must be subjected to an examination to determine his professional fitness, under section 2–122, it shall certify him to the proper examining board for that purpose; and upon receipt of a report from any such board, satisfactory to the Commission, showing that the applicant has passed such an examination, the Commission, being of the opinion that the applicant is in all other respects legally qualified, shall issue to him a license to practice the healing art in the manner described in his application and as authorized by law, in whatever class the Commission shall find him qualified to so practice.

During the month of December each year, every person holding a license to practice the healing art in the District of Columbia issued by the Commission on Licensure shall register with the secretary-treasurer of said Commission his name and office address and such other information as the Commission may deem necessary upon blanks obtainable from said secretary-treasurer and thereupon pay a registration fee of $2, said fee to be paid in the manner provided in section 2–135. On or before the 1st day of December each year it shall be the duty of the secretary-treasurer to mail to each person holding a license to practice the healing art in the District of Columbia issued by the Commission on Licensure, at his last-known address, a blank form for registration. Every person holding more than one type of license to practice the healing art in the District of Columbia issued by the Commission on Licensure shall be required to register each license separately. In the event of failure to register on or before the 31st of December a penalty of $5 will be imposed which shall be paid in the manner provided in section 2–135. Should the licentiate fail to register and pay the penalty imposed, and continue to practice his profession in the District of Columbia, he shall at the end of ten days from said date be considered as practicing without a license and penalized as otherwise provided in this chapter.

Upon receipt of the application blank properly executed together with the $2 registration fee the registrant shall be mailed a registration card showing that the registration fee has been paid for the coming calendar year.

On or before the 1st day of April each year, the said Commission shall cause to be printed and mailed to each person who shall have registered in accordance with the provisions of this section a list of the names of all such registered persons. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1327, ch. 352, § 6; Sept. 26, 1942, 56 Stat. 757, ch. 562, § 1; April 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 174, ch. 216, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

Act of April 20, 1948, cited to text, amended the first paragraph by adding the words "or by virtue of a certificate or diploma by a national examining board as provided in section 2–121a".

The act of Sept. 26, 1942, cited to text, amended section by adding last three paragraphs.

The catchline has been reworded.

§ 2–105 [20: 125]. Power to appoint and discharge examiners and other employees—Contract for quarters and supplies.

The Commission may (a) appoint, suspend, and remove such examiners, counsel, clerks, inspectors, and other officers and employees as may be authorized by law; (b) enter into contracts for the use and occupancy of such quarters as may be necessary for its purposes; but the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized to furnish such quarters without cost to the Commission if the necessary space is available in any building under their control; and (c) buy such supplies as may be necessary for its work and for the execution and enforcement of this chapter: Provided, That the Commission incurs no indebtedness in excess of money actually available. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1328, ch. 352, § 7.)

§ 2–106 [20: 126]. Boards of Examiners—Appointment and tenure—Qualifications—Rules.

The Commission shall appoint boards of examiners as follows: (a) A Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences; (b) a Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy; (c) a Board of Examiners in Chiropractic; and (d) a Board of Examiners in Naturopathy. The commission shall appoint (e) a Board of Examiners in Midwifery; and (f) such other boards of examiners in drugless healing as are necessary under the provisions of this chapter. The Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences, and the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy, shall each consist of five members. Boards of Examiners in Midwifery and boards of examiners in drugless healing may consist of three to five members, as the Commission deems proper. No examiner shall be appointed for a term longer than five years, and all appointments shall be made so that the term of one member of each board shall expire on the 31st day of December of each year. The Commission shall appoint no person as a member of any such board who is not a citizen of the United States and who has not been a resident of the District of Columbia for at least three years immediately preceding his appointment. The Commission may appoint as members of such boards persons employed in the service of the federal government and of the government of the District of Columbia; and persons so employed may accept such appointment and may receive such compensation for their services as examiners as may be provided by law and by the regulations of the Commission. A member of any board is not debarred by such membership from employment under the federal government or the government of the District of Columbia, not inconsistent with the discharge of his duties as a member of such board.

Each examining board shall elect a chairman and a secretary and may make such rules regarding the discharge of its duties as the Commission may approve. Each board shall conduct examinations and make reports as required by law and by the rules of the commission. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1328, ch. 352, §§ 8, 9.)

CROSS REFERENCE

General provisions as to rules and regulations, § 2–103.

§ 2–107 [20: 127]. Board of Examiners in Basic Sciences—Qualifications.

The Commission shall appoint the several members of the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences so that there will be on said Board at all times one or more members capable of determining whether applicants have or have not a sufficient knowledge of the sciences of anatomy, physiology, chemistry, bacteriology, and pathology to enable such applicants to understand and to apply such sciences in the study and practice of the healing art. No member of the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences shall teach or practice the healing art while serving in that capacity. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1328, ch. 352, § 10.)

§ 2–108 [20: 128]. Reference of applicants to Board of Examiners in Basic Sciences—Examination—Subjects—Acceptance of examination before foreign board—Certification to other boards.

The Commission shall refer to the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences every applicant for a license to practice the healing art in the District of Columbia, except those entitled to licenses by virtue of licenses to practice medicine and surgery in the District of Columbia outstanding February 27, 1929, or by virtue of years of practice of osteopathy or some form of drugless healing in the District of Columbia at that time, for determination of the applicant's ability to understand and to apply the sciences of anatomy, physiology, chemistry, bacteriology, and pathology to the study and practice of the healing art. The Commission shall refer such applicants so that the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences and any member of that Board shall not know the method of practice the applicant has studied or the method of practice he intends to follow. The Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences may examine any applicant referred to it, but it may accept in lieu of examination proof that the applicant has passed, before a Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences, by whatsoever name it may be known, or before any examining or licensing board in the healing art as that art is hereinbefore defined, of any State, Territory, or other jurisdiction under the United States, or of any foreign country, an examination in anatomy, physiology, chemistry, bacteriology, and pathology, as comprehensive and as exhaustive as that required in the District of Columbia under authority of this chapter. The Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences shall report its findings to the Commission. An applicant who is reported by the Board as qualified in the sciences of anatomy, physiology, chemistry, bacteriology, and pathology, but who is not entitled to a license to practice the healing art, without examination, shall be certified by the Commission to the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy, or a board of Examiners in drugless healing, as the case may be, for determination of his professional fitness. An applicant who is reported by the Board as qualified in said sciences and who is entitled to a license by reciprocity, without examination, or by virtue of a certificate or diploma issued by a national examining board, shall thereupon be given such a license. The Commission shall issue no license to practice the healing art to any person who has not been reported by the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences as qualified in the sciences of anatomy, physiology, chemistry, bacteriology, and pathology, except to such persons as are entitled to licenses by virtue of licenses to practice medicine and surgery in the District of Columbia outstanding on February 27, 1929, and by virtue of years of practice of osteopathy or some form of drugless healing in said district prior to February 27, 1929, and except to applicants for licenses to practice midwifery. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1329, ch. 352, § 11; April 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 175, ch. 216, § 2.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of April 20, 1948, cited to text, added the words "or by virtue of a certificate or diploma issued by a national examining board" in the next-to-last sentence.

§ 2–109 [20: 129]. Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy to be appointed by Commission—Duties and qualifications.

The Commission shall appoint as members of the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy persons who have been graduated with the degree of doctor of medicine, doctor of osteopathy, or some equivalent degree by a school registered under this chapter and who have taught or practiced, or taught and practiced, medicine and surgery or osteopathy for not less than five consecutive years, the last three of which, at least, immediately preceding their respective appointments, have been in the District of Columbia.

The Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy shall be composed of four practitioners of medicine and surgery, one of whom shall be an adherent of the homeopathic school, and an osteopath. The degrees doctor of medicine and doctor of osteopathy shall be accorded the same rights and privileges under governmental regulations. They shall examine into the qualifications of all persons referred to them who desire to practice medicine and osteopathy. The questions propounded to such applicants shall be identical in every respect; with the exception of questions in the practice of medicine and practice of osteopathy which shall be propounded to applicants of these respective schools only, as the case may be, and the replies shall be examined and graded by the member or members of the board representing such schools of practice.

The Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy shall certify to the commission applicants whom they have found qualified to be licensed to practice medicine and surgery, or osteopathy and surgery, as the case may be. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1329, ch. 352, § 12.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The act of June 3, 1896, 29 Stat. 198, ch. 313, entitled "An act to regulate the practice of medicine and surgery, to license physicians and surgeons, and to punish persons violating the provisions thereof in the District of Columbia," created a Board of Medical Supervisors of the District of Columbia and defined its powers and duties. Presumably, this board has been superseded and its duties and powers transferred to the commission on licensure by the act of 1929, cited to the text, and such parts of the act of 1896 as are inconsistent with the act of 1929 are repealed by § 49 (§ 2–140) thereof.

§ 2–110 [20: 130]. Reference of applicants to Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy.

The Commission shall refer to the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy every applicant for a license to practice the healing art who does not intend and in his application agree to limit his practice to some named drugless method of healing and who is not entitled to a license without examination: Provided, That no applicant shall be certified to the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy for examination who has not been reported by the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences as qualified in the sciences of anatomy, physiology, chemistry, bacteriology, and pathology. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1330, ch. 352, § 13.)

§ 2–111 [20: 131]. Creation of examining board upon petition of adherents of any drugless method of healing—Definition of method of practice—Appointment of board members—Qualifications.

On petition of five or more adherents of any drugless method of healing, the Commission shall appoint a board of examiners to determine the fitness of applicants for licenses to practice the healing art in the District of Columbia according to that method. Every such petitioner, at the time of signing the petition, shall have practiced the healing art in some manner, not necessarily in the manner described in the petition, for not less than five consecutive years immediately preceding, in the District of Columbia. The petition shall define the method of healing for which an examining board is desired, so as clearly to differentiate that method from the unrestricted practice of the healing art. The petition shall show as nearly as may be the number of schools teaching the method of healing described in it, and shall show the nature and extent of the facilities available for the education and training of practitioners of that method. It shall supply such other information as the commission may designate. The petition shall be sworn to by each of the petitioners to the best of his knowledge and belief.

Upon the filing of proper petition for the appointment of an examining board to determine the qualifications of applicants for licenses to practice according to the method of healing defined in the petition, the Commission shall by resolution provide for the appointment of such a board and define exactly the method of practice to be covered by it and to be pursued by applicants licensed after examination by it. After the adoption of any such resolution, the Commission shall from time to time appoint boards to examine such applicants as may apply for licenses to practice the method of healing defined in such resolution. The Commission shall appoint as members of any such board persons of good repute who have been graduated with some degree appropriate to the method of practice that the appointee has followed or intends to follow, by some school registered under this chapter, and who have somewhere taught or practiced, or taught and practiced, the method of healing defined in the resolution for not less than five years immediately preceding their respective appointments, under authority of licenses empowering them so to do. In making such appointments, however, the commission shall give preference, when circumstances permit and other things are equal, to persons who have taught or practiced, or taught and practiced, the healing art according to the method defined in the resolution, in the District of Columbia, under licenses authorizing them so to do, for not less than three years immediately preceding their respective appointments: Provided, That any adherent of a method of healing for which the Commission has provided a board of examiners, who has been graduated with an appropriate degree by some school representative of that method, who has practiced according to that system in the District of Columbia for not less than five consecutive years immediately preceding February 27, 1929, and who is entitled to a license, without examination, by virtue of the provisions of section 2–120, is eligible for appointment as a member of that board. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1330, ch. 352, § 14.)

§ 2–112 [20: 132]. Reference of applicants to appropriate board of examiners.

The Commission shall refer to the appropriate board of examiners in drugless healing every applicant for a license to practice the healing art according to any method of drugless healing defined by the Commission, who intends and in his application agrees to limit his practice to the system so defined, for determination of the applicant's fitness so to practice, and who is not entitled to a license to practice without examination: Provided, That no applicant shall be certified to any board of examiners in drugless healing who has not been reported by the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences as qualified in the sciences of anatomy, physiology, chemistry, bacteriology, and pathology. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1331, ch. 352, § 15.)

§ 2–113 [20: 133]. Board of Examiners in Midwifery—Appointment—Reference of applicants to board.

The Commission may appoint, from time to time, as it deems expedient, a Board of Examiners in Midwifery, consisting of not less than three and not more than five persons, who have practiced the healing art in the District of Columbia for not less than three years immediately preceding their respective appointments, under authority of licenses authorizing them so to practice. Appointments to such boards shall be made for such terms as the Commission deems proper. The Commission may abolish any such board at any time. The Commission shall refer to a Board of Examiners in Midwifery every applicant for a license to practice midwifery who intends and in her application agrees to limit her practice to the care of women during normal pregnancy and parturition, in so far as the licentiate is able to determine whether pregnancy and parturition are normal in any particular case, for determination of the applicant's fitness so to practice, and who is not entitled to a license by virtue of an outstanding license to practice midwifery in the District of Columbia in force on February 27, 1929. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1331, ch. 352, §§ 16, 17.)

§ 2–114 [20: 134]. Examinations—Time of holding—Notice—Publication.

Examinations shall be held by the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy, the Boards of Examiners in Drugless Healing, and the Board of Examiners in Midwifery at such times as the commission may by rule or by special order determine. Examinations shall be held by the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences at such times as the Commission may by rule or by special order determine, having due relation to the dates of the examinations held by the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy and the Boards of Examiners in Drugless Healing. The Commission shall publish notice of the time and place of each examination and of other pertinent information concerning it, not less than thirty days before the first day of each such examination, in one or more newspapers of local circulation and, except in so far as relates to examinations for licenses to practice midwifery, in one or more medical or osteopathic journals of national circulation; and if there be any board or boards of examiners in drugless healing, then in a journal or journals, if there be any, of national circulation, representing a method or methods of healing corresponding to the method or methods represented by such board or boards. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1331, ch. 352, § 18; Aug. 11, 1939, 53 Stat. 1419, ch. 718.)

AMENDMENT

The 1939 amendment struck out the words "beginning on the second Monday in January and July of each year and at such other" following the word "midwifery" in the fourth line and inserted in lieu thereof the words "at such."

§ 2–115 [20: 135]. Examinations—Method of conducting—Uniform standard.

The Commission shall by rule prescribe the nature and extent of the examinations to be conducted by each of the examining boards. All applicants examined by the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences shall be subjected to the same examination and rated on the same scale, as nearly as may be. All applicants, except applicants for licenses to practice midwifery, shall be subjected to the same examination and rated on the same scale, by the respective examining boards to which they are referred by the Commission, in the diagnosis and prevention of communicable disease. Every examination shall be in writing, in the English language, but each shall be supplemented, if practicable, by laboratory and clinical tests and, if the Commission deems proper, may be supplemented by oral examinations. Every examination shall be conducted, so far as the character of the examination permits, so that no examining board and no member thereof shall know the identity of the person examined. In any one examination by any one board the questions propounded to and the problems set for each applicant shall be as nearly the same as the character of the examination will permit. As a guide for determining whether an applicant has or has not passed, the Commission shall fix by rule a uniform standard for all applicants, except that the commission may fix maximum credits to be allowed for such experience as the applicant may have had as a licensed practitioner and in the discretion of the Commission may require an applicant claiming any such credit to be subjected to clinical and laboratory tests to demonstrate what credit he shall be allowed, if any. The general rules formulated by the commission to govern examination may be modified with respect to examinations conducted by the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences and by Boards of Examiners in Midwifery, in so far as the nature and function of the examinations conducted by those boards require. Except as hereinbefore stated, all examinations shall conform as nearly as may be to a uniform standard, to the end that every licensed practitioner of the healing art in the District of Columbia may conform so far as may be possible to a single uniform standard of professional fitness. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1332, ch. 352, § 19.)

§ 2–116 [20: 136]. Examining boards to submit examination questions to commission.

The Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences, the Board of Examiners in Medicine and Osteopathy, and each board of examiners in drugless healing before which any applicant is to appear at the next ensuing examination, shall submit to the Commission, not less than ten days before each examination, such questions as may be required by the rules of the Commission governing examinations. The Commission shall cause the questions so submitted to be prepared for distribution and to be distributed in the course of the examination at appropriate times; but from the questions submitted by the several examining boards in the diagnosis and prevention of communicable diseases, the commission shall select the questions to be used, and if the commission deems proper may revise and supplement such questions, and shall submit to all applicants appearing at one examination the identical questions with respect to the subject named. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1332, ch. 352, § 20.)

§ 2–117 [20: 137]. Examinations—Method of conducting—Reports of boards.

The Commission shall provide the place or places and all necessary facilities for examinations, including such supervisors or proctors as the commission deems necessary. The Commission shall assign to each applicant a number under which his examination shall be conducted, with a view to the concealment of the identity of the examinee from the examiner, so far as may be practicable. The supervisor or proctor designated by the Commission shall collect all examination papers and deliver them or cause them to be delivered to the several examiners who are to examine them. Each examining board shall, as speedily as possible, examine all applicants referred to it and report its findings to the Commission. All reports of written examinations shall be made under the numbers of the several examiners and not under their names; but each board shall report to the Commission, under the names of the several examinees, the results of the clinical and laboratory tests and of the oral examination, if any, to which the examinee has been subjected. The written and the oral examination and the clinical and the laboratory tests shall each be rated on a basis of one hundred, and the reports of the several boards of examiners shall be made accordingly. The relative weight to be given to each, the passing grade, and the weight to be allowed for experience, shall be fixed by the Commission by regulations. The final standing of each applicant shall be determined by the Commission in accordance therewith. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1332, ch. 352, § 21.)

§ 2–118 [20: 138]. Commission to issue licenses based on reports of boards—Retention of examination papers—Papers open to inspection.

The Commission shall carefully consider the reports of the Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences and of the examining board by which any applicant has been examined, purporting to show the qualifications of the applicant. If the Commission is satisfied that the applicant is qualified to practice the healing art in accordance with law and within the limits fixed by his application, the Commission shall issue to him a license attesting that fact and authorizing him so to practice in whatever class of practice the commission has found him qualified, so long as that license is unsuspended and unrevoked. All reports of examining boards and all questions to and answers by applicants in written examinations shall be open to inspection by any person who shows to the satisfaction of the Commission that he has some proper interest in them. All examination papers shall be preserved by the Commission for a period of not less than two years. The Commission shall record all licenses in a book kept for that purpose, which shall be duly indexed. Licenses shall be consecutively numbered, except that licenses of different classes may be numbered and recorded in separate series. Licenses shall show on their faces the class of practice for which they are issued, and licentiates shall display the same prominently in their offices at all times. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1333, ch. 352, § 22.)

§ 2–119 [20: 139]. Applications for licenses to be filed with Commission—Contents of applications—Fees—Refunds.

Any person desiring to practice the healing art in the District of Columbia shall apply to the Commission, in writing, for authority so to do. The application shall be in such form and accompanied by such evidence of the qualifications of the applicant as the Commission requires. Each application shall show whether the applicant (a) seeks a license (1) on the basis of a license to practice medicine and surgery in the District of Columbia, under section 2–120; (2) on the basis of years of practice, under section 2–120; (3) on the basis of reciprocity, under section 2–121; (4) by virtue of a certificate or diploma issued by a national examining board, as provided in section 2–121a; or (5) on the basis of examination under section 2–122; or (b) seeks registration as a person exempted from licensure, under section 2–133. Each application shall be accompanied by a fee, as follows: For a license on the basis of a license to practice medicine and surgery in the District of Columbia, a fee of $1; on the basis of years of practice in the District of Columbia, a fee of $25; for a license on the basis of reciprocity, a fee of $50; for a license on the basis of a certificate or diploma from a national examining board, a fee of $25; for certification of applications for license by reciprocity in other jurisdictions, a fee of $10; for a license on the basis of examination, a fee of $25; for registration as a person exempted from license, a fee of $1; but physicians and surgeons of the United States Army, Navy, and Public Health Service, and medical officers in any other branch of the federal government whatsoever, and practitioners of the healing art residing within and licensed by states bordering on the District of Columbia, who do not maintain an office or appoint places where patients may be met within the District of Columbia, applying for registration as persons exempted from licensure in the District of Columbia, shall not be required to pay any fee in connection with any such application. The Commission may, on showing of any adequate cause, refund to an applicant for a license on the basis of examination any or all of the fee paid by him, prior to the reference of his application to an examining board for consideration, and thereafter if the applicant is by reason of sickness or other adequate cause prevented from entering the examination, the Commission may refund not more than 50 per centum of such fee. An applicant for a license by reciprocity who fails to establish his right to such a license, and an applicant for registration as a person exempted from licensure who fails to establish his right to such registration, may be repaid by the Commission not to exceed 80 per centum of the amount deposited by him with his application. (Feb. 29, 1929, 45 Stat. 1333, ch. 352, § 23; April 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 175, ch. 216, §§ 3 (a), 3 (b).)

AMENDMENTS

The act of April 20, 1948, cited to text, added provisions relating to certificate or diplomas issued by a national examining board, in third and fourth sentences.

§ 2–120 [20: 140]. Licensees in medicine, surgery, or midwifery under prior law to be relicensed—Osteopaths, chiropractors, and those who practice the healing arts to apply for license—License without examination.

Every person licensed to practice medicine and surgery or to practice midwifery in the District of Columbia under the provisions of an Act entitled "An Act to regulate the practice of medicine and surgery, to license physicians and surgeons, and to punish persons violating the provisions thereof in the District of Columbia," as approved June 3, 1896, as amended, who desires to continue so to practice after February 27, 1929, shall apply for a license so to do. As soon as practicable after February 27, 1929, the Commission shall by publication give notice of this requirement in one or more newspapers of general circulation in the District of Columbia and in one or more medical journals of national circulation. Application for such relicensing shall be made within ninety days after the publication of such notice. A licentiate who within the time thus limited applies for relicensing may continue to practice until the Commission has acted on his application and granted to him a new license, if he be entitled thereto. A licentiate who fails to make application for relicensing within the time thus limited, but who later makes such application, shall not practice until after a new license, if the Commission finds him entitled thereto, has been issued to him. Every license issued under the provisions of this section shall show whether the licentiate was licensed in the first instance on the basis of a diploma and of registration without examination, or on the basis of examination, and shall show the date of such original registration, if there be any, and of such original license.

Any person who was engaged in the practice of osteopathy in the District of Columbia on or before January 1, 1928, may deliver to the Commission, within ninety days after February 27, 1929, a written application for a license to practice osteopathy and surgery in the District of Columbia, together with satisfactory proof that the applicant is not less than twenty-one years of age and of good moral character, and had previously obtained a diploma from some legally incorporated school or college of osteopathy, and had been actively engaged in the practice of osteopathy for the past ten years, or had previously obtained a diploma from some legally incorporated college of osteopathy whose requirements were equal to those recognized by the American Osteopathic Association.

When the Commission is satisfied as to the qualifications of the applicant as aforesaid, it shall issue to him a license to practice osteopathy and surgery: Provided, That the Commission may, in its discretion, issue to such applicants licenses to practice osteopathy only, which licenses shall not permit the practice of surgery unless they satisfy the commission that they have had adequate clinical facilities at their respective colleges of graduation, or by hospital work, to enable them to practice surgery. Each license so to do shall show that it was issued on the basis of years of practice in the District of Columbia and without examination.

Any person who was engaged in the practice of chiropractic in the District of Columbia on or before January 1, 1928, may deliver to the Commission, within ninety days after February 27, 1929, a written application for license to practice chiropractic in the District of Columbia, together with satisfactory proof that the applicant is not less than twenty-one years of age and of good moral character, and had previously obtained a diploma from some legally chartered or incorporated and duly established school or college of chiropractic and was actually engaged in the practice of chiropractic in said District on January 1, 1928.

When the Commission is satisfied as to the qualifications of the applicant as aforesaid, it shall issue to him a license to practice chiropractic. Each license so to do shall show that it was issued on the basis of actual practice in the District of Columbia without examination.

Any person who has been engaged in the practice of the healing art as defined in this chapter in the District of Columbia on or before January 1, 1928, according to any other drugless method of healing, who has been graduated with a degree appropriate to the system of drugless healing that he has practiced by a legally chartered or incorporated and duly established school, and who desires to continue so to practice, shall within ninety days after February 27, 1929, submit proof, satisfactory to the commission, of such date of practice and of graduation, of the fact that he is not less than twenty-one years of age and of good moral character, and of the name, character, and limits of the method of healing practiced by him. When the Commission is satisfied as to the qualifications of the applicant as aforesaid, it shall issue to the applicant a license to practice the healing art in accordance with the system described by the applicant, if recognized by the commission as a named system of drugless healing, which shall be clearly defined and limited in the license so as to distinguish it from all other systems of practice. A license issued in any such case shall show that it was issued on the basis of years of practice and not on the basis of examination. (Feb. 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1334, ch. 352, § 24; Aug. 11, 1937, 50 Stat. 620, ch. 579.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1937 amended this section by striking out the sixth sentence of the first paragraph, which read as follows: "After five years after February 27, 1929, the Commission shall issue no license to practice the healing art in the District of Columbia on the basis of a license to practice medicine and surgery or to practice midwifery, in the District of Columbia, in force on February 27, 1929."

An applicant who desires to obtain a license without examination, by virtue of a license issued to him by a state, territory, or other jurisdiction forming a part of the United States, or by a foreign country, shall submit proof, satisfactory to the Commission, that he is not less than twenty-one years of age and is of good moral character; that he was licensed to practice the healing art in the jurisdiction whence he comes under conditions that at that time would have enabled him to obtain a license to practice the healing art in the District of Columbia, or to have obtained a license under the provisions of this chapter were it then in force; that he practiced the healing art after the issuance of said license for not less than one continuous year out of three years immediately preceding the date of his application and that he intends, if licensed by the Commission, to practice in the District of Columbia. The required one continuous year's practice may be either private, institutional or governmental, or a combination thereof. The applicant shall submit, also, proof that the licensing agency of the jurisdiction whence he comes or desires to come grants, under substantially the same terms and conditions, to licentiates of the District of Columbia of the same class, licenses to practice the healing art within its jurisdiction. When the Commission is satisfied as to the qualifications of the applicant as aforesaid and as to the readiness of the licensing agency of the jurisdiction whence the applicant comes to license, under substantially the same terms and conditions, licentiates of the licensing agency of the District of Columbia of the same class, the Commission shall issue to the applicant a license to practice the healing art corresponding in scope as nearly as may be to the license issued to him by the jurisdiction whence he comes: Provided, That an applicant who has been examined under authority of the Commission and who has failed, shall not thereafter be licensed by the Commission by virtue of reciprocity with another jurisdiction. (As amended Dec. 15, 1944, 58 Stat. 805, ch. 587.)

After December 31, 1935, every such applicant shall be required to submit, before he is referred to an examining board for examination, evidence of not less than two years' education in a college acceptable to the Commission and not less than four graded resident courses of professional study of not less than nine months each, in the same manner and to the same extent as are required of other applicants for licenses to practice the healing art.

An applicant for a license to practice midwifery shall submit proof, satisfactory to the commission, that before beginning the study of midwifery she had been graduated by a high school acceptable to the commission and thereafter studied midwifery in a school of midwifery registered under this chapter, for at least two graded courses of six months each, including attendance of not less than twenty-five cases of labor, and was duly graduated by that school. § 2–123 [20: 143]. Suspension and revocation of license—Procedure.

The District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, sitting as a court of equity, may suspend or revoke any license issued and any registration effected under this chapter, upon evidence showing to the satisfaction of the court that the licentiate or registrant, as the case may be, has been guilty of misconduct or is professionally incapacitated.

Proceedings looking toward the suspension or revocation of a license or registration shall be begun by petition filed in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia in the name of the Commission on Licensure to Practice the Healing Art, or of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, or of the major and superintendent of police of said District, and shall be verified by oath. Proceedings shall be conducted according to the ordinary rules of equity practice and such supplementary rules as said court may deem expedient to carry into effect the purpose and intent of this chapter; and said court is hereby authorized to make such supplementary rules. (3) Advertising by any medium other than the carrying or publishing of a modest professional card or the display of a modest window or street sign at the licensee's office, which professional card or window or street sign shall display only the name, address, profession, office hours, telephone connections, and, if his practice is so limited, his specialty: Provided, That in case of announcement of change of address or the starting of practice, the usual size card of announcement may be used. The size of said cards or signs shall be designated by the Board.

(4) Practicing dentistry under a false or assumed name or corporate name other than a partnership name containing the names of the partners, or any name except his full proper name which shall be the name used in his license granted by the Board.

(5) Violating this chapter or aiding any person to violate this chapter or violating or aiding any person to knowingly violate the dental practice act of any state or territory.

(6) Practicing in the employment of, or in association with, any person who is practicing in an unlawful or unprofessional manner.

The foregoing specifications of acts constituting unprofessional conduct shall not be construed as a complete definition of unprofessional conduct nor as authorizing or permitting the performance of other or similar acts not denounced, or as limiting or restricting the said court from holding that other or similar acts also constitute unprofessional conduct. (July 2, 1940, 54 Stat. 718, ch. 513, § 11.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The former law (D. C., 1929, Title 20, §§ 213, 226, 228) gave the Board power to revoke or suspend licenses or to reinstate licenses. However, the present act contains several additional causes for revocation or suspension. See also, Compiler's Note to § 2–301.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ADVERTISING

This section, by terms of which a dentist who employs "bait advertising", large or glaring light signs, pictorial or diagrammatic exhibitions or other extravagant means of alluring or attracting patients, subjects himself to suspension or revocation of his license to practice, contains terms sufficiently definite. Johnston v. Board of Dental Examiners, D. C., 1943 (134 F. 2d 9, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 119, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1177, 319 U. S. 758, 87 L. Ed. 1710).

This section, prohibiting advertising by any medium other than display of modest sign at licensee's office which shall display only the name, address, profession, office hours, telephone connection and, if his practice is so limited, his specialty, gives dentist right to maintain a window or building sign at his office and to put on that sign any and all of such information. Johnston v. Board of Dental Examiners, D. C., 1943 (134 F. 2d 9, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 119, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1177, 319 U. S. 758, 87 L. Ed. 1710).

Regulation of Board of Dental Examiners limiting a licensee to a single advertisement not to exceed 2¼ inches in width and 1 inch in height in a copy of any newspaper or publication at one time is reasonable under this chapter. Johnston v. Board of Dental Examiners, D. C., 1943 (134 F. 2d 9, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 119, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1177, 319 U. S. 758, 87 L. Ed. 1710).

SIGNS

This section, authorizing Board of Dental Examiners to make regulations designating size of sign does not require that the Board consider each licensee separately in respect to location of his office building, his floor space, and local traffic conditions, etc. Johnston v. Board of Dental Examiners, D. C., 1943 (134 F. 2d 9, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 119, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1177, 319 U. S. 758, 87 L. Ed. 1710).

Under this section authorizing Board of Dental Examiners to designate the size of signs of licensee, the Board has authority to designate the number of signs that a licensee may employ since the word "signs" as used in this section means aggregate signs. Johnston v. Board of Dental Examiners, D. C., 1943 (134 F. 2d 9, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 119, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1177, 319 U. S. 758, 87 L. Ed. 1710).

Regulation of Board of Dental Examiners providing that window signs and signs flush with building may not exceed 288 square inches in area with lettering limited to 3 inches in height and that signs of licensee protruding from building may not exceed 144 square inches in area with letters similarly limited to 3 inches in height is not unreasonable. Johnston v. Board of Dental Examiners, D. C., 1943 (134 F. 2d 9, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 119, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1177, 319 U. S. 758, 87 L. Ed. 1710).

Under this chapter, giving Board of Dental Examiners authority to designate size of licensee's sign, if a general dimensional regulation is reasonable and substantially effectuates the purpose of an act designed to promote public health and safety, it does not contravene U. S. Const. Amend. 5 guaranteeing "due process of law". Johnston v. Board of Dental Examiners, D. C., 1943 (134 F. 2d 9, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 119, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1177, 319 U. S. 758, 87 L. Ed. 1710).

§ 2–312. Procedure in revoking or suspending license—Petition—Appeal—Terms of suspension.

The District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia may suspend or revoke any license issued and any registration upon evidence showing to the satisfaction of the court that the licentiate or registrant, as the case may be, has been guilty of misconduct or is professionally incapacitated.

Proceedings looking toward the suspension or revocation of a license or registration shall be begun by petition filed in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia in the name of the Board of Dental Examiners and shall be verified by oath. Proceedings shall be conducted according to the ordinary rules of equity practice and such supplementary rules as said court may deem expedient to carry into effect the purposes and intent of this chapter; and said court is hereby authorized to make such supplementary rules. An appeal may be taken from the decision of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia to the United States Court of Appeals of said District. Any such appeal on behalf of the Board of Dental Examiners may be filed without bond. The District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia may determine whether a license or registration shall be suspended or revoked, and if such license is to be suspended said court may determine the duration of such suspension and the conditions under which such suspension shall terminate. (July 2, 1940, 54 Stat. 719, ch. 513, § 12.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The former law (D. C. Code, 1929 ed., title 20, § 228) provided for reinstatement of dentist or dental hygienist after revocation or suspension, but there seems to be no provisions in the present law for such reinstatement. See also, Compiler's Note to § 2–301.

§ 2–313. Fees—Expenses of board—Compensation of members.

That in addition to the fees heretofore fixed herein each applicant for a license as dentist shall deposit with his application a fee of $20; with each application for a duplicate license a fee of $5 shall be paid to said Board, and for each certificate issued by said board a fee of $1 shall be paid. That out of the fees paid to said board, as provided by this chapter, there shall be defrayed all expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions herein contained, including the detection and prosecution of violations of this act, together with a fee of $10 per diem for each member of said Board for each day he may be actually engaged upon business pertaining to his official duties as such Board member: Provided, That such expense shall in no event exceed the total of receipts. (July 2, 1940, 54 Stat. 719, ch. 513, § 13.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The former law (D. C. 1929, title 20, § 229) contained similar provisions and also provided for payment of unexpended funds for any fiscal year in excess of $1,000 into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. See also Compiler's Note to § 2–301.

§ 2–314. Annual registration of dentists—Fees—Penalty for failure to register—Reinstatement—Copy of register to each dentist.

During the month of December of each year, every licensed dentist shall register with the secretary-treasurer of the Board his name and office address and such other information as the Board may deem necessary upon blanks obtainable from said secretary-treasurer, and thereupon pay a registration fee of $5. On or before the 1st day of November of each year it shall be the duty of the secretary-treasurer of the Board to mail to each dentist licensed in the District of Columbia, at his last-known address, a blank form for registration. In the event of failure to register on or before the 31st day of December a fine of $5 and the registration fee of $5 will be imposed, and should the practitioner fail to register and pay the fine imposed and continue to practice his profession in the District of Columbia, he shall at the end of ten days from said date be considered as practicing illegally and penalized as otherwise provided for in this chapter. If he suspends his practice he may, in the discretion of the Board, upon furnishing satisfactory evidence as to his moral character and professional standing, be reinstated at any time upon registering and paying a prescribed fee of $25. On or before the 1st day of February, annually, said board shall issue a printed register of the names and addresses so received, together with other information deemed interesting to the profession, a copy of which shall be mailed or otherwise sent to each registrant thereon. (July 2, 1940, 54 Stat. 720, ch. 513, § 14.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The former law (D. C. 1929, Title 20, § 230) contained similar provisions; however, the registration fee was $2 and the reinstatement fee was $5. See also Compiler's Note to § 2–301.

Such expenses shall in no event exceed the total of receipts. All registration or reregistration fees shall be paid to the treasurer of the Board, and shall be paid out under the orders of the Board. And said Board is hereby authorized, upon the payment of such fees as are hereinafter provided, to renew such license or permit in the month of November for a period of three years from the 31st day of October immediately preceding the date thereof. And every license or permit not renewed within the month of November as aforesaid shall be void and of no effect unless and until renewed. Any license, permit, or renewal obtained through fraud or by any false or fraudulent representation shall be void and of no effect. No person shall make any false or fraudulent representation for the purpose of procuring a license, permit, or renewal thereof either for himself or for another.

In the event the board shall fail or refuse to renew any license or permit within the month of November, for which application has been made, it shall make written record of the reasons for such nonrenewal. Upon request of the person seeking renewal of his license or permit, the Board shall grant a hearing, and the applicant shall have the right to be represented by counsel, introduce evidence, and examine and cross-examine witnesses. The secretary of the Board is hereby empowered to administer oaths.

The said Board shall have power to require the attendance of persons and the production of books and papers and to require such persons to testify in any and all matters within its jurisdiction. The chairman and the secretary of the Board shall have power to issue subpoenas, and upon the failure of any person to attend as a witness when duly subpoenaed or to produce documents when duly directed by said Board, the board shall have power to refer the said matter to any justice of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, who may order the attendance of such witness or

The Board shall make a written report of its findings after such hearing, which report, with a transcript of the entire record of the proceedings, shall be filed with the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and, if the Board's finding shall be adverse to the person seeking reissuance of his license or permit, such license or permit shall stand revoked and annulled at the expiration of thirty days from the filing of such report, unless within said period of thirty days a writ of error shall be issued as hereinafter provided, in which event said license or permit shall stand suspended until the final determination of the Court of Appeals upon such writ of error. If an exception is taken to any ruling of the Board on matter of law, the exception shall be reduced to writing and stated in the bill of exceptions with so much of the evidence as may be material to the question or questions raised, and such bill of exceptions shall be settled by the Board and signed by the secretary within such time as the rules of the board may prescribe.

Any party aggrieved by the decision of the said Board may seek a review thereof in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, by petition under oath setting forth concisely, but clearly and distinctly, the nature of the proceeding before said Board, the trial and determination thereof, and the particular ruling upon matter of law to which exception has been taken, said petition to be presented to any justice of the Court of Appeals within thirty days after the filing of the report of said Board with the Commissioners, with such notice to the board as may be required by the rules of the Court of Appeals. If the justices shall be of the opinion that the action of the Board ought to be reviewed, a writ of error shall be issued from the Court of Appeals, within such time as may be prescribed by that court, a transcript of the record in the case sought to be reviewed, and the Court of Appeals shall review said record and affirm, reverse, or modify the judgment in accordance with law.

Every license to practice pharmacy and every permit to sell poisons for use in the arts or as insecticides and every current renewal of such permit shall be conspicuously displayed by the person to whom the same has been issued in the pharmacy, drug store, or place of business, if any, of which the said person is the owner or manager. There shall be in and for the District of Columbia a Board of Pharmacy, consisting of five licensed pharmacists, appointed by the Commissioners of said District, each of whom shall have been for the five years immediately preceding, and shall be during the term of his appointment, actively engaged in the practice of pharmacy in said District. All appointments shall be made in such manner that the term of office of one member of the Board shall expire on the thirtieth day of June of each year, but every member shall hold office after the expiration of the term for which he has been formally appointed until his successor has been appointed and qualified. No appointee shall enter upon the discharge of his duties until he has taken oath fairly and impartially to perform the same. Said Commissioners may remove, after full hearing, any member of said Board for neglect of duty or other just cause.

Annually the Board shall organize by the election of a president, a secretary, and a treasurer who shall be members of said Board, who shall hold office for one year and until their successors shall have been elected and qualified. Said Board shall have a common seal; and said treasurer shall give such bond for the faithful performance of his duties as the Commissioners of the District of Columbia deem necessary. Said Board shall hold meetings for the examination of candidates and for the discharge of such other business as may come before it, commencing on the second Thursdays in January, April, July, and October of each year and at such other times as the Board of Pharmacy shall direct; and said Board of Pharmacy shall examine all applicants for license to practice pharmacy. (May 7, 1906, 34 Stat. 177, ch. 2084, § 8; Feb. 27, 1907, 34 Stat. 1005, ch. 2085, §§ 1, 2.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

It is not clear that the statutes cited fix the term of the treasurer at one year.

AMENDMENT

The 1907 amendment changed the name of the "Board of Pharmaceutical Examiners" to "Board of Pharmacy" (see also note to § 2–603), added the words "and a treasurer" in the second line of the second paragraph and the second sentence of the second paragraph, and deleted words providing for procedure for reports to the prior-existing Board of Supervisors in Medicine and Pharmacy.

§ 2–608 [20: 199]. Board of Pharmacy to have same powers as Commission on Licensure to Practice the Healing Art—Accounting—Records—Reports.

Said Board of Pharmacy shall have all such rights, powers, and duties with respect to the examination of applicants for license as pharmacists and with reference to the issue of licenses to practice pharmacy and of permits to sell poisons for use in the arts or

The treasurer of said Board shall render to said commissioners accounts of his receipts and disbursements from time to time as said Commissioners shall direct. Said Board shall keep records of its proceedings, and such records shall be prima facie evidence of all matters contained therein in all courts in the District of Columbia. COMPILER'S NOTE

The words "said board" which are followed by the words in parentheses are contained in the 1906 act, cited to the text, and, in that act, refer to the Board of Medical Supervisors as it existed prior to the said 1906 act. The act of June 3, 1896, 29 Stat. 198, ch. 313, created this Board and defined its powers, but, presumably, this Board has been superseded and its duties and powers transferred to the Commission on Licensure by the act of February 27, 1929, 45 Stat. 1329, ch. 352, § 12 (§ 2–109).

AMENDMENT

The 1907 amendment changed the name "Board of Pharmaceutical Examiners" to "Board of Pharmacy" (see also note to § 2–603) and vested in the new Board all the powers, rights, duties, and functions with respect to the issuance and revocation of licenses to practice pharmacy and permits to sell poisons vested by the 1906 act in the Board of Supervisors in Medicine and Pharmacy. Provisions concerning the election of a secretary and a treasurer and the treasurer's bond were superseded by the 1907 amendment and similar provisions are now contained in § 2–607.

The said trust fund shall be available to pay compensation of members and employees of the Commission and reasonable and necessary expenses, including office supplies, furniture and fixtures, postage, official badges, ring equipment, trophies, and actual and necessary traveling expenses of members of the Commission or employees thereof incurred in the performance of their official duties. The entire chapter was added by the 1950 act, which was approved September 19, 1950. Sec. 19 of said act provided: "This Act shall take effect upon the expiration of the ninetieth day after the date of its enactment."

§ 2–1802. Definitions.

As used in this chapter—

(a) The term "practice of engineering" shall mean the performance of any professional service or creative work requiring engineering education, training and experience, and the application of special knowledge of the mathematical, physical, and engineering sciences to such professional services or creative work as consultation, investigation, evaluation, planning, design, and supervision of construction for the purpose of assuring compliance with specifications and design, in connection with the utilization of the forces, energies, and materials of nature in the development, production, and functioning of engineering processes, apparatus, machines, equipment, facilities, structures, works, or utilities, or any combinations or aggregations thereof employed in or devoted to public or private enterprise or uses. The term "practice of engineering" comprehends the practice of those branches of engineering, the pursuit of any of which affects the safety of life, health or property, or the public welfare. Said practice includes the doing of such architectural work as is incidental to the practice of engineering.

(b) The term "professional engineer" shall mean a person who, by reason of his special knowledge of the mathematical and physical sciences and the principles and methods of engineering analysis and design, customarily acquired by a prolonged course of specialized intellectual instruction and study and practical experience, is qualified to engage in the practice of engineering as attested by his certificate of registration as a professional engineer.

(c) The term "engineer-in-training" shall mean a candidate for registration as a professional engineer who has been granted a certificate as an engineer-in-training after successfully passing the first stage of the prescribed examination in fundamental engineering subjects, and who, upon completion of the requisite years of training and experience in engineering under the supervision of a professional engineer or similarly qualified engineer and satisfactory to the Board, shall be eligible for the second stage of the prescribed examination for registration as a professional engineer.

(d) The term "responsible charge" shall mean such degree of competence and accountability gained by education, training, and experience in engineering of a grade and character sufficient to qualify an individual to engage personally and independently in and be entrusted with the work involved in the practice of engineering.

(e) The term "institution" shall mean a school, college, university, department of a university, or other educational institution granting baccalaureate degrees in engineering, reputable, and in good standing in accordance with the rules prescribed by the Board.

(f) The term "board" shall mean the District of Columbia Board of Registration for Professional Engineers.

(g) The term "Commissioners" shall mean the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia. (Sept. 19, 1950, 64 Stat. 854, ch. 953, § 2.)

§ 2–1803. Practice of engineering declared to be subject to regulation.

In order to safeguard life, health, and property and promote the public welfare, the practice of engineering in the District of Columbia is hereby declared to be subject to regulation in the public interest. It is further declared to be a matter of public interest and concern that the profession of engineering merit and receive the confidence of the public and that only qualified persons be permitted to engage in the practice of engineering. All provisions of this chapter relating to the practice of engineering shall be construed in accordance with this declaration of policy. (Sept. 19, 1950, 64 Stat. 855, ch. 953, § 3.)

§ 2–1804. Practice of engineering without registration prohibited.

Any person engaged in or offering to engage in the practice of engineering in the District of Columbia shall submit evidence that he is qualified to practice and shall be registered as hereinafter provided; and it shall be unlawful for any person to engage or offer to engage in the practice of engineering in the District of Columbia, or by verbal claim, sign, advertisement, letterhead, card, or in any other way, represent himself to be a professional engineer, or through the use of the title including the word "engineer" or words of like import, or any other title, imply that he is a professional engineer, unless such person is registered under the provisions of this chapter. (Sept. 19, 1950, 64 Stat. 855, ch. 953, § 4.)

§ 2–1805. Board of registration—Appointment of members — Qualification — Terms — Removal of members.

Each member of the Board first appointed hereunder shall be registered as a professional engineer under this chapter. On the expiration of the term of any member of the Board, the Commissioners shall appoint for a term of five years a professional engineer to take the place of the member whose term on said Board is about to expire. Each member shall hold office until the expiration of the term for which such member is appointed or until a successor shall have been duly appointed and shall have qualified. The Commissioners may remove any member of the Board for incompetency, misconduct, neglect of duty, or for any sufficient cause. An appointment to fill an unexpired term on the Board shall be made within three months after the vacancy occurs, and shall be for the period of such unexpired term. (Sept. 19, 1950, 64 Stat. 855, ch. 953, § 5.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

§ 2–1808. General powers of Board.

The Board shall have power:

(a) Approval of institutions.—To investigate and to approve those institutions that provide and maintain satisfactory standards for the education of students desiring to engage in the practice of engineering.

(b) Registration of professional engineers.—To register as a professional engineer any person of good character and repute who is a citizen of the United States, at least twenty-five years of age, and who speaks and writes the English language, if such person—

(1) holds a license or certificate of registration to engage in the practice of engineering issued to him by proper authority of a State or Territory of the United States in which the requirements and qualifications for obtaining such license or certificate of registration are reasonably equivalent in the opinion of the Board to the standards set forth in this chapter. A person may be registered under this subdivision without examination; or

(2) holds a certificate of qualification issued by the National Bureau of Engineering Registration of the National Council of State Boards of Engineering Examiners: Provided, however, That the requirements and qualifications of said body for obtaining such certificate are reasonably equivalent, in the opinion of the Board, to the standards set forth in this chapter. A person may be registered under the provisions of this subdivision without examination; or

(3) has had four or more years' experience in engineering work of a grade or character satisfactory to the Board, and indicating that he is qualified to assume responsible charge of the work involved in the practice of engineering and either holds a certificate as an engineer-in-training issued to him by the Board or by proper authority of a State or Territory in which the requirements and qualifications of said bodies for obtaining such certificate are reasonably equivalent, in the opinion of the Board, to the standards set forth in this chapter, or is a graduate in engineering from an institution having a course in engineering of four or more years, and who, in either event, successfully passes a written, or written and oral, examination prescribed by the Board of engineering subjects. In the case of the examination of an engineer-in-training, his examination shall be directed and limited to those matters which will test the applicant's ability to apply the principles of engineering to the actual practice of engineering. In the case of an applicant who is not an engineer-in-training, the examination shall be for the purpose of testing the applicant's knowledge of fundamental engineering subjects, including mathematics and the physical sciences, and those matters which will test the applicant's ability to apply the principles of engineering to the actual practice of engineering; or

(4) has completed an approved secondary-school course of study or equivalent and has had twelve or more years of combined education and experience in engineering of a grade and character satisfactory to the Board and indicating that he is qualified to assume responsible charge of the work involved in the practice of engineering, and who successfully passes a written, or written and oral, examination prescribed by the Board for the purpose of testing the applicant's knowledge of fundamental engineering subjects, including mathematics and the physical sciences, and those matters which will test the applicant's ability to apply the principles of engineering to the actual practice of engineering; or

(5) submits evidence that he is an engineer of established and recognized standing in the engineering profession and that he has been lawfully engaged in the practice of engineering for twelve or more years, of which at least five years shall have been in responsible charge of important engineering work of a grade and character satisfactory to the Board. A person may be registered under this subdivision without examination; or

(6) submits evidence that he was a resident of the District of Columbia, or that he was engaged in the practice of engineering in the District of Columbia, prior to the date this chapter was approved and for one year immediately preceding the date of his application, and submits evidence of experience in engineering, of a grade and character satisfactory to the Board, indicating that he is qualified to assume responsible charge of the work involved in the practice of engineering. Registration shall not be granted under the provisions of this subdivision unless the application therefor is filed with the Board within one year after the date of enactment of this chapter. A person may be registered under this subdivision without examination.

The requirement of this subsection of residence or practice of engineering in the District of Columbia for one year immediately preceding the date of application shall not be applied to applicants who were on active duty in the armed forces of the United States during such year, and who entered on such duty after October 16, 1940, but any such applicant for license under this subsection must have been a resident or engaged in the practice of engineering in the District of Columbia for at least one year prior to the effective date of this chapter.

(c) Certification Of Engineers-In-Training.—To provide for and to regulate the certification and to certify as an engineer-in-training any person of good character and repute who is a citizen of the United States, at least twenty-one years of age or has graduated from an institution, and who speaks and writes the English language, if such person—

(1) is a graduate in engineering from an institution having a course in engineering of four or more years and who successfully passes a written, or written and oral, examination prescribed by the Board for the purpose of testing the applicant's knowledge of fundamental engineering subjects, including mathematics and the physical sciences. A person may be certified as an engineer-in-training under this subdivision without a written, or written and oral, examination: Provided, however, That the application therefor is filed with the Board within one year after enactment of this chapter; or

(2) has completed an approved secondary-school course of study or equivalent, and has had eight or more years of combined education, training, and experience in engineering, of a grade and character satisfactory to the Board, and who successfully passes a written, or written and oral, examination prescribed by the Board for the purpose of testing the applicant's knowledge of fundamental engineering subjects, including mathematics and the physical sciences.

(d) Registration of noncitizen professional engineers.—To register as a professional engineer any person who is not a citizen of the United States, who is of good character and repute, at least twenty-five years of age, and speaks and writes the English language, if such person submits evidence, of a grade and character satisfactory to the Board, that he is an engineer of established and recognized standing in the profession of engineering in his own country, and who submits certification as to character and qualifications from at least two professional engineers of the District of Columbia. Such registration shall entitle the holder to engage in the practice of engineering only for the duration of and in connection with a specific project for which it was granted, and shall be subject to annual renewal and to suspension or revocation as registration granted as otherwise provided in this chapter. Engineers to whom such temporary registration has been granted shall be separately listed in the roster.

(e) Application form.—To require all candidates for registration as professional engineers to file with the secretary-treasurer of the Board a written application on a prescribed form and accompanied by the required fee. Such application shall contain statements made under oath, showing the applicant's education, detailed summary of his experience in engineering work, and the general field or fields of engineering in which he has his principal activity, and shall contain not less than five references, of whom three or more shall be engineers having personal knowledge of his engineering training and experience.

(f) Investigation of applications; determination of qualification and competency of applicants.—To investigate the allegations contained in any application for registration as a professional engineer in order to determine the truth of such allegations, and to determine the competency of any person applying for a registration to assume responsible charge of the work involved in the practice of engineering, such competency to be determined by the grade and character of the engineering work actually performed. Any person having the necessary qualifications prescribed in this chapter to entitle him to registration or certification shall be eligible therefor, although he may not be practicing his profession at the time of making his application. Evaluation of experience in engineering shall be based upon the applicant's knowledge of the fundamental engineering subjects, which shall be broad in scope and of a nature to develop and mature the applicant's engineering knowledge and judgment. In considering the qualifications of an applicant who has graduated in engineering from an approved institution; each year, but not exceeding two years, of successful postgraduate study in engineering, and each scholastic year, in excess of four, of an approved five- or six-year engineering curriculum, and each year of teaching engineering subjects, in an approved institution may be considered as equivalent to one year of experience in engineering. In considering the qualifications of an applicant who is an undergraduate in engineering, or who has graduated in a curriculum other than engineering, from an approved institution; each equivalent year of approved engineering education, as determined by evaluation by the Board of the educational records submitted, may be considered as equivalent to two years of combined education and experience in engineering. Experience in engineering gained under the supervision of a professional engineer or similarly qualified engineer, and experience in engineering gained subsequent to the attaining of an equivalent of the minimum requirements for certification as an engineer-in-training, of a grade and character satisfactory to the Board, shall be given full credit. In any case when the evidence presented in the application does not appear to the Board conclusive nor warranting the issuance of a certificate of registration or a certificate as engineer-in-training without examination, the applicant may be required to present further evidence for the consideration of the Board, and may also be required to pass an oral or written examination, or both, as the Board may determine. Whenever the Board determines otherwise than by examination that an applicant has not produced sufficient evidence to show that he is competent to assume responsible charge of the work involved in the practice of engineering, and shall refuse to examine or to register such applicant, it shall set forth in writing its findings and the reasons for its conclusions, and furnish a copy thereof to the applicant.

(g) Examinations.—To prescribe the scope, manner, time, and place for the examination of applicants for registration as professional engineers, to provide for the conduct of and to conduct such examinations, and to make written reports of such examinations. The prescribed examinations shall be written, or written and oral, and designed to permit an applicant for registration as a professional engineer to take the examination in two stages. The first stage of the examination shall be designed to test the applicant's knowledge of fundamental engineering subjects, including mathematics, physical and applied sciences, properties of materials, and the principles of engineering design. Satisfactory passing of this portion of the examination shall constitute a credit for the life of the applicant or until he is registered as a professional engineer. The second stage of the examination shall be designed to test the applicant's ability to apply the principles of engineering to the actual practice of engineering in the field of engineering in which he has indicated his principal activity. An applicant failing to pass an examination may apply for reexamination at the expiration of six months and will be reexamined upon payment of the prescribed fee.

(h) Certificate of registration; form and execution; expiration; duplicate certificate; biennial renewal of registration; renewal fee; penalty for delayed renewal.—To issue a certificate of registration and a pocket registration card to each professional engineer granted registration under the provisions of this chapter. The certificate of registration shall authorize the registrant to practice as a professional engineer, show the full name of the registrant, have a serial number, and be signed

All charges, unless dismissed by the Board as unfounded or trivial, shall be heard by the Board within three months after the date on which they shall have been filed.

(b) The Board shall, at least thirty days prior to the date set for the hearing, notify the accused in writing, of any charges made, and shall afford him an opportunity to be heard in person or by counsel in reference thereto. Such notice may be served by its delivery personally to the accused licensee by the United States marshal in the manner prescribed for service of original process in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, or by mailing it by registered mail with return receipt demanded, to the place of business last theretofore specified by the accused in his last notification to the Board. At the time and place fixed in the notice, the Board shall proceed to hearing of the charges and both the accused and the complainant shall be accorded ample opportunity to present in person or by counsel, such testimony, evidence, and argument as may be pertinent to the charges or to any defense thereto. If the adjudication of the Board is not affirmed the court may set aside or modify it in whole or in part, or may remand the proceeding to the Board for further disposition in accordance with the order of the court.

Said commissioners, in addition to the powers vested in them by law, are also hereby authorized and empowered to make, modify, and enforce, under such penalties as they may deem necessary, all needful rules and regulations for the proper government, conduct, discipline, and good name of said Metropolitan Police force; and said commissioners are hereby authorized and empowered to fine, suspend with or without pay, and dismiss any officer or member of said police force for any offense against the laws of the United States or the laws and ordinances or regulations of the District of Columbia, whether before or after conviction thereof in any court or courts, and for misconduct in office, or for any breaches or violation of the rules and regulations made by said commissioners for the government, conduct, discipline, and good name of said police force: Provided, That no person shall be removed from said police force except upon written charges preferred against him in the name of the major and superintendent of said police force to the trial board or boards hereinafter provided for and after an opportunity shall have been afforded him of being heard in his defense; but no person so removed shall be reappointed to any office in said police force: Provided further, That special policemen and additional privates may be removed from office by said commissioners, or a majority of them, without cause

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Full authority is given to the Commission; and in the absence of rules and regulations directing a different procedure, its act of summary dismissal from the police force of the District of Columbia of officers and members can not be challenged. Eckloff v. District of Columbia (135 U. S. 240, 34 L. Ed. 120, 10 Sup. Ct. 752).

CHARGES

"While a member of the police force may not be removed except upon written charges, Congress did not intend to require such charges to be formed with the technical accuracy of an indictment for crime. If the nature of the dereliction forming the subject matter of the investigation is pointed out with sufficient clearness and accuracy to enable the accused to prepare his defense, the purpose of the statute is met." Rudolph v. Creamer, 39 App. D. C. 1 (1912).

Where charges were filed against members of District of Columbia police force on ground of conduct prejudicial to reputation, good order and discipline of police force, specification that the members stopped in front of certain premises and were given money in attempt to procure or bring about failure of the members to report violation of law, or to take proper police action in connection with gambling business carried on in the premises, was sufficient. Brodie v. Young, 1943 (133 F. 2d 406, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 169).

HEARING ON TRANSFER

Even if transfer of District of Columbia police officer having civil service status from detective bureau to traffic bureau was a demotion, he was not entitled to hearing and to be furnished with copies of charges and to be allowed to answer, although police force rules provided that duration of assignment should be dependent on quality of officer's work which was subject to judgment of superintendent and Commissioners. Maghan v. Board of Com'rs of District of Columbia, 1944 (141 F. 2d 274, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 370).

PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

Where policewoman's 30-day sick leave for calendar year had been exhausted before granting of leave, salary for which was in issue, injury received by policewoman when struck by a taxicab while on her way home, after police surgeon, at about 11 a. m., had restored her to duty to report for active duty at 4 p. m. on the same day was not received in the "actual performance of duty" within regulation providing that in no case will sick time be allowed in excess of 30 days in any one calendar year, except when the same is in direct consequence of injury received in the actual performance of duty. Stanberger v. Mason, 1942 (124 F. 2d 401, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 105).

Under police regulation providing that in no case will sick time be allowed any member of the police force in excess of 30 days in any one calendar year, except when the same is in direct consequence of injury received in the actual performance of duty, the words "actual performance of duty" are used in a literal sense and mean more than being subject to orders from proper authorities and to call from citizens. Stanberger v. Mason, 1942 (124 F. 2d 401, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 105).

SICK LEAVE

It is for the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to make the rules which mark the limits of the classes of injuries for which sick leave on pay in excess of 30 days in any one calendar year will be allowed to members of the police force, and when the rules are clear the courts must enforce them as they find them. Stanberger v. Mason, 1942 (124 F. 2d 401, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 105).

§ 4–122 [20: 473]. Trial board—Appointment — Hearings—Findings—Appeals—Existing rules and regulations ratified.

The said commissioners are also hereby authorized and empowered to create one or more trial board or boards, to be composed of such number of persons as said commissioners may appoint thereto, for the trial of officers and members of said police force; and said commissioners are hereby also authorized and empowered to make and amend rules of procedure before such trial board or boards and to change or abolish any such trial board or boards as they may deem proper; and the findings of such trial board or boards shall be final and conclusive unless appeal in writing therefrom is made within five days to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, the hearings on appeal to be submitted either orally or in writing, and the decision of the said commissioners thereon shall be final and conclusive: Provided, That said commissioners shall not be required, in their review of the sentences and findings of such trial board or boards, to take evidence, either oral, written, or documentary, and they shall have power to reduce or modify the findings and penalty of the trial board or boards or remand any case against any officer or member of said police force to such board or boards for such further proceedings as they may deem necessary: Provided, That the chairman for the time being of any and every trial board be, and he is hereby, authorized to administer oaths to and take affirmations of witnesses before such board or boards; And provided, That the rules and regulations of said Metropolitan police force promulgated and in force on July 8, 1906, are hereby ratified and shall remain in force until changed, altered, amended, or abolished by said commissioners. (Feb. 28, 1901, 31 Stat. 819, ch. 623, § 1; June 8, 1906, 34 Stat. 222, ch. 3056. par. 5.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The amendatory act of 1906 contained the following proviso: "Provided further, That all proceedings now pending before any trial board authorized by said Commissioners shall be continued according to the practice heretofore existing until final determination thereof." This has been omitted as obsolete.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CERTIORARI

Where police tribunals had full jurisdiction of charges against members of police force, specifications were adequate and sufficient and evidence supported finding that the members were guilty, it was not necessary for court to decide whether case was proper one for certiorari or whether the members lost privilege of using certiorari by their long delay in filing petition. Brodie v. Young, 1943 (133 F. 2d 406, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 169).

EVIDENCE

Where members of police force of District of Columbia were charged with conduct prejudicial to reputation, good order, and discipline of police force, evidence supported trial board's determination finding the members guilty and the affirmation of such determination by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. Brodie v. Young, 1943 (133 F. 2d 406, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 169).

JURISDICTION

Where charges were filed against members of police force of District of Columbia on ground of conduct prejudicial to reputation, good order, and discipline of police force, the police tribunals had full jurisdiction. Brodie v. Young, 1943 (133 F. 2d 406, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 169).

ARREST, DEFINITION OF

The term "arrest" may be applied where a person is taken into custody or restrained of his full liberty, or where detention of person in custody is continued for even a short period of time. Morton v. U. S., 1945 (147 F. 2d 28, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 329, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1015, 324 U. S. 875, 89 L. Ed. 1428; see also 179 F. 2d 957).

CIRCUMSTANCES WARRANTING ARREST

An arrest for an offense committed in actual view of police officer is lawful. Hoover v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 730).

Where officers knew, before going to defendant's room, that another had been killed, and that liquor dealer had identified defendant as the man who had purchased liquor, prior to the killing, in a bottle of same kind, and same stamp number as one found at scene of murder, and who had come back later for more liquor, with blood on his clothing, evidence was sufficient to justify an arrest without a warrant, and shirt and trousers taken from defendant's closet and partly filled bottle of whisky and newspaper taken from table in his room were properly admitted in evidence. Morton v. U. S., 1945 (147 F. 2d 28, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 329, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1015, 324 U. S. 875, 89 L. Ed. 1428; see also 179 F. 2d 957).

CONSTRUCTION

Where Congress enacted two statutes applicable to different jurisdictions but both requiring that an accused be taken promptly before a committing officer, courts must assume the congressional intention in both instances was the same and give each statute the same construction. Hayes v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 709).

EVIDENCE ADMISSIBILITY

Where accused confessed guilt and consented to officers going to his home to recover stolen property shortly after his arrest, evidence of confession, and stolen property, were admissible, notwithstanding that accused was not arraigned until eight days later. U. S. v. Mitchell, 1944 (64 S. Ct. 896, 322 U. S. 65, 88 L. Ed. 1140, reversing 138 F. 2d 426, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 1257, 322 U. S. 770, 88 L. Ed. 1595).

Where defendant, after arrest but prior to arraignment, denied having any connection with robbery but admitted being in company of two other men, charged with same offense, shortly before and shortly after the robbery, admission of evidence of defendant's statement was not error where statement was not claimed to have been coerced. Sykes v. U. S., 1944 (143 F. 2d 140, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 97).

A voluntary confession is not rendered inadmissible because obtained during an illegal detention provided it was not induced by the illegal detention. Sykes v. U. S., 1944 (143 F. 2d 140, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 97).

Where defendant was arrested for vagrancy on Sunday, July 4, but criminal division of the Municipal Court was in session Monday notwithstanding that Monday was a legal holiday and defendant was not taken into court until Tuesday, defendant's detention was unlawful and testimony of arresting officer in vagrancy prosecution as to admissions made to him by defendant after arrest was improperly admitted. Burns v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 714).

Where defendant was arrested Saturday afternoon while court was not in session but was taken to court Monday morning when court reopened, the detention was not illegal so as to justify excluding statement made by defendant to officer while under arrest. Clark v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 711).

The rule that those statements obtained by the police through an unlawful detention are inadmissible against defendant does not exclude from evidence all statements made by defendant while in custody of the police. Clark v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 711).

Where defendant was arrested without warrant Friday evening and could have been taken to court for arraignment on Saturday but was not taken into court until Tuesday, the detention was unlawful, and, in prosecution for vagrancy which followed, admission of statements made by defendant to arresting officer was error notwithstanding statements were made at time of arrest and while detention was still lawful. Hayes v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 709).

NOT IN OFFICER'S VIEW

An officer may not arrest for a misdemeanor, in the District, without a warrant, if not committed in his view. (Maghan v. Jerome (67 App. D. C. 9, 88 Fed. (2d) 1001.)

SEIZURE OF ARTICLES

Where arrests are lawful, it is equally lawful to search premises and to use incriminating things found as evidence in the prosecution. Hoover v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 730).

An officer making a lawful arrest on a criminal charge may take such articles as may reasonably be used as evidence. Morton v. U. S., 1945 (147 F. 2d 28, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 329, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1015, 324 U. S. 875, 89 L. Ed 1428; see also 179 F. 2d 957).

Where defendant was informed by officers that they were from police headquarters and that inspector wanted to talk to defendant, and officers took defendant to a police automobile, there was an "arrest" so as to authorize seizure of articles usable as evidence. Morton v. U. S., 1945 (147 F. 2d 28, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 329, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1015, 324 U. S. 875, 89 L. Ed. 1428; see also 179 F. 2d 957).

If any member of the police force, or if any two or more householders shall report in writing, under his or their signature, to the major and superintendent of police that there are good grounds, stating the same, for believing any house, room, or premises within the police district to be kept or used for any of the following purposes, namely:

First. As a common gaming-house, common gaming-room, or common gaming-premises, for therein playing for wagers of money at any game of chance; or,

NOTES TO DECISIONS

SEARCH WITHOUT WARRANT

Where defendant, who had been under police observation, was observed entering rooming house where he had rented a room and one of police officers, without search warrant, opened window leading to landlady's room, climbed through and admitted other officers to the house, officer looked through transom, observed defendant and a guest as well as numbers slips, money and adding machines, and officers then arrested defendant and his guest and seized the machines, numbers slips and money, denial of defendant's motion for suppression of evidence and return of property to him was error, and convictions of both defendant and his guest for carrying on a lottery would be reversed. McDonald v. U. S. 1948 (69 S. Ct. 191, 335 U. S. 451; 93 L. Ed. 153).

Where officers heard adding machines which they knew were frequently used in the numbers operation and saw defendants busily engaged in their lottery venture, the officers had adequate grounds for seeking a search warrant and inconvenience of officers and delay in preparing papers and getting before magistrate was not a justification for search without warrant. McDonald v. U. S. 1948 (69 S. Ct. 191, 335 U. S. 451, 93 L. Ed. 153).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

TRIAL DE NOVO

This section giving police property clerk authority to conduct hearing for purpose of determining ownership of property coming into hands of police department does not confer force of a judgment upon clerk's determination, so as to deprive courts of jurisdiction to determine title to the property as between conflicting claims de novo. Carroll v. E. Heidenheimer, Inc. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 71).

§ 4–157 [20: 508]. Return of property to accused upon acquittal.

Whenever property or money shall be taken from persons arrested, and shall be alleged to have been feloniously obtained, or to be the proceeds of crime, and whenever so brought with such claimant and the person arrested before any court for trial, and the court shall be satisfied from evidence that the person arrested is innocent of the offense alleged, and that the property rightfully belongs to him, said court may, in writing, order such property or money to be returned, and the property clerk, if he have it, to deliver such property or money to the accused person himself, and not to any attorney, agent, or clerk of such accused person. (R. S., D. C., § 414.)

§ 4–158 [20: 509]. Claims of third persons.

If any claim to the ownership of such property or money shall be made on oath before the court, by or in behalf of any other persons than the persons arrested, and the accused person shall be held for trial or examination, such property or money shall remain in the custody of the property clerk until the discharge or conviction of the persons accused. (R. S., D. C., § 415.)

§ 4–159 [20: 510]. Property coming into possession of police to be transmitted to property clerk—Disposition of property of deceased persons—Balance to relief funds for policemen and firemen.

All property or money taken on suspicion of having been feloniously obtained, or of being the proceeds of crime, and for which there is no other claimant than the person from whom such property was taken, and all lost property coming into possession of any member of the police force, and all property and money taken from pawnbrokers as the proceeds of crime or from persons supposed to be insane, intoxicated, or otherwise incapable of taking care of themselves, shall be transmitted as soon as practicable to the property clerk, to be fully registered and advertised for the benefit of all parties interested, and for the information of the public as to the amount and disposition of the property so taken into custody by the police. Whenever any money or property of deceased persons coming into the custody of the property clerk of the police department shall remain in his hands for the period of one year without being claimed by the legal representatives of such deceased person, such money or property, when not exceeding $100 in value, shall be disposed of as lost or abandoned property as provided in this chapter: Provided, That when the value of such money or property shall exceed $100 and shall have remained in the custody of the property clerk for one year, all records pertaining to the same shall be certified by the property clerk to the probate court of the District of Columbia, which shall appoint an administrator of such estate, according to law: Provided further, That the administrator so appointed by the Probate Court shall deposit with the treasurer of the United States, to the credit of the policemen and firemen's relief fund, any balance remaining in his hands after the time limited for the final settlement of the estates of deceased persons under existing law. (R. S., D. C., § 416; May 29, 1896, 29 Stat. 191, ch. 270; Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1208, ch. 854, § 116; Sept. 1, 1916, 39 Stat. 718, ch. 433, § 12; Mar. 3, 1936, 49 Stat. 1158, ch. 121, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION

In imposing a notice requirement, Congress intended that the advertisement contain reasonably complete identification of the particular chattel to be sold, and such description should be such as to convey to a person reading the advertisement sufficient information to enable him to recognize the chattel as his own before commencing to count a limitation against him. District of Columbia v. Hamilton National Bank (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 76 A. 2d 60).

PURPOSE

A two-fold purpose underlies this Code provision, namely, to provide for the police department a legal method of disposing of unclaimed property which has come into its custody and to restore such property to lawful claimants. District of Columbia v. Hamilton National Bank (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 76 A. 2d 60).

§ 4–161 [20: 512]. Sale of unclaimed animals.

§ 4–162 [20: 513]. Sale of perishable property.

§ 4–163 [20: 514]. Delivery of property to owner pending trial.

When animals or articles of property (except perishable property) other than money, returned to the property clerk as the proceeds of crime, are shown by sufficient evidence to be necessary for the current use of the owner and not for sale, the Board of Commissioners has power, in its discretion, to authorize the property clerk to place the same in the custody of the owner, upon sufficient bonds being given by the owner in the sum of twice the value of the property, conditioned for the production of the same at any time within one year, when required for use in court as evidence in any proceedings thereon. (R. S., D. C., § 420; June 11, 1878, 20 Stat. 107, ch. 180, § 6.)

AMENDMENT

The 1878 act, cited to the text, abolished the Board of Metropolitan Police and transferred its duties and powers to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

§ 4–164 [20: 515]. Perishable property may be delivered to owner—Security.

Perishable property, returned to the property clerk as the proceeds of crime, may be delivered to the owner on ample security being taken by the court for his appearance to prosecute the case. (R. S., D. C., § 421.)

§ 4–165 [20: 516]. When large quantities of goods held for sale by owner may be delivered.

When large quantities of goods held for sale by the owner, come into the possession of the property clerk as the proceeds of crime, the same may be delivered to the owner, his heirs or representatives, as provided in section 4–156, upon ample security to prosecute the case. But in such cases goods to the estimated value of $50.00 shall be retained by the property clerk until the discharge or conviction of the accused. (R. S., D. C., § 422.)

§ 4–166 [20: 517]. Use of property as evidence.

If any property or money placed in the custody of the property clerk shall be desired as evidence in any police or other criminal court, such property shall be delivered to any officer who shall present an order to that effect from such court; but such property shall not be retained in the court, but shall be returned to the property clerk, to be disposed of according to the provisions of this chapter. (R. S., D. C., § 423.)

§ 4–167 [20: 518]. Property not called for within one year to be treated as abandoned.

Any property or money returned to the property clerk as the proceeds of crime, and which shall not be called for as evidence by any proceeding in the courts of the District within one year from the date of such return, may, unless specially claimed by the owner within that time, be thereafter treated as other unclaimed, abandoned, or lost property or money, as provided in this chapter. (R. S., D. C., § 424.)

REDEPOSIT

In computing the period of service required of the fireman in order to qualify him for retirement the period preceding his resignation is included, and there is no inequity in requiring a member returning to the force to restore that which he had withdrawn for he receives the same consideration thereafter as if he had not retired. District of Columbia v. Smith (63 App. D. C. 363, 72 Fed. (2d) 735).

§ 4–504a. Credit for active service in military or naval forces.

In determining eligibility for and the amount of benefits from the policemen and firemen's relief fund, District of Columbia, each member of the Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia, the United States Park Police force, the White House Police force, the Fire Department of the District of Columbia, and each member of the United States Secret Service who has actively performed duties other than clerical for ten years or more directly related to the protection of the President, who shall have left active employment in any such department, force, or service to perform active service in the military or naval forces of the United States, shall be credited with all periods of honorable active military or naval service performed on or after September 16, 1940, and prior to the termination of the war as declared by Presidential proclamation or concurrent resolution of the Congress. NOTES TO DECISIONS

ELECTION OF REMEDIES

Where member of Metropolitan Police Force was injured while on duty by the negligence of a government employee, and was not barred under Federal Tort Claims Act, he was not required to elect between relief granted by that Act or relief granted under the Police Pension Relief Fund, since case did not present the elements requiring an election: viz. existence of inconsistent remedies to enforce the same cause. Wham v. U. S. (C. A. D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 38, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 128).

NOT A VESTED RIGHT—CONSTITUTIONALITY

The right of a retired member of the police force to a pension, or to a particular pension, is not a vested right, and a change by statute does not impair the obligation of a contract. Dougherty v. United States ex rel. Browning (60 App. D. C. 8, 45 Fed. (2d) 926).

REDETERMINATION OF AMOUNT—CONSTITUTIONALITY

Commissioners are empowered to redetermine and fix the amount of the pension relief allowance of policemen and firemen already in the service, as well as those thereafter entering the service, and such redetermination is neither retroactive nor is it unconstitutional as impairing obligation of a contract. Dougherty v. United States ex rel. Browning (60 App. D. C. 8, 45 Fed. (2d) 926).

§ 4–506 [20: 583]. Allowance for temporary disability—Medical certificate—Approval.

Whenever any member of the police department or the fire department of the District of Columbia shall become temporarily disabled by injury received or disease contracted in the actual discharge of his duty, to such an extent as to require medical or surgical services other than such as can be rendered by the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons of said District, or to require hospital treatment, the expenses of such medical or surgical services, or hospital treatment, shall be paid from the policemen and firemen's relief fund, District of Columbia, provided for in sections 4–501, 4–503, 4–506 to 4–510, 4–512 to 4–514; but no such expense shall be paid except upon a certificate of the said Board of Police and Fire Surgeons, or two members thereof, setting forth the necessity for such services or treatment and the nature of the injury or disease which rendered the same necessary, and upon the approval of the said certificate by the superintendent of the Metropolitan police or the chief engineer of the fire department, as the case may be, and the approval of the commissioners of the District of Columbia. NOTES TO DECISIONS

EMPLOYMENT STATUS

Where member of the Metropolitan Police Force was injured while on duty by the negligence of a government employee, he has a right of action against the U. S. under Federal Tort Claims Act, notwithstanding his position in the Metropolitan Police for whose members the U. S. established a Police Pension Relief Fund. Wham v. U. S. (C. A. D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 38, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 128).

§ 4–507 [20: 584]. Retirement allowance for total disability—Age retirement—Pensions to widows and orphans.

Whenever any member of the police department or the fire department of the District of Columbia shall become so permanently disabled through injury received or disease contracted in the line of duty as to incapacitate him for the performance of duty, or, having served not less than twenty-five years and having reached the age of fifty-five years shall, for any cause, become so permanently disabled as to incapacitate him for the performance of duty and shall make written application therefor and said application shall be approved by the commissioners of said District, or, having reached the age of sixty years, in the discretion of the said commissioners, he shall in either event be retired from the service thereof and be entitled to receive relief from the said policemen and firemen's relief fund, District of Columbia, in an amount not to exceed 50 per centum per year of the salary received by him at the date of retirement. In case of the death of any member of the police department or the fire department of the District of Columbia, before or after retirement from the service thereof, leaving a widow, or a child or children under eighteen years of age, the widow shall be entitled to receive relief from the said policemen and firemen's relief fund, District of Columbia, in an amount not to exceed $125 per month, and each child under the age of eighteen years in an amount not exceeding $25 per month: Provided, That such payments or any right thereto shall cease upon death or remarriage of the widow: Provided further, That any benefits to a child or children shall cease upon (1) attaining the age of eighteen years, (2) marriage, or (3) death: And provided further, That no widow, child, or children of any deceased member of the said police department or fire department resulting from any marriage contracted subsequent to the date of retirement of such member shall be entitled to any relief under the provisions of sections 4–501, 4–503, 4–506 to 4–510, 4–512 to 4–514. (Sept. 1, 1916, 39 Stat. 718, ch. 433, § 12; Feb. 17, 1923, 42 Stat. 1263, ch. 95, § 1; Aug. 4, 1949, 63 Stat. 565, ch. 394, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1949 amendment raised the maximum monthly payment to a widow from $60 to $125, and to each child from $10 to $25, and raised the qualifying age of a child from age 16 years to age 18 years.

The 1923 amendment raised the maximum monthly payment to a widow from $35 to $60. That part of the original section which provided "and in no case shall the amount paid to any one family exceed the sum of $50 per month" has therefore been omitted.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION

This section providing that in case of death of a member of the District of Columbia metropolitan police force, widow shall be entitled to receive relief from policemen and firemen's relief fund is remedial and entitled to liberality of construction. Thompson v. Young (D. C., D. C. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 887).

The portion of this section providing for benefits to widow and children of a deceased member of District of Columbia metropolitan police force is not required to be read in terms with preceding portion providing for retirement for disability sustained in line of duty so as to require a construction that the death must have been the result of injury or disease sustained or contracted in line of duty in order for benefits to be payable. Thompson v. Young (D. C., D. C. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 887).

DETERMINATION OF AMOUNT

Where commissioners of District of Columbia admitted the death of member of metropolitan police force, in exercise of such discretion as they had in determining whether widow and minor children of decedent were entitled to relief from policemen and firemen's relief fund, there was nothing remaining to be done except determination of amount to which widow was entitled. Thompson v. Young (D. C., D. C. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 890).

DIVORCE

Where purported absolute divorce, obtained by member of police department and police relief association, was void for want of jurisdiction, purported marriage of the member with another was void ab initio, and his first wife whose marriage was terminated by his death was entitled to pension relief and death benefits payable to his widow. Fleischhauer v. Hazen (D. C., D. C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 74).

FEDERAL INCOME TAX

Monies received by members of the police or fire departments of the District of Columbia, who were retired for disability, being in the nature of compensation for personal injuries under a workmen's compensation act, was not subject to federal income tax. Frye v. U. S. (D. C., D. C. 1947, 72 F. Supp. 405).

HEARING ON MERITS

Where member of metropolitan police force, while on military leave and serving as an officer in the marine corps, died, application of widow for herself and minor children for relief from policemen and firemen's relief fund was properly made by a person legally within class designated by this section and entitled as a consequence to a hearing on the merits by commissioners and claim could not summarily be rejected. Thompson v. Young (D. C., D. C. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 887).

JUDICIAL REVIEW

The broad discretion given District of Columbia commissioners with respect to granting relief to widow and minor children of deceased member of metropolitan police force, which precludes review of commissioners' action properly taken, does not preclude judicial review of arbitrary denial without hearing on the merits of widow's application for relief. Thompson v. Young (D. C., D. C. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 887).

MILITARY LEAVE

"Leave of absence without pay", given member of metropolitan police force of District of Columbia when he entered marine corps, temporarily excused him from performing acts of duty as a policeman, was in the nature of a furlough and did not terminate membership in police force or constitute a retirement therefrom so as to preclude benefit to his widow and minor children from policemen and firemen's relief fund following his death in line of duty in marine corps. Thompson v. Young (D. C., D. C. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 890).

Where member of metropolitan police force of District of Columbia while on military leave, without pay, died in line of duty while serving as a marine corps officer, widow and minor children were within class of beneficiaries designated by this section as entitled to relief from policemen and firemen's relief fund notwithstanding that death did not result from injury or disease contracted in line of duty as a policeman. Thompson v. Young (D. C., D. C. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 887).

MONEY JUDGMENT

Widow of deceased member of metropolitan police force of District of Columbia, in view of broad discretion granted commissioners, was not entitled to a money judgment against policemen and firemen's relief fund, following denial of pension by commissioners. Thompson v. Young (D. C., D. C. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 887).

NATURE OF RELIEF

Relief sought by widow and minor children of deceased member of metropolitan police force of District of Columbia from policemen and firemen's relief fund is not a gratuity since fund was created in part by contribution of decedent. Thompson v. Young (D. C., D. C. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 890).

RECOVERY FROM DISABILITY

It is apparent that Congress was of the view that it would be more equitable to place on a basis of equality all policemen and firemen who were retired on account of being unfit for duty due to specified causes, but it was not the intent to continue a pension where the pensioner has recovered from his disability. Dougherty v. United States ex rel. Roberts (58 App. D. C. 308, 30 Fed. (2d) 471).

SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Where answer of commissioners of District of Columbia to action by widow of member of metropolitan police force who had died while in military service for mandatory injunction to place widow and minor children on pension roll of police department raised no material issue of fact, widow was entitled to summary judgment, but amount of pension was a matter of discretion for commissioners subject to possible review for abuse thereof. Thompson v. Young (D. C., D. C. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 890).

§ 4–507a. Equalization of pensions of widows and orphans granted prior to October 1, 1949.

deductions from salaries of other members contributing to that fund, and he shall be entitled to the same benefits as other members contributing to that fund. (Sept. 1, 1916, 39 Stat. 721, ch. 433, § 12, paragraph added by act of Oct. 14, 1940, 54 Stat. 1118, ch. 860.)

§ 4–509 [20: 585]. Funeral expenses.

The commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized to pay from the said policemen and firemen's relief fund, District of Columbia, a sum not exceeding $250 in any one case to defray the funeral expenses of any deceased member of the police department or the fire department of said District dying while in the service thereof. (Sept. 1, 1916, 39 Stat. 719, ch. 433, § 12; Aug. 4, 1949, 63 Stat. 566, ch. 394, § 2.)

"Commissioners of the District, vested by law with discretion to continue or discontinue plaintiff's pension, have resolved the case against him; and, in the absence of an abuse of that discretion, the court, in a proceeding for a writ of mandamus, is without authority to review the case, as in error, and interfere with the exercise of that discretion." Rudolph v. *United States ex rel. NOTES TO DECISIONS

BASE OF PENSION—PHYSICAL EXAMINATION

Pensions are to be based on pay of class to which applicant for increase belongs at time of application; and Board has power to make physical examination of retired applicant. Dougherty v. United States ex rel. Roberts (58 App. D. C. 308, 30 Fed. (2d) 471).

It is apparent that Congress was of the view that it would be more equitable to place on a basis of equality all policemen and firemen who were retired on account of being unfit for duty due to specified causes, but it was not the intent to continue a pension where the pensioner has recovered from his disability. Dougherty v. United States ex rel. Roberts (58 App. D. C. 308, 30 Fed. (2d) 471).

§ 5–103 [25: 23]. Alley Dwelling Law — Declaration of legislative intent and public policy—Power of President to purchase, condemn, and acquire by gift, land and buildings to prevent alley dwellings, to replat and improve such property, and to make loans for improvements.

(a) It is hereby declared to be a matter of legislative determination that the conditions existing in the District of Columbia with respect to the use of buildings in alleys as dwellings for human habitation are injurious to the public health, safety, morals, and welfare; and it is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to protect and promote the welfare of the inhabitants of the seat of the government by eliminating all such injurious conditions by employing all means necessary and appropriate for the purpose; and control by regulatory processes having proved inadequate and insufficient to remedy the evils, it is in the judgment of Congress necessary to acquire property in the District of Columbia by gift, purchase, or the use of eminent domain in order to effectuate the declared policy by the discontinuance of the use for human habitation in the District of Columbia of buildings in alleys, and thereby to eliminate the communities in the inhabited alleys in said District, and to provide decent, safe, adequate, and sanitary habitations for persons or families substantially equal in number to those who are to be deprived of habitation by reason of the demolition of buildings under the terms of this title, and to prevent an acute shortage of decent, safe, adequate, and sanitary dwellings for persons of low income, and to carry out the policy declared in the Act approved May 18, 1918, as amended, of caring for the alley population in the District of Columbia, and to that end it is necessary to enact the provisions hereinafter set forth.

(b) In order to remedy the conditions and evils hereinbefore recited and to carry out the policy hereinbefore declared, the President is hereby authorized and empowered to acquire by purchase, gift, condemnation, or otherwise—

(1) any land, building, or structures, or any interest therein, situated in or adjacent to any inhabited alley in the District of Columbia;

(2) any land, buildings, or structures, or any interest therein, within any square containing an inhabited alley, the acquisition of which is reasonably necessary for utilization, by replatting, improvement, or otherwise, pursuant to the provisions of sections 5–103 to 5–116, of any property acquired under subparagraph (1) of this subsection; and

(3) any other land, together with any structures that may be located thereon, in the District of Columbia that may be necessary to provide decent, safe, adequate, and sanitary housing accommodations for persons or families substantially equal in number to those who are to be deprived of habitation by reason of the demolition of buildings pursuant to the provisions of this title.

(c) The authority is authorized and empowered to replat any land acquired under sections 5–103 to 5–116; to pave or repave any street or alley thereon; to construct sewers and watermains therein; to install street lights thereon; to demolish, move, or alter any buildings or structures situated thereon and erect such buildings or structures thereon as deemed advisable: Provided, however, That the same shall be done and performed in accordance with the laws and municipal regulations of the District of Columbia applicable thereto.

(d) The authority is hereby authorized and empowered to lease, rent, maintain, equip, manage, exchange, sell, or convey any such lands, buildings, or structures acquired under this title, for such amounts and upon such terms and conditions as it may determine: Provided, That sales of real property shall be made at public sale to the highest responsible bidder on terms satisfactory to the authority after advertising for three consecutive weeks in at least one daily newspaper of general circulation published in the District of Columbia: Provided, however, That the authority may, without advertising, sell such property to a quasi-public institution or agency not organized or operated for private profit at not less than the cost of such property to the authority, including improvements: And provided further, That if any such lands, buildings, or structures are required for the purposes of the United States or of the District of Columbia, they may be transferred thereto upon payment to the authority of the reasonable value thereof.

(e) The authority is authorized and empowered to aid in providing, equipping, managing, and maintaining houses and other buildings, improvements, and general community utilities on the property acquired under the provisions of this title, by loans, upon such terms and conditions as it may determine, to limited dividend corporations whose dividends do not exceed 6 per centum per annum, or to home owners to enable such corporations or home owners to acquire and develop sites on the property: Provided, however, That no loan shall be made at a lower rate of interest than 5 per centum per annum, and that all such loans shall be secured by reserving a first lien on the property involved for the benefit of the United States. (June 12, 1934, 48 Stat. 930, ch. 465, § 1; June 25, 1938, 52 Stat. 1186, ch. 691, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTITUTIONALITY

This chapter as amended, which provides for low rent housing projects and authorizes condemnation of land for that purpose, is valid and is not unconstitutional as authorizing condemnation of property for other than public uses. Keyes v. U. S., 1941 (119 F. 2d 444, 73 App. D. C. 273, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 70, 314 U. S. 636, 86 L. Ed. 510).

PROPERTY SUBJECT TO CONDEMNATION

Under provision of this section the Authority had power to condemn sites for low cost housing projects in addition to and wholly independent of provisions of section 104 of this title relating to providing facilities to persons whose alley dwellings have been demolished. Keyes v. U. S., 1941 (119 F. 2d 444, 73 App. D. C. 273, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 70, 314 U. S. 636, 86 L. Ed. 510).

The fact that taking of owner's property for construction of dwellings for families and persons of low income had no relation to demolition of alley dwellings did not constitute defense to condemnation proceeding which was brought under authority of this section. Keyes v. U. S., 1941 (119 F. 2d 444, 73 App. D. C. 273, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 70, 314 U. S. 636, 86 L. Ed. 510).

Under this section, the property to be acquired need not itself be unsafe or unsanitary and is not required to be acquired only in connection with a project including the demolition of unsafe or unsanitary dwellings. Keyes v. U. S., 1941 (119 F. 2d 444, 73 App. D. C. 273, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 70, 314 U. S. 636, 86 L. Ed. 510).

§ 5–114 [25: 30c]. Authority considered a public housing agency—Federal financial assistance.

For the purposes of sections 5–112 to 5–116 the Authority shall be considered a public housing agency within the meaning of, and to carry out the purposes of, the United States Housing Act of 1937 (U. S. Code, title 42, § 8); and as such, the Authority is empowered to borrow money or accept contributions, grants or other financial assistance from the United States Housing Authority for or in aid of any housing project in the District of Columbia, in accordance with the United States Housing Act of 1937 (U. S. Code, title 42, § 8) to take over or lease or manage any such housing project or undertaking constructed, owned, or operated by the United States Housing Authority, and to those ends to comply with such conditions and enter into such mortgages, trust indentures, leases, or agreements as may be necessary, convenient, or desirable: Provided, That the tax exemption of the property of the Authority shall be deemed a contribution by the District of Columbia in accordance with the local contributions requirements of section 1410 (a) and section 1411 (f), title 42, United States Code. It is the purpose and intent of this title to authorize the Authority to do any and all things necessary to secure the financial aid of the United States Housing Authority in the undertaking, construction, maintenance, or operation in the District of Columbia of any housing project by the Authority. (June 12, 1934, ch. 465, title II, § 203, as added June 25, 1938, 52 Stat. 1188, ch. 691, § 5.)

(June 12, 1934, ch. 465, title II, § 205, as added; June 25, 1938, 52 Stat. 1189, ch. 691, § 5.)

Upon the filing of such plat and petition in the office of said commissioners, or when the commissioners shall deem that the public interests require it, the said commissioners shall institute condemnation proceedings in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, sitting as a District Court, by a petition in rem, particularly describing the land to be taken, which petition shall be accompanied by duplicate plats, to be prepared by the surveyor of said District, showing the location of said proposed building lines, the number of square feet to be taken from each lot or part of lot and the boundaries thereof in each square or block, and such other information as may be necessary for the purposes of such condemnation. (June 21, 1906, 34 Stat. 384, ch. 3505, § 3.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

In view of the specific provision that § 1608j of the Code of 1901 is to govern, it may be that the quoted provision set out as a note to § 7–318 still applies instead of § 7–319, since law set out in the last-mentioned section does not purport to amend § 1608j of the 1901 Code but is independent legislation.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

NOTICE

This statute does not require personal service, and newspaper publication of notice directed to all those owners who could be found is sufficient. National Savings & Trust Co. v. Reichelderfer (61 App. D. C. 38, 57 Fed. (2d) 404).

§ 5–204 [25: 34]. Permits for extensions of buildings beyond building line.

The action of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in granting permits before March 3, 1891, for the extension of any building or buildings, or any part or parts thereof, in the District of Columbia, beyond the building line, and upon the streets and avenues of said District, is hereby ratified, without prejudice, however, to the legal rights of the government in the event of the destruction by fire, or otherwise, of any such structure. And after June 21, 1906, no such permits shall be granted except upon special application and with the concurrence of all of said commissioners, and where such extensions are to be placed upon buildings to be erected on land adjoining United States public reservations, the approval of the Director of the National Park Service. (Mar. 3, 1891, 26 Stat. 868, ch. 540; July 1, 1898, 30 Stat. 570, ch. 543, § 3; June 21, 1906, 34 Stat. 385, ch. 3506; Feb. 26, 1925, 43 Stat. 983, ch. 339, § 3; June 10, 1933, Ex. Or. No. 6166, § 2; Mar. 2, 1934, 48 Stat. 389, ch. 38, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1898 act cited to the text extended the provisions of this section, which originally applied only to the city of Washington, to the entire District of Columbia.

The 1906 amendment inserted in the last sentence the words "where such extensions are to be placed upon buildings to be erected on land adjoining United States public reservations."

The last three citations deal with the transfer of the duties of the Secretary of War and other officials to the National Park Service, and the final phrase "the approval of the Secretary of War" has therefore been changed to "the approval of the Director of the National Park Service."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPLICATION OF ACT

This act is in the nature of a police regulation and is intended to apply to both those buildings to be erected and those in existence and used for purposes named in this act. Hill v. Raymond (65 App. D. C. 144, 81 Fed. (2d) 278).

INDICTMENT, SUFFICIENCY

Where manslaughter indictment charged that, by reason of failure of landlord, its vice president, and tenant, who operated rooming house, to provide a dumb-waiter shaft of fire-resistive materials, and a front fire escape, and by reason of their acts in permitting shaftway to be used as a trash receptacle a fire started and a named individual received fatal burns, the indictment was insufficient to charge that absence of fire escape contributed to the death. U. S. v. Interstate Properties (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 469, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 392).

Where manslaughter indictment charged landlord, its vice president, and tenant, who operated rooming house, with negligently failing to have a dumb-waiter shaft constructed of fire-resistive materials and negligently failing to provide a front fire escape, and that defendants were under duty to roomers to comply with all orders, rules, regulations, and ordinances relating to use, occupancy and safety of buildings, and particularly building code and elevator code of District of Columbia, and that regulations required dumb-waiter shaft to be of fire-resistive construction, the indictment did not sufficiently plead existence of applicable regulations requiring use of fire-resistive materials in dumb-waiter shafts and installation of front fire escape. U. S. v. Interstate Properties (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 469, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 392).

KIND OF FIRE ESCAPE

Before Commissioners can order the erection of fire escapes, they must first determine the number and character required. Moore's Victoria Theatre Co. v. District of Columbia (55 App. D. C. 46, 299 Fed. 923.)

NEGLIGENCE

Failure of owner to comply with statute is not conclusive evidence of negligence, but is question for jury. Hill v. Raymond (65 App. D. C. 144, 81 Fed. (2d) 278).

Use of stairway by tenant when he is aware that owner has not complied with the statute is not contributory negligence as a matter of law but is a question of fact for the jury to determine. Hill v. Raymond (65 App. D. C. 144, 81 Fed. (2d) 278).

REGULATIONS UNDER § 5–317

Where, after institution of landlord's action for possession based on allegedly unlawful use of leased premises, rigid provisions of this section were relaxed and after entry of judgment for landlord, District Commissioners modified this section so that use complained of, which was the very use contemplated under original letting, was no longer unlawful, case was not "moot" and tenant was entitled on appeal to protection of regulations under § 5–317 and to reversal of judgment for landlord. Cosby v. Shoemaker (D. C. Mun. App. 1943, 34 A. 2d 27).

VOLUNTARY ERECTION BY TENANT

Tenant cannot voluntarily erect fire escapes and recover therefor from the landlord. Goldwyn Distributing Corp. v. Carroll (51 App. D. C. 75, 276 Fed. 63).

§ 5–302 [25: 295]. Fire escapes—Stairways—Hall and stair lights required on certain structures.

It shall be the duty of the owner entitled to the beneficial use, rental, or control of any building already erected, or which may hereafter be erected, in which ten or more persons are employed at the same time in any of the stories above the second story, except three-story buildings used exclusively as stores or for office purposes, and having at least two stairways from the ground floor each three or more feet wide and separated from each other by a distance of at least thirty feet, from one of which stairways shall be easy access to the roof, to provide and cause to be erected and affixed thereto a sufficient number of the aforesaid fire escapes, the location and number of the same to be determined by the commissioners, and to keep the hallways and stairways in every such building as is used and occupied at night properly lighted, to the satisfaction of the commissioners, from sunset to sunrise. (Mar. 19, 1906, 34 Stat. 70, ch. 957, § 2; Mar. 2, 1907, 34 Stat. 1247, ch. 2566; June 4, 1934, 48 Stat. 843, ch. 388.)

AMENDMENTS

The original 1906 act made it the duty of the "owner, lessee, occupant, or person having possession, charge, or control" of the premises to provide fire escapes.

The 1907 amendment added the exception as to stores and office buildings.

The only changes made by the 1934 act in this section were the omission of the word "said" before the first "Commissioners," and the words "of the District of Columbia" following the second "Commissioners."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

LIGHTS—BUILDINGS ERECTED PRIOR TO ACT

Requirement as to lights in apartment-houses applies to buildings erected prior to passage of act. Contributory negligence of tenant with knowledge of condition. Hill v. Raymond (65 App. D. C. 144, 81 Fed. (2d) 278).

§ 5–303 [25: 296]. When ten or more persons employed, fire escapes and other safety measures required.

It shall be the duty of the owner entitled to the beneficial use, rental, or control of any building used or intended to be used as set forth in section 5–301 where fire escapes are required, or any building in which 10 or more persons are employed, as set forth in section 5–302, where fire escapes are required, also to provide, install, and maintain therein proper and sufficient guide signs, guide lights, exit lights, hall and stairway lights, standpipes, fire extinguishers, and alarm gongs and striking stations in such locations and numbers and of such type and character as the commissioners may determine; except that in buildings less than six stories in height, standpipes will not be required when fire extinguishers are installed in such numbers and of such type and character as the Commissioners may determine. (Mar. 19, 1906, 34 Stat. 70, ch. 957, § 3; Mar. 2, 1907, 34 Stat. 1247, ch. 2566; June 4, 1934, 48 Stat. 843, ch. 388.)

AMENDMENTS

The original 1906 act made it the duty of the "owner, lessee, occupant, or person having possession, charge, or control" of the premises to provide such equipment.

The 1907 amendment restated the section.

The 1934 amendment added the requirement of standpipes in buildings where fire escapes are required, also alarm gongs and striking stations, except that standpipes will not be required where fire extinguishers are installed.

CROSS REFERENCE

Voluntary erection by tenant, § 5–301 and notes.

§ 5–304 [25: 297]. Alterations may be required to locate fire escapes or add additional ones.

The Commissioners are hereby authorized and directed to issue such orders and to adopt and enforce such regulations not inconsistent with law as may be necessary to accomplish the purposes and carry into effect the provisions of sections 5–301 to 5–312, and to require any alterations or changes that may become necessary in buildings now or hereafter erected, in order properly to locate or relocate fire escapes, or to afford access to fire escapes, and to require any changes or alterations in any building that may be necessary in order to provide for the erection of additional fire escapes, or for the installation of other appliances required by sections 5–301 to 5–312, when in the judgment of the commissioners such additional fire escapes or appliances are necessary. (Mar. 19, 1906, 34 Stat. 71, ch. 957, § 4; June 4, 1934, 48 Stat. 844, ch. 388.)

AMENDMENT

The 1934 amendment contained the new provision authorizing the Commissioners to issue such orders and regulations as necessary to carry into effect existing provisions of this act, and added the words "or for the installation of other appliances required by this act."

CROSS REFERENCE

Rules and regulations generally, §§ 1–226, 1–228, 5–412 and notes.

§ 5–305 [25: 298]. Elevator and stairway extending to basement to terminate in fireproof compartment—Certain other safety requirements—Office buildings—Certain exemptions, safety devices.

Each elevator shaft and stairway extending to the basement of the buildings heretofore mentioned shall terminate in a fireproof compartment or enclosure separating the elevator shaft and stairs from other parts of the basement, and no opening shall be made or maintained in such compartment or enclosure unless the same be provided with fireproof doors.

Such buildings as are used solely for office buildings above the second floor and defined under the building regulations of the District of Columbia to be fireproof are exempted from the requirements of sections 5–301 to 5–312 as to fire escapes, guide signs, and alarm gongs; but when the face of a wall of any such fireproof building is within thirty feet of a combustible building or structure, or when the side or sides, front or rear of such building or structure faces within thirty feet of a combustible building, or contains a light or air shaft of similar recess within thirty feet of a combustible building, then each and every window or opening in said wall or walls shall be protected from fire by automatic iron shutters or wire glass in fireproof sash and frames. AMENDMENTS

The 1907 amendment added the second paragraph of this section.

The section was repeated in the 1934 act.

CROSS REFERENCE

General powers of Commissioners concerning regulation of elevators, § 1–229.

INDICTMENT, SUFFICIENCY

Manslaughter indictment charging violations of elevator regulations should point out with particularity what regulations were violated and should plead facts concerning physical situation to show the regulations relied on where correctly applicable to the situation. U. S. v. Interstate Properties (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 469, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 392).

Where manslaughter indictment charged landlord, its vice president, and tenant, who operated rooming house, with negligently failing to have a dumb-waiter shaft constructed of fire-resistive materials and negligently failing to provide a front fire escape, and that defendants were under duty to roomers to comply with all orders, rules, regulations, and ordinances relating to use, occupancy and safety of buildings, and particularly building code and elevator code of District of Columbia, and that regulations required dumb-waiter shaft to be of fire-resistive construction, the indictment did not sufficiently plead existence of applicable regulations requiring use of fire-resistive materials in dumb-waiter shafts and installation of front fire escape. U. S. v. Interstate Properties (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 469, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 392).

§ 5–306 [25: 299]. Obstruction of halls and stairways prohibited.

It shall be unlawful to obstruct any hall, passageway, corridor, or stairway in any building enumerated in sections 5–301 to 5–312 with baggage, trunks, furniture, cans, or with any other thing whatsoever. (Mar. 19, 1906, 34 Stat. 71, ch. 957, § 6; June 4, 1934, 34 Stat. 844, ch. 388.)

AMENDMENT

The 1934 act substituted the word "enumerated" for "mentioned."

§ 5–307 [25: 300]. Fire escapes and approaches not to be obstructed.

No door or window leading to any fire escape shall be covered or obstructed by any fixed grating or barrier, and no person shall at any time place any encumbrance or obstacle upon any fire escape or upon any platform, ladder, or stairway leading to or from any fire escape. (Mar. 19, 1906, 34 Stat. 71, ch. 957, § 7; June 4, 1934, 48 Stat. 844, ch. 388.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1934 reenacted the section as it appeared in the act of 1906.

§ 5–308 [25: 302]. Penalty for violations.

Any person failing or neglecting to provide fire escapes, guide signs, guide lights, exit lights, hall and stairway lights, standpipes, fire extinguishers, alarm gongs, and striking stations, or other appliances required by sections 5–301 to 5–312 after notice from the Commissioners so to do, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than $10.00 nor more than $100 and shall be punished by a further fine of $5.00 for each day that he fails to comply with such notice. Any person violating any other provision of sections 5–301 to 5–312 or regulations promulgated hereunder shall be punished, upon conviction thereof, by a fine of not less than $10.00 nor more than $100 for each offense. (Mar. 19, 1906, 34 Stat. 71, ch. 957, § 9; June 4, 1934, 48 Stat. 845, ch. 388, § 8.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

Section 8 of the act of March 19, 1906, was omitted from the act of June 4, 1934, which amended the entire law, but a similar provision was enacted in act of July 1, 1932, 47 Stat. 550, ch. 366, par. 2. This section appears as § 47–2302. For other licensing provisions, see §§ 47–2344, 47–2345.

AMENDMENT

The 1934 amendment added provisions as to guide lights, exit lights, hall and stairway lights, standpipes, and striking stations, and the provision as to regulations promulgated under the act.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

MOTION TO QUASH

Whether premises on which violations of rooming house regulations allegedly occurred were within the operation of such regulations though licensed as an apartment house could not be determined on motion to quash information. District of Columbia v. Basiliko (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 407).

PREMISES INCLUDED

That premises were licensed as an apartment house did not preclude prosecution for violations of rooming house regulations which allegedly occurred on such premises. District of Columbia v. Basiliko (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 407).

§ 5–309 [25: 303]. Notice, what to contain.

The notice from the Commissioners requiring the erection of fire escapes and other appliances enumerated in sections 5–301 to 5–312 shall specify the character and number of fire escapes or other appliances to be provided, the location of the same, and the time within which said fire escapes or other appliances shall be provided, and in no case shall more than ninety days be allowed for compliance with said notice unless the Commissioners shall, in their discretion, deem it necessary to extend their time. (Mar. 19, 1906, 34 Stat. 71, ch. 957, § 10; June 4, 1934, 48 Stat. 845, ch. 388, § 9.)

No building shall be erected, altered, or raised in the District of Columbia in any manner so as to exceed in height above the sidewalk the width of the street, avenue, or highway in its front, increased by twenty feet; but where a building or proposed building confronts a public space or reservation formed at the intersection of two or more streets, avenues, or highways, the course of which is not interrupted by said public space or reservation, the limit of height of the building shall be determined from the width of the widest street, avenue, or highway. Where a building is to be erected or removed from all points within the boundary lines of its own lots, as recorded, by a distance at least equal to its proposed height above grade the limits of height for fireproof or noncombustible buildings in residence sections shall control, the measurements to be taken from the natural grades at the buildings as determined by the Commissioners.

No buildings shall be erected, altered, or raised in any manner as to exceed the height of one hundred and thirty feet on a business street or avenue as the same is now or hereafter may be lawfully designated, except on the north side of Pennsylvania Avenue between First and Fifteenth Streets, northwest, where an extreme height of one hundred and sixty feet will be permitted.

On a residence street, avenue, or highway no building shall be erected, altered, or raised in any manner so as to be over eight stories in height or over ninety feet in height at the highest part of the roof or parapet, nor shall the highest part of the roof or parapet exceed in height the width of the street, avenue, or highway upon which it abuts, diminished by ten feet, except on a street, avenue, or highway sixty to sixty-five feet wide, where a height of sixty feet may be allowed; and on a street, avenue, or highway sixty feet wide or less, where a height equal to the width of the street may be allowed: Provided, That any church, the construction of which had been undertaken but not completed prior to June 1, 1910, shall be exempted from the limitations of this paragraph, and the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall cause to be issued a permit for the construction of any such church to a height of ninety-five feet above the level of the adjacent curb.

The height of a building on a corner lot will be determined by the width of the wider street.

On streets less than ninety feet wide where building lines have been established and recorded in the office of the surveyor of the District, and so as to prevent the lawful erection of a building in advance of said line, the width of the street, in so far as it controls the height of buildings under sections 5–401 to 5–409, shall be held to be the distance between said building lines.

On blocks immediately adjacent to public buildings or to the side of any public building for which plans have been prepared and money appropriated at the time of the application for the permit to construct said building, the maximum height shall be regulated by a schedule adopted by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

Buildings erected after June 1, 1910, to front or abut on the plaza in front of the new Union Station provided for by Act of Congress approved February 28, 1903, shall be fireproof and shall not be of a greater height than eighty feet.

Spires, towers, domes, minarets, pinnacles, penthouses over elevator shafts, ventilation shafts, chimneys, smokestacks, and fire sprinkler tanks may be erected to a greater height than any limit prescribed in sections 5–401 to 5–409 when and as the same may be approved by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia: Provided, however, That such structures when above such limit of height shall be fireproof, and no floor or compartment thereof shall be constructed or used for human occupancy above the top story of the building upon which such structures are placed: And provided, That penthouses, ventilation shafts, and tanks shall be set back from the exterior walls distances equal to their respective heights above the adjacent roof: And provided further, That a building be permitted to be erected to a height not to exceed one hundred and thirty feet on lots 15, 804, and 805, square 322, located on the southeast corner of Twelfth and E Streets Northwest, said building to conform in height and to be used as an addition to the hotel building located to the east thereof on lot 18, square 322: And further provided, That the building to be erected on lots 813, 814, and 820, in square 254, located on the southeast corner of Fourteenth and F Streets Northwest, be permitted to be erected to a height not to exceed one hundred and forty feet above the F Street curb: And provided further, That the building to be erected on property known as the Dean Tract, comprising nine and one-fourth acres, bounded on the west by Connecticut Avenue and Columbia Road, on the south by Florida Avenue, on the east by Nineteenth Street, and on the north by a property line running east and west five hundred and sixty-four feet in length, said building to cover an area not exceeding fourteen thousand square feet and to be located on said property not less than forty feet distant from the north property line, not less than three hundred and twenty feet distant from the Connecticut Avenue property line, not less than one hundred and sixty feet distant from the Nineteenth Street property line, and not less than three hundred and sixty feet distant from the Florida Avenue line, measured at the point on the Florida Avenue boundary where the center line of Twentieth Street meets said boundary, be permitted to be erected to a height not to exceed one hundred and eighty feet above the level of the existing grade at the center of the location above described: And provided further, That the design of said building and the layout of said ground be subject to approval by the Fine Arts Commission and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, both of the District of Columbia: And further provided, That the building to be erected by the Georgetown University for a hospital as a part of the Georgetown University Medical School on parcels 28/31, 28/36 and 28/37 located on the south side of Reservoir Road Northwest in the District of Columbia, approximately opposite Thirty-ninth Street, plans for which building are on file in the office of the Inspector of Buildings of the District of Columbia, be permitted to be erected to a height of not to exceed one hundred and ten feet above the finished grade of the land, as shown on said plans, at the middle of the front of the building. § 5–408 [25: 508]. Violations declared nuisance—Injunction proceedings—Penalty for contempt.

Buildings erected, altered, or raised or converted in violation of any of the provisions of sections 5–401 to 5–409 are hereby declared to be common nuisances; and the owner or the person in charge of or maintaining any such buildings, upon conviction on information filed in the police court of the District of Columbia by the corporation counsel or any of his assistants in the name of said District, and which said court is hereby authorized to hear and determine such cases, shall be adjudged guilty of maintaining a common nuisance, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $100 per day for each and every day such nuisance shall be permitted to continue, and shall be required by said court to abate such nuisance. To this end, when application is made for permit for the erection or alteration of any building, any portion of which is to front or abut upon the grounds of the Capitol, the grounds of the White House, the portion of Pennsylvania Avenue extending from the Capitol to the White House, Lafayette Park, Rock Creek Park, the Zoological Park, the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway, Potomac Park, The Mall Park System and public buildings adjacent thereto, or abutting upon any street bordering any of said grounds or parks, the plans therefor, so far as they relate to height and appearance, color, and texture of the materials of exterior construction, shall be submitted by the commissioners of the District of Columbia to the Commission of Fine Arts; and the said commission shall report promptly to said commissioners its recommendations, including such changes, if any, as in its judgment are necessary to prevent reasonably avoidable impairment of the public values belonging to such public building or park; and said commissioners shall take such action as shall, in their judgment, effect reasonable compliance with such recommendation: Provided, That if the said Commission of Fine Arts fails to report its approval or disapproval of such plans within thirty days, its approval thereof shall be assumed and a permit may be issued. § 5–413 [25: 531]. Zoning regulations to be made by Zoning Commission—Uniformity.

To promote the health, safety, morals, convenience, order, prosperity, or general welfare of the District of Columbia and its planning and orderly development as the national capital, the Zoning Commission created by section 5–412, is hereby empowered, in accordance with the conditions and procedures specified in sections 5–413 to 5–428, to regulate the location, height, bulk, number of stories and size of buildings and other structures, the percentage of lot which may be occupied, the sizes of yards, courts, and other open spaces, the density of population, and the uses of buildings, structures, and land for trade, industry, residence, recreation, public activities, or other purposes; and for the purpose of such regulation said commission may divide the District of Columbia into districts or zones of such number, shape, and area as said Zoning Commission may determine, and within such districts may regulate the erection, construction, reconstruction, alteration, conversion, maintenance, and uses of buildings and structures and the uses of land. The said Zoning Commission shall also have power to promulgate regulations to require, with respect to buildings erected subsequent to the promulgation of such regulations, that facilities be provided and maintained either on the same lot with any such building, or on the same lot with any such building or elsewhere, for the parking of automobiles and motor vehicles of the owners, occupants, tenants, patrons, and customers of such building, and of the business, trades, and professions conducted therein. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Legislative power conferred by the act is in the Zoning Commission and not in the Commissioners of the District. Schwartz v. Brownlow (50 App. D. C. 279, 270 Fed. 1019, rev'd on other grounds 261 U. S. 216, 67 L. Ed. 620, 43 Sup. Ct. 263).

Notice of hearing by Zoning Commission not necessarily signed by individuals. Larrabee v. Bell (56 App. D. C. 121, 10 Fed. (2d) 986).

Court can not control reasonable exercise of power by Commission. Larrabee v. Bell (56 App. D. C. 121, 10 Fed. (2d) 986).

An athletic field acquired for use accessory to and a part of a high school could be located in a residential district, when the regulations permitted institutions of an educational character in residential districts. Commissioners of District v. Shannon & Luchs Constr. Co. (57 App. D. C. 67, 17 Fed. (2d) 219).

SETTING ASIDE ORDERS

Where a lot constituted the corner of less restricted zone, lot was separated on three sides by public park and on all four sides by a park or street or both, from all present and probable future housing, and owner's proposed apartment building would accommodate many more people than single dwellings which might be built on the lot, and enforcement of zoning commission's order restricting lot to single dwellings would greatly impair value of lot and would not increase value of adjoining property, zoning order was properly set aside. Wolpe v. Poretsky (App. D. C. 1946, 154 F. 2d 330, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 69, 329 U. S. 724, 91 L. Ed. 627).

USE OF PROPERTY

Residential zoning is not invalidated by the fact that if the property were available for business purposes it would bring the owner more revenue. Leventhal v. District of Columbia (69 App. D. C. 229, 100 Fed. (2d) 94).

§ 5–414 [25: 532]. Purposes of zoning regulations.

Such regulations shall be made in accordance with a comprehensive plan and designed to lessen congestion in the street, to secure safety from fire, panic, and other dangers, to promote health and the general welfare, to provide adequate light and air, to prevent the undue concentration of population and the overcrowding of land, and to promote such distribution of population and of the uses of land as would tend to create conditions favorable to health, safety, transportation, prosperity, protection of property, civic activity, and recreational, educational, and cultural opportunities, and as would tend to further economy and efficiency in the supply of public services. Such regulations shall be made with reasonable consideration, among other things, of the character of the respective districts and their suitability for the uses provided in the regulations, and with a view to encouraging stability of districts and of land values therein. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 797, ch. 534, § 2.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In General

Restrictions can not be imposed on the use of property if they do not bear a substantial relation to the public health, safety, morals, or general welfare. Bugher v. Gottwals (60 App. D. C. 340, 54 Fed. (2d) 451).

Injunction

A suit to enjoin zoning commission from carrying into effect a zoning order is not an appeal on the merits of the issues presented to the commission, and hence court should not substitute its judgment for that of the commission even for reasons which appear most persuasive. Wolpe v. Poretsky, 1944 (144 F. 2d 505, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 141, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 190, 323 U. S. 777, 89 L. Ed. 621).

Persons Bound by Decree

Where adjoining property owners had not been parties to suit to enjoin zoning commission from carrying into effect a zoning order and zoning commission had failed to appeal from final decree enjoining enforcement of order, property owners were entitled as a matter of right to intervene in the proceeding, since they would otherwise be bound by the decree. Wolpe v. Poretsky, 1944 (144 F. 2d 505, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 141, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 190, 323 U. S. 777, 89 L. Ed. 621).

In suit to enjoin members of zoning commission from carrying into effect a zoning order, zoning commission, in absence of intervention by adjoining property owners, sufficiently represented their interests so that a decree setting aside zoning order would be binding upon them. Wolpe v. Poretsky, 1944 (144 F. 2d 505, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 141, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 190, 323 U. S. 777, 89 L. Ed. 621).

Purpose

The two purposes of §§ 5–412 to 5–425 are to preserve character of a neighborhood by excluding new business and structures prejudicial to the restricted purposes of the area and gradual elimination of such existing structures and trades, and the protection of an owner's property or existing business from impairment which would result from enforced accommodation to new restrictions. Wood v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 67).

§ 5–415 [25: 533]. Existing zoning regulations continued until amended—Public hearing on amendments—Notice—Contents.

The regulations prior to June 20, 1938, adopted by the Zoning Commission under the authority of section 5–412 and in force on June 20, 1938, including the maps which at said date accompany and are a part of such regulations, shall be deemed to have been made and adopted and in force under sections 5–413 to 5–428 and shall be and continue in force and effect until and as they may be amended by the Zoning Commission as authorized by said sections 5–413 to 5–428. The Zoning Commission may from time to time amend the regulations or any of them or the maps or any of them. Before putting into effect any amendment or amendments of said regulations, or of said map or maps, the Zoning Commission shall hold a public hearing thereon. At least thirty days' notice of the time and place of such hearings shall be published at least once in a daily newspaper or newspapers of general circulation in the District of Columbia. Such published notice shall include a general summary of the proposed amendment or amendments of the regulation or regulations and the boundaries of the territory or territories included in the amendment or amendments of the map or maps, and the time and place of the hearing. The Zoning Commission shall give such additional notice of such hearing as it shall deem feasible and practicable. At such hearing it shall afford any person present a reasonable opportunity to be heard. Such public hearing may be adjourned from time to time and if the time and place of the adjourned meeting be publicly announced when the adjournment is had, no further notice of such adjourned meeting need be published. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 798, ch. 534, § 3.)

Compiler's Note

D. C. 1929, title 25, § 527, provided as follows: "Maps of the districts established by said Commission and copies of all orders and regulations as to the height and area of buildings to be erected therein and as to the uses to which such buildings may be lawfully devoted, and copies of all other official orders and regulations of the Commission shall be filed in the office of the Engineer Commissioner of the District of Columbia. Copies of all orders and regulations shall be published in one or more newspapers printed in the District of Columbia for the information of all concerned. (Mar. 1, 1920, 41 Stat. 501, ch. 92, § 7.)" § 5–417 [25: 535]. Zoning Advisory Council—Creation—Membership—Submission of amendments to zoning regulations.

No amendment of any zoning regulation or map shall be adopted by the Zoning Commission unless and until such amendment be first submitted to said Zoning Advisory Council and the opinion or report of such council thereon shall have been received by the commission: Provided, however, That if said council shall fail to transmit its opinion and advice within thirty days from the date of submission to it, then in such event the Zoning Commission shall have the right to proceed to act upon the proposed amendment without further waiting for the receipt of the opinion and advice of said council. § 5–418 [25: 536]. Maximum height of buildings.

§ 5–419 [25: 537]. Use of existing buildings—Restrictions—Discretion of Zoning Commission—Extension of use.

The lawful use of a building or premises as existing and lawful at the time of the original adoption of any regulation heretofore adopted under the authority of section 5–412, or, in the case of any regulation adopted after June 20, 1938, under sections 5–413 to 5–428, at the time of such adoption, may be continued although such use does not conform with the provisions of such regulation, provided no structural alteration, except such as may be required by law or regulation, or no enlargement is made or no new building is erected. The Zoning Commission may in its discretion provide, upon such terms and conditions as may be set forth in the regulations, for the extension of any such nonconforming use throughout the building and for the substitution of nonconforming uses. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abandonment of Non-Conforming Use

The discontinuance of a non-conforming use under §§ 5–412 to 5–425 results from concurrence of the intent to abandon and some overt act or failure to act which carries the implication of abandonment. Wood v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 67).

Fact that building which was equipped as a stable, and which had been used for the non-conforming use of buying and selling horses, had been vacant for about six years before being taken over by defendant, did not establish abandonment of the non-conforming use, where building during extended period of vacancy was retained in same condition and was being advertised for lease as a stable. Wood v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 67).

Continuance of Non-Conforming Use

Where building which was equipped as a stable had been used for non-conforming use of buying and selling horses, a subsequent use of premises for keeping horses for rent and boarding horses for others was a continuance of the prior non-conforming use. Wood v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 67).

Decisions Under Former Law

This section does not give authority to nullify an agreement between property owners fixing building-line restrictions. Castleman v. Avignone (56 App. D. C. 253, 12 Fed. (2d) 326.)

Where first floor of building in residence district had been used for some years as garage, without permit and without objection, expenditure of large sums for remodeling, in reliance on a permit to fireproof and repair premises and on a certificate of occupancy for use as a garage, the District may not revoke certificate of occupancy. District of Columbia v. Cahill (60 App. D. C. 342, 54 Fed. (2d) 453.)

Lease Restrictions

Provision in lease requiring the tenant to use the basement for commercial purposes was a reasonable one in a residential area, as the nonconforming commercial use in a residential district enhances the value of the property and the landlord had the right to insist that this use be maintained in order that it not be lost by reason of the nonuse or abandonment. Amos v. Cummings (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 67 A. 2d 87).

§ 5–420 [25: 538]. Board of Zoning Adjustment—Creation, membership—Tenure—Regulations to govern organization and procedure—Appeal—Procedure, powers—Majority vote necessary.

A Board of Zoning Adjustment is hereby created which shall be composed of five members appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, namely, one member of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission or a member of the staff thereof to be designated in either case by such commission; one member of the Zoning Commission or a member of the staff thereof to be designated in either case by such commission; and three other members, each of whom shall have been a resident of the District of Columbia for at least three years immediately preceding his appointment and at least one of whom shall own his own home.

The representative of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission may be changed from time to time by such commission in its discretion and in case of a vacancy in the position by death, resignation, or other disability, a new representative shall be designated by the said commission and appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to fill said vacancy. The representative of the Zoning Commission may be changed from time to time by such commission in its discretion and in case of a vacancy in the position by death, resignation, or other disability, a new representative shall be designated by the said commission and appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to fill said vacancy. The terms of the three members designated by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall be three years each, excepting that, in the case of the initial appointments, one shall be for a term of one year and one for a term of two years. In case of any vacancy in the position of any of the three members designated by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, the same shall be filled for the remainder of the term.

The Zoning Commission may provide and specify in its zoning regulations general rules to govern the organization and procedure of the Board of Adjustment not inconsistent with the provisions of sections 5–413 to 5–428, and the Board of Adjustment may adopt supplemental rules of procedure which shall be subject to the approval of the Zoning Commission after public hearing thereon as provided in section 5–415. The Board of Adjustment shall choose its chairman and its other officers. All meetings of the board shall be open to the public. The board shall keep minutes of its proceedings showing the vote of each member upon each question, or if absent or failing to vote indicating such fact, and shall keep records of its examinations and other official actions, all of which shall be immediately filed in the office of the board and shall be a public record.

The regulations adopted by the Zoning Commission may provide that the Board of Adjustment may, in appropriate cases and subject to appropriate principles, standards, rules, conditions, and safeguards set forth in the regulations, make special exceptions to the provisions of the zoning regulations in harmony with their general purpose and intent. The commission may also authorize the Board of Adjustment to interpret the zoning maps and pass upon disputed questions of lot lines or district boundary lines or similar questions as they arise in the administration of the regulations.

The Board of Adjustment shall not have the power to amend any regulation or map.

Appeals to the Board of Adjustment may be taken by any person aggrieved, or organization authorized to represent such person, or by any officer or department of the government of the District of Columbia or the federal government affected, by any decision of the inspector of buildings granting or refusing a building permit or granting or withholding a certificate of occupancy, or any other administrative decision based in whole or part upon any zoning regulation or map adopted under sections 5–413 to 5–428. The Commissioners of the District of Columbia may require and fix the fee to be charged for an appeal, which fee shall be paid, as directed by said commissioners, with the filing of the appeal: Provided, That no citizens' association, or association created for civic purposes and not for profit shall be required to pay said fee. There shall be a public hearing on appeal.

Upon appeals the Board of Adjustment shall have the following powers:

(1) To hear and decide appeals where it is alleged by the appellant that there is error in any order, requirement, decision, determination, or refusal made by the inspector of buildings or the Commissioners of the District of Columbia or any other administrative officer or body in the carrying out or enforcement of any regulation adopted pursuant to sections 5–413 to 5–428.

(2) To hear and decide, in accordance with the provisions of the regulations adopted by the Zoning Commission, requests for special exceptions or map interpretations or for decisions upon other special questions upon which such board is required or authorized by the regulations to pass.

(3) Where, by reason of exceptional narrowness, shallowness, or shape of a specific piece of property at the time of the original adoption of the regulations or by reason of exceptional topographical conditions or other extraordinary or exceptional situation or condition of a specific piece of property, the strict application of any regulation adopted under sections 5–413 to 5–428 would result in peculiar and exceptional practical difficulties to or exceptional and undue hardship upon the owner of such property, to authorize, upon an appeal relating to such property, a variance from such strict application so as to relieve such difficulties or hardship, provided such relief can be granted without substantial detriment to the public good and without substantially impairing the intent, purpose, and integrity of the zone plan as embodied in the zoning regulations and map.

(4) In exercising the above-mentioned powers the Board of Adjustment may, in conformity with the provisions of sections 5–413 to 5–428 reverse or affirm, wholly or partly, or may modify the order, requirement, decision, determination, or refusal appealed from or may make such order as may be necessary to carry out its decision or authorization, and to that end shall have all the powers of the officer or body from whom the appeal is taken.

The concurring vote of not less than a full majority of the members of the board shall be necessary for any decision or order.

Nothing herein contained shall prohibit the Zoning Commission from providing by regulation for appeals to it from any action of the Board of Zoning Adjustment. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 799, ch. 534, § 8.)

§ 5–421 [25: 539]. Maps and regulations of Zoning Commission—To be filed—Published.

A copy of any map established by said Zoning Commission and of its zoning regulations shall be filed in the office of the engineer commissioner of the District of Columbia. A copy of any regulation or any amendment adopted after June 20, 1938, shall be published once in one or more daily newspapers printed in the District of Columbia for the information of all concerned. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 800, ch. 534, § 9.)

§ 5–422 [25: 540]. Building permits—Construction without obtaining—Certificates of occupancy—Use without obtaining—Construction in violation of regulations—Enforcement—Actions, parties—Penalty.

It shall be unlawful to erect, construct, reconstruct, convert, or alter any building or structure or part thereof within the District of Columbia without obtaining a building permit from the inspector of buildings, and said inspector shall not issue any permit for the erection, construction, reconstruction, conversion, or alteration of any building or structure, or any part thereof, unless the plans of and for the proposed erection, construction, reconstruction, conversion, or alteration fully conform to the provisions of sections 5–413 to 5–428 and of the regulations adopted under said sections. In the event that said regulations provide for the issuance of certificates of occupancy or other form of permit to use, it shall be unlawful to use any building, structure, or land until such certificate or permit be first obtained. It shall be unlawful to erect, construct, reconstruct, alter, convert, or maintain or to use any building, structure, or part thereof or any land within the District of Columbia in violation of the provisions of said sections or of any of the provisions of the regulations adopted under said sections. The owner or person in charge of or maintaining any such building or land or any other person who erects, constructs, reconstructs, alters, converts, maintains, or uses any building or structure or part thereof or land in violation of said sections or of any regulation adopted under said sections, shall upon conviction for such violation on information filed in the police court of the District of Columbia by the corporation counsel or any of his assistants in the name of said District and which court is hereby authorized to hear and determine such cases be punished by a fine of not more than $100 per day for each and every day such violation shall continue. The corporation counsel of the District of Columbia or any neighboring property-owner or occupant who would be specially damaged by any such violation may, in addition to all other remedies provided by law, institute injunction, mandamus, or other appropriate action or proceeding to prevent such unlawful erection, construction, reconstruction, alteration, conversion, maintenance, or use, or to correct or abate such violation or to prevent the occupancy of such building, structure, or land. NOTES TO DECISIONS

BAR TO PROSECUTION

An acquittal on charge of using a single family dwelling without an occupancy permit between certain dates would not bar prosecution for use without a permit between subsequent dates, each information containing a continuando clause. Savage v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 A. 2d 562, affirmed, 1948, 169 F. 2d 889, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 401, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U. S. 924, 93 L. Ed. 1086, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 810, 336 U. S. 947, 93 L. Ed. 1103).

An applicant who during a two year period failed to correct conditions which caused rejection of application for occupancy permit could not urge as bar to prosecution for operating without a permit that he was never given an opportunity to correct the conditions. Savage v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 a. 2d 562, affirmed, 1948, 169 F. 2d 889, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 401, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U. S. 924, 93 L. Ed. 1086, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 810, 336 U. S. 947, 93 L. Ed. 1103).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

To secure consent of owners for the building of a garage in a certain square, owners in another square separated by a street will not be considered although within the designated distance. Hazard v. Blessing (55 App. D. C. 114, 2 Fed. (2d) 916).

Commissioners having issued permit to erect garage without the necessary consent of owners may be compelled to revoke it. Hazard v. Blessing (55 App. D. C. 114, 2 Fed. (2d) 916).

When owner of garage in residential district made large expenditures to improve it after relying on the building inspector's permit, the District is estopped from revoking occupancy certificates. District of Columbia v. Cahill (60 App. D. C. 342, 54 Fed. (2d) 453).

When the corporation converted the land into a public golf course without first obtaining a certificate of occupancy, it violated the provisions of the Zoning Act. Golf, Inc. v. District of Columbia (62 App. D. C. 309, 67 Fed. (2d) 575).

INJUNCTION

A suit to enjoin zoning commission from carrying into effect a zoning order is not an appeal on the merits of the issues presented to the commission, and hence court should not substitute its judgment for that of the commission even for reasons which appear most persuasive. Wolpe v. Poretsky, 1944 (144 F. 2d 505, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 141, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 190, 323 U. S. 777, 89 L. Ed. 621).

INTERVENORS, RIGHTS OF

Adjoining property owners intervening subsequent to entry of final decree in suit to enjoin zoning commission from carrying into effect a zoning order were possessed of all rights of a party at that stage of the proceedings, including right to appeal where time for appeal had not expired. Wolpe v. Poretsky, 1944 (144 F. 2d 505, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 141, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 190, 323 U. S. 777, 89 L. Ed. 621).

The failure of zoning commission to take appeal from order enjoining commission from enforcing a zoning order constituted "inadequate representation" of interests of adjoining property owners who were not parties to the proceeding within Rule 24 (a), following section 723c of 28 U. S. C. providing for intervention in case of inadequate representation of an applicant's interests. D. C. Code 1940, § 5–422; Wolpe v. Poretsky, 1944 (144 F. 2d 505, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 141, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 190, 323 U. S. 777, 89 L. Ed. 621).

Adjoining property owners have such a vital interest in result of suit to vacate a zoning order that they should be granted permission to intervene as a matter of course unless compelling reasons against such intervention are shown. Wolpe v. Poretsky, 1944 (144 F. 2d 505, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 141, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 190, 323 U. S. 777, 89 L. Ed. 621).

An application by property owners to intervene in suit to enjoin zoning commission from carrying into effect a zoning order was timely even though final decree had been entered, where, because of failure of commission to appeal, intervention was necessary to protect property owners' right to appeal. Wolpe v. Poretsky, 1944 (144 F. 2d 505, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 141, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 190, 323 U. S. 777, 89 L. Ed. 621).

JURY TRIAL

Where accused was charged under three separate informations which were consolidated for trial, with using premises without a certificate of occupancy, operating the premises as a rooming house between certain dates without a license, and using the same premises as a rooming house without a license between certain other dates, jury trial was properly denied. Savage v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 A. 2d 562, affirmed, 1948, 169 F. 2d 889, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 401, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U. S. 924, 93 L. Ed. 1086, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 810, 336 U. S. 947, 93 L. Ed. 1103).

NOTICE

An applicant for an occupancy permit under this chapter is entitled to notice of action thereon with reasons therefor, but having been given notice of rejection with reasons, applicant had duty to cease the use applied for. Savage v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 A. 2d 562, affirmed, 1948, 169 F. 2d 889, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 401, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U. S. 924, 93 L. Ed. 1086, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 810, 336 U. S. 947, 93 L. Ed. 1103).

PERSONS BOUND BY DECREE

Where adjoining property owners had not been parties to suit to enjoin zoning commission from carrying into effect a zoning order and zoning commission had failed to appeal from final decree enjoining enforcement of order, property owners were entitled as a matter of right to intervene in the proceeding, since they would otherwise be bound by the decree. Wolpe v. Poretsky, 1944 (144 F. 2d 505, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 141, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 190, 323 U. S. 777, 89 L. Ed. 621).

In suit to enjoin members of zoning commission from carrying into effect a zoning order, zoning commission, in absence of intervention by adjoining property owners, sufficiently represented their interests so that a decree setting aside zoning order would be binding upon them. Wolpe v. Poretsky, 1944 (144 F. 2d 505, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 141, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 190, 323 U. S. 777, 89 L. Ed. 621).

SETTING ASIDE ORDERS

Where a lot constituted the corner of less restricted zone, lot was separated on three sides by public park and on all four sides by a park or street or both, from all present and probable future housing, and owner's proposed apartment building would accommodate many more people than single dwellings which might be built on the lot, and enforcement of zoning commission's order restricting lot to single dwellings would greatly impair value of lot and would not increase value of adjoining property, zoning order was properly set aside.—Wolpe v. Poretsky (App. D. C. 1946, 154 F. 2d 330).

§ 5–423 [25: 541]. Enforcement of regulations—Power to adopt municipal regulations.

The commissioners of the District of Columbia shall enforce the regulations adopted under the authority hereof. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to limit the authority of the commissioners of the District of Columbia to make municipal regulations which are not inconsistent with the provisions of sections 5–413 to 5–428 and the regulations adopted hereunder. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 801, ch. 534, § 11.)

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONFLICT OF POWERS

The commissioners may not adopt a regulation which attempts to regulate the use to which a building could be put, i. e., a drug store, since this is the chief jurisdiction conferred upon the Zoning Commission. Schwartz v. Brownlow (50 App. D. C. 279, 270 Fed. 1019, revd. on other grounds 261 U. S. 216, 67 L. Ed. 620, 43 Sup. Ct. 263).

§ 5–424 [25: 542]. Effect of regulations on future construction.

Wherever the regulations made under the authority of sections 5–413 to 5–428 require a greater width or size of yards, courts, or other open spaces, or require a lower height of buildings or smaller number of stories, or require a greater percentage of lot to be left unoccupied, or impose other higher standards than are required in or under any other statute or municipal regulations, the regulations made under authority of said sections shall govern. Wherever the provisions of any other statute or municipal regulations require a greater width or size of yards, courts, or other open spaces or require a lower height of buildings or smaller number of stories or require a greater percentage of lot to be left unoccupied or impose other higher standards than are required by the regulations made under authority of said sections, the provisions of such other statute or municipal regulation shall govern. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 801, ch. 534, § 12.)

§ 5–425 [25: 543]. Terms defined.

The word "amend," "amendment," "amendments," or "amended," when used in sections 5–413 to 5–428 in relation to the zoning regulations, shall be deemed to include any modification of the text or phraseology of the regulations or of any provision of the regulations or any regulations or any repeal or elimination of any regulation or regulations or part thereof or any addition to the regulations or any new regulation or any change of or in the wording or content of the regulations. The word "amend," "amendment," "amendments," or "amended," when used in said sections in relation to the zoning maps or any map, shall be deemed to include any change in the number, shape, boundary, or area of any district or districts, any repeal or abolition of any such map or any part thereof, any addition to any such map, any new map or maps, or any other change in the maps or any map. The words "administrative decision," "administrative officer," "administrative officer or body," when used in section 5–420 shall not be deemed to include the Zoning Commission. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 801, ch. 534, § 13.)

§ 5–426 [25: 544]. Appropriations authorized for Zoning Commission—Authority to employ—Compensation of Board of Zoning Adjustment.

Appropriations are hereby authorized to carry out the provisions of sections 5–413 to 5–428 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1938, and thereafter the commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized and directed to include in their annual estimates such amounts as may be required for salaries and expenses incident to such purposes. The commissioners are authorized to employ such personal services as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of sections 5–413 to 5–428, and the salaries of such employees, other than members of the Board of Zoning Adjustment, are to be fixed in accordance with the provisions of the Classification Act of 1923, as amended (U. S. Code, title 5, section 673). The commissioners shall fix the compensation of the members of the Board of Zoning Adjustment, without reference to the provisions of the Classification Act (U. S. Code, title 5, section 673): Provided, however, That the compensation of any member shall not exceed $1,000 per annum: And provided further, That no compensation for service as a member of said board shall be provided for any member who holds a salaried public office or position in the District of Columbia or the federal government. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 802, ch. 534, § 14.)

The act of March 1, 1920 (41 Stat. 500, ch. 92), excepting the provisions of section 5–412 creating the Zoning Commission, providing for its membership and service without additional compensation, are hereby repealed. All laws or parts of other laws in conflict with the provisions of sections 5–413 to 5–428 are hereby repealed. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 802, ch. 534, § 15.)

The provisions of sections 5–413 to 5–428 shall not apply to federal public buildings: Provided, however, That, in order to insure the orderly development of the national capital, the location, height, bulk, number of stories, and size of federal public buildings in the District of Columbia and the provision for open space in and around the same will be subject to the approval of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 802, ch. 534, § 16.)

When the public safety does not, in the judgment of the inspector of buildings, demand immediate action, if the owner, agent, or other party interested in said unsafe structure or excavation, having been notified, shall refuse or neglect to comply with the requirements of said notice within the time specified, then a careful survey of the premises shall be made by three disinterested persons, one to be appointed by the commissioners of the District of Columbia, one by the owner or other person interested, and the third to be chosen by these two, and the report of said survey shall be reduced to writing, and a copy served upon the owner or other interested party; and if said owner or other interested party refuse or neglect to appoint a member of said board of survey within the time specified in said notice, then the survey shall be made by the inspector of buildings and the person chosen by the commissioners, and in case of disagreement they shall choose a third person, and the determination of a majority of the three so chosen shall be final. (Mar. 1, 1899, 30 Stat. 923, ch. 323, § 2; Apr. 5, 1935, 49 Stat. 106, ch. 41, § 2.)

§ 5–503 [25: 473]. Inspector of buildings to make structure safe if responsible person does not—Cost and expense—How assessed—Neglect of lessee—Rights of lessor.

Whenever the report of any such survey shall declare the structure or excavation to be unsafe, or shall state that structural repairs should be made in order to place the said structure or excavation in a fit condition for further occupancy or use, and the owner or other interested person shall for ten days neglect or refuse to cause such structure or excavation to be taken down or otherwise to be made safe, the inspector of buildings shall proceed to make such structure or excavation safe or remove the same. After the expiration of the ten days in which the owner or other interested person is given to make the structure or excavation safe, or to be taken down or removed, the owner or other interested person, having failed to comply with the provision of the report of the board of survey, shall not enter, or cause to be entered, the premises for the purpose of making the repairs ordered, or razing the building, as the case may be; or in any other way to interfere with the authorized agents of the District of Columbia in making the said structure or excavation safe, or in removing same, without first having obtained the written consent of the commissioners of the District of Columbia or their duly authorized representatives. The inspector of buildings shall report the cost and expense of said work to the commissioners of the said District, who shall assess the amount thereof upon the lot or ground whereon such structure or excavation stands, or stood, or was dug, and unless the said assessment is paid within ninety days from the service of notice thereof on the agent or owner of such property, the same shall bear interest at the rate of 10 per centum per annum from the date of such assessment until paid, and shall be collected as general taxes are collected in said District; but said assessment shall be without prejudice to the right which the owner may have to recover from any lessee or other person liable for repairs. (Mar. 1, 1899, 30 Stat. 923, ch. 323, § 3; Apr. 5, 1935, 49 Stat. 106, ch. 41, § 3.)

AMENDMENT

The 1935 amendment inserted in the first sentence the following: "or shall state that structural repairs should be made in order to place the said structure or excavation in a fit condition for occupancy or use." This amendment also made the safety provisions apply to excavations as well as buildings, gave the owner 10 days instead of 3 to make the premises safe, and inserted as new matter the entire second sentence.

§ 5–504 [25: 474]. Nuisances to be abated—Notice given—Cost a lien on property—Penalty—Prosecution in police court.

The existence on any lot or parcel of land, in the District of Columbia, of any uncovered well, cistern, dangerous hole, excavation, or of any abandoned vehicles of any description or parts thereof, miscellaneous materials or debris of any kind, including substances that have accumulated as the result of repairs to yards or any building operations, insofar as they affect the public health, comfort, safety, and welfare is hereby declared a nuisance dangerous to life and limb, and any person, corporation, partnership, syndicate, or company, owning a lot or parcel of land in said District on which such a nuisance exists who shall neglect or refuse to abate the same to the satisfaction of the commissioners of the District of Columbia, after five days' notice from them to do so, shall, on conviction in the police court be punished by a fine of not exceeding $50 for each and every day said person, corporation, partnership, or syndicate, fails to comply with such notice. In case the owner of, or agent or other party interested in, any lot or parcel of land in the District of Columbia, on which there exists an open well, cistern, dangerous hole, or excavation, or any abandoned or unused vehicles or parts thereof, or miscellaneous accumulation of material or debris which affects public safety, health, comfort, and welfare, shall fail, after notice aforesaid, to abate said nuisance within one week after the expiration of such notice, the said commissioners may cause the lot or parcel of land on which the nuisance exists to be secured by fences or otherwise enclosed, and the removal of any abandoned vehicles, parts thereof, or miscellaneous accumulation of material or debris adversely affecting the public safety, health, comfort, and welfare, and the cost and expense thereof shall be assessed by said commissioners as a tax against the property on which such nuisance exists, and the tax so assessed shall bear interest at the rate of 10 per centum per annum until paid, and be carried on the regular tax rolls of the District of Columbia and shall be collected in the manner provided for the collection of general taxes. (Mar. 1, 1899, 30 Stat. 923, ch. 323, § 4; Apr. 5, 1935, 49 Stat. 107, ch. 41, § 4.)

AMENDMENT

The 1935 amendment omitted the word "unenclosed" before "lot"; it added as nuisances, abandoned vehicles, debris, and materials left after repairs made; it made the provision apply to the District of Columbia instead of the city of Washington; made the maximum fine $50 instead of $20; and omitted special provisions as to notice to nonresidents of the District.

§ 5–505 [25: 475]. Notice—Contents—How served.

For the purposes of this chapter any notice required by law or by any regulation aforesaid to be served shall be deemed to have been served (a) if delivered to the person to be notified, or if left at the usual residence or place of business of the person to be notified, with a person of suitable age and discretion then resident therein; or (b) if no such residence or place of business can be found in said District by reasonable search, if left with any person of suitable age and discretion employed therein at the office of any agent of the person to be notified, which agent has any authority or duty with reference to the land or tenement to which said notice relates; or (c) if no such office can be found in said District by reasonable search, if forwarded by registered mail to the last known address of the person to be notified and not returned by the post-office authorities; or (d) if no address be known or can by reasonable diligence be ascertained, or if any notice forwarded as authorized by the preceding clause of this section be returned by the post-office authorities, if published on three consecutive days in a daily newspaper published in the District of Columbia; or (e) if by reason of an outstanding, unrecorded transfer of title the name of the owner in fact can not be ascertained beyond a reasonable doubt, if served on the owner of record in the manner hereinbefore in this section provided; or (f) in case any owner be a nonresident of the District of Columbia, then after public notice by said commissioners given at least twice a week for one week in one newspaper published in the District of Columbia, by advertisement, describing the property, specifying the nuisance to be abated. Any notice required by law or by any regulation aforesaid to be served on a corporation shall for the purposes of this chapter be deemed to have been served on any such corporation if served on the president, secretary, treasurer, general manager, or any principal officer of such corporation in the manner hereinbefore provided for the service of notices on natural persons holding property in their own right; and, if required to be served on any foreign corporation, if served on any agent of such corporation personally, or if left with any person of suitable age and discretion residing at the usual residence or employed at the place of business of such agent in the District of Columbia. Every notice aforesaid shall be in writing or printing, or partly in writing and partly in printing; shall be addressed by name to the person to be notified; shall describe with certainty the character and location of the unlawful condition to be corrected, and shall allow a reasonable time to be specified in said notice, within which the person notified may correct such unlawful condition or show cause why he should not be required to do so. (Mar. 1, 1899, ch. 323, as added Apr. 5, 1935, 49 Stat. 107, ch. 41, § 5.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTITUTIONALITY

Statute under which the board of condemnation proceeded against appellant's property is constitutional and was constitutionally applied. Keyes v. Madsen (C. A. D. C. 1949, 179 F. 2d 40, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 24, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 628, 339 U. S. 928, 94 L. Ed. 546).

§ 5–606 [20: 406]. Repairs and changes—Condemnation to be revoked upon making proper repairs and changes by owner—Reasonable diligence to extend period.

If the owner or owners of any building or part of building condemned under the provisions of this chapter shall make such changes or repairs as will remedy in a manner satisfactory to said board the conditions which led to the condemnation of such building or part of building, said board shall cancel its order of condemnation and the building may be again occupied; and if such owner or owners can not make such changes or repairs within the period within which they may lawfully permit such building or part of building to be occupied under section 5–605, but proceed with such changes or repairs with reasonable diligence during that period, said board may, by special order, extend from time to time the period within which the occupants of said building or part of building may remain therein and within which the owner or owners thereof may permit them so to do. (May 1, 1906, 34 Stat. 158, ch. 2073, § 6.)

§ 5–607 [20: 407]. Demolition of buildings when repairs cannot be made—Penalty for refusing to demolish—Demolition under direction of Board—Cost assessed as tax.

The owner or owners of any building or buildings condemned under the provisions of this chapter, which cannot be so changed or repaired as to remedy the condition which led to the condemnation thereof, shall demolish and remove such building or part of building within the time to be specified by said board in the order of condemnation. And if any owner or part owner shall fail or refuse to demolish and remove said building or part of building within the time so specified he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to the penalties provided by section 5–613, and such building or part of building shall be demolished and removed under the direction of the board for the condemnation of insanitary buildings in the District of Columbia, and the cost of such demolition and removal, including the cost of making good damage to adjoining premises (except such as may have resulted from carelessness or willful recklessness in the demolition or removal of such building), and the cost of publication, if any, herein provided for, less the amount, if any, received from the sale of the old material, shall be assessed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia as a tax against the premises on which such building or part of building was situated, such tax to be collected in the same manner as general taxes are collected in the District of Columbia. (May 1, 1906, 34 Stat. 158, ch. 2073, § 7; Apr. 5, 1935, 49 Stat. 108, ch. 42; Dec. 17, 1942, 56 Stat. 1055, ch. 762, § 4.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of May 1, 1906, provided that the costs assessed thereunder should when collected be deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia in equal parts. The act of February 22, 1921 (41 Stat. 1144, ch. 70, § 7), provided that "on and after July 1, 1921, all fees, fines, and other miscellaneous items of revenue theretofore required by law to be paid into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia in equal parts shall be paid for each fiscal year into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia in the same proportions as appropriations for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for such fiscal year are paid from the Treasury of the United States and the revenues of the District of Columbia." For proportions in various appropriation acts for expenses of the District of Columbia, see acts of June 7, 1924, 43 Stat. 539, ch. 302; Mar. 3, 1925, 43 Stat. 1216, ch. 477; May 10, 1926, 44 Stat. 417, ch. 276; Mar. 3, 1927, 44 Stat. 1297, ch. 271; May 21, 1928, 45 Stat. 645, ch. 659. The amendment of 1935 omitted the provision, therefore, and also inserted in the first sentence the following: "where the repairs and/or alterations necessary to remedy the conditions which led to the condemnation thereof cannot be made at a cost not greater than 50 per centum of the present reproduction cost of said building as may be agreed upon by a majority of said Board."

The act of Dec. 17, 1942, cited to text, omitted limitation of cost of repairs or alterations from first sentence.

Whenever said board for the condemnation of insanitary buildings is in doubt as to the ownership of any building or part of a building, the condemnation of which is contemplated, because the title thereto is in litigation, said board may notify all parties to the suit and may report the circumstances to the corporation counsel of the District of Columbia, who may bring such circumstances to the attention of the court in which such litigation is pending for the purpose of securing such order of decree as will enable said board to continue such proceedings looking toward condemnation, and such court is hereby authorized to make such decrees and orders in such pending suit as may be necessary for that purpose. (May 1, 1906, 34 Stat. 158, ch. 2073, § 8; Dec. 17, 1942, 56 Stat. 1055, ch. 762, § 5.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of Dec. 17, 1942, cited to text, substituted "said board for the condemnation of insanitary buildings is in doubt as to the ownership of", for "the title to".

§ 5–609 [20: 409]. Non compos mentis or infant owner—Procedure.

And any justice of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia holding the equity court is hereby authorized to appoint a guardian or guardians for that purpose. § 5–611 [20: 411]. Interfering with any member of board prohibited.

No person shall interfere with any member of the Board for the Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings or with any person acting under authority and by direction of said board in the discharge of his lawful duties, nor hinder, prevent, or refuse to permit any

§ 5–613 [20: 413]. Penalty for violations.

Any person violating or aiding or abetting in violating any of the provisions of this chapter shall, upon conviction thereof in the police court of the District of Columbia, upon information filed in the name of said District, be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than ninety days; and each day on which such unlawful act is done or during which such unlawful negligence continues shall constitute a separate and distinct offense. NOTES TO DECISIONS

SCOPE OF REVIEW

Having failed to present the plea of unconstitutionality of a statute on its face to the district court, the appellant cannot urge it here since the rule is if the question is not raised in the trial court, it will not be considered on appeal. Keyes v. Madsen (C. A. D. C. 1949, 179 F. 2d 40, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 24, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 628, 339 U. S. 928, 94 L. Ed. 546).

§ 5–615 [20: 415]. Expenses—Appropriations for.

Except as herein otherwise authorized all expenses incident to the enforcement of this chapter shall be paid from appropriations made from time to time for that purpose in like manner as other appropriations for the expenses of the District of Columbia. (May 1, 1906, 34 Stat. 161, ch. 2073, § 15; Apr. 5, 1935, 49 Stat. 110, ch. 42.)

AMENDMENT

Section 15 of the act of 1906, cited to the text, provided that the expenses of the enforcement of this act should be paid from "appropriations made from time to time for that purpose, one-half from the revenues of the District of Columbia and one-half from any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated."

§ 5–701. General purposes.

It is hereby declared to be a matter of legislative determination that owing to technological and sociological changes, obsolete lay-out, and other factors, conditions existing in the District of Columbia with respect to substandard housing and blighted areas, including the use of buildings in alleys as dwellings for human habitation, are injurious to the public health, safety, morals, and welfare, and it is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to protect and promote the welfare of the inhabitants of the seat of the Government by eliminating all such injurious conditions by employing all means necessary and appropriate for the purpose; and control by regulatory processes having proved inadequate and insufficient to remedy the evils, it is in the judgment of Congress necessary to acquire property in the District of Columbia by gift, purchase, or the use of eminent domain to effectuate the declared policy by the discontinuance of the use for human habitation in the District of Columbia of substandard dwellings and of buildings in alleys and blighted areas, and thereby to eliminate the substandard housing conditions and the communities in the inhabited alleys and blighted areas in such District; and it is necessary to modernize the planning and development of such portions of such District. The Congress finds that the foregoing cannot be accomplished by the ordinary operations of private enterprise alone without public participation in the planning and in the financing of land assembly for such development; and that for the economic soundness of this redevelopment and the accomplishment of the necessary social and economic benefits, and by reason of the close relationships between the development and uses of any part of an urban area with the development and uses of all other parts the sound replanning and redevelopment of an obsolescent or obsolescing portion of such District cannot be accomplished unless it be done in the light of comprehensive and coordinated planning of the whole of the territory of the District of Columbia and its environs; and that this comprehensive planning and replanning should proceed vigorously without delay; and to these ends it is necessary to enact the provisions hereinafter set forth; and that the acquisition and the assembly of real property and the leasing or sale thereof for redevelopment pursuant to a project area redevelopment plan, all as provided in sections 5–701 to 5–719, is hereby declared to be a public use. (Aug. 2, 1946, 60 Stat. 790, ch. 736, § 2.)

SHORT TITLE

Section 1 of act Aug. 2, 1946, cited to text, provided that this chapter may be cited as the "District of Columbia Redevelopment Act of 1945."

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 22 of act Aug. 2, 1946, cited to text, provided: "This Act shall take effect ninety days after the date of its approval."

§ 5–702. Definitions.

The following terms, whenever used or referred to in sections 5–701 to 5–719, shall, for the purposes of sections 5–701 to 5–719 and unless a different intent clearly appears from the context, be construed as follows:

(a) The term "Agency" means the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency established by section 5–703.

(b) "District Commissioners" means the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

(c) "Housing" includes housing, dwelling, habitation, and residence.

(d) "Housing project" means any low-rent housing (as defined in the United States Housing Act of 1937, U. S. C., title 42, ch. 8), the development or administration of which is assisted by the United States Housing Authority.

(e) "Land" includes bare or vacant land, or the land under buildings, structures, or other improvements; also water and land under water. When employed in connection with "use," as for instance, "use of land" or "land use," "land" also includes buildings, structures, and improvements existing or to be placed thereon.

(f) "Low-rent housing" means safe and sanitary housing within the financial reach of families of comparatively low income and, as a guide for the standard of rental to be used as a maximum at the time of the enactment of this law but not necessarily thereafter, it is specified that such housing shall be rented at not more than $13 per room per month, excluding utilities.

(g) "Lessee" includes the successors or assigns and successors in title of any lessee.

(h) "Planning Commission" means the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

(i) "Proceeds" means the money proceeds of sales or transfers by the Agency; and "net proceeds" means the gross proceeds after deducting commissions or other expenses of the sales or transfers.

(j) "Project area" is an area of such extent and location as may be adopted by the Planning Commission and approved by the District Commissioners after public hearing as an appropriate unit of redevelopment planning for a redevelopment project separate from the redevelopment projects for other parts of the District of Columbia. In the provisions of this Act relating to lease or sale by the Agency, for abbreviation "project area" is used for the remainder of the project area after taking out those pieces of property which in accordance with section 7–706 (a) shall have been or are to be transferred for public uses.

(k) "Public low-rent housing" means low-rent housing, constructed by a public agency for families of low income, at rentals which (including the value or cost to tenants of heat, light, water, and cooking fuel) shall not exceed one-fifth of the highest net family income of families eligible for tenancy in such housing, as herein provided. The dwellings in public low-rent housing shall be available solely for such families of low income whose net family income does not exceed the maximum net family income falling within the lowest 20 per centum by number of all family incomes in the District of Columbia, as such maximum net family income shall have been determined, or from time to time redetermined after public hearing, by the District Commissioners. At the end of one year after the enactment of sections 5–701 to 5–719 this definition shall be reexamined by the Commissioners for the District of Columbia and a public hearing shall be held thereon to determine whether administrative or interpretive difficulties or unsatisfactory progress in the provision of low-rent housing requires a modification thereof. Upon the conclusion of such hearing the Commissioners shall forthwith make recommendations to Congress whether said definition should be modified and, if so, to what extent.

(m) "Real property" includes land; also includes land together with the buildings, structures, fixtures, and other improvements thereon; also includes liens, estates, easements, and other interests therein; and also includes restrictions or limitations upon the use of land, buildings, or structures other than those imposed by exercise of the police power.

(n) "Redevelopment" means replanning, clearance, redesign, and rebuilding of project areas, including open-space types of uses, such as streets, recreation and other public grounds, and spaces around buildings, as well as buildings, structures, and improvements, but not excluding the continuance of some of the existing buildings or uses in a project area. For the purposes of sections 5–701 to 5–719, "redevelopment" also includes the replanning, redesign, and original development of undeveloped areas which, by reason of street lay-out, lot lay-out, or other causes, are backward and stagnant and therefore blighted and for which replanning and land assembly are deemed necessary as a condition of sound development.

(o) "Redevelopment company" means a private or public corporation or body corporate, whether organized under the District of Columbia Code or the laws of the United States or any State, or an unincorporated association, trust, or other legal entity, which, by virtue of the statutes, charter, articles of incorporation, instruments of trust, or other instrument defining its powers, has the power to become a lessee or purchaser of a project area and to conform to the provisions of this Act and to perform fully and comply with the terms of the lease or sale of such area or part thereof to it.

(p) "Rentals" means the rents specified in a lease to be paid by the lessee to the Agency; "net rentals" means gross rentals after deducting taxes payable by the Agency.

(q) "Revenues" means the revenues or income received by the Agency from real property while held by it and operated or temporarily let by it and not yet leased, transferred, or sold by it; and "net revenues" means the gross revenues after deducting repair, management, maintenance, insurance, and other operating expenses and taxes paid or payable by the Agency.

§ 5–703. Establishment and powers of the Agency.

(a) The District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency is hereby established and shall be composed of five members. Two members shall be appointed by the President and three members shall be appointed by the District Commissioners, subject to confirmation by the Senate. One of the Presidential appointees may be an official of the United States Government; one appointee of the District Commissioners may be an official of the District of Columbia Government. The terms of members shall be for five years, except that the first appointment of one of the Presidential appointees shall be for three years and the other for five years; one of the first appointments of the District Commissioners shall be for four years, one for two years, and one for one year: Provided, That in the event any member shall cease to hold the official position held by him at the time of his designation or appointment, such cessation shall be deemed to create a vacancy in his membership on the Agency, such vacancy, as well as all vacancies from other causes, to be filled by designation or appointment by the President or District Commissioners for the unexpired term. The members shall receive no salary as such, but those members who hold no other salaried public position shall be paid a per diem of $20 for each day of service at meetings or on the work of the Agency.

(b) The said District of Columbia Redevelopment Agency is hereby made a body corporate of perpetual duration, the powers of which shall be vested in and exercised by the board of directors thereof, consisting of the five members thereof appointed as above set forth. It shall have the power to adopt, alter, and use a corporate seal which shall be judicially noticed; to make contracts; to sue and be sued, to complain and defend in its own name in any court of competent jurisdiction, State, Federal, or municipal; to make, deliver, and receive deeds, leases, and other instruments and to take title to real and other property in its own name; to adopt, prescribe, amend, repeal, and enforce bylaws, rules, and regulations for the exercise of its powers under sections 5–701 to 5–719 or governing the manner in which its business may be conducted and the powers granted to it by sections 5–701 to 5–719 may be exercised and enjoyed, including the selection of its chairman and other officers, together with provisions for such committees and the functions thereof as it may deem necessary for facilitation of its work; to protect and enforce any right conferred upon it by sections 5–701 to 5–719, or otherwise acquired, including any lease, sale, or other agreement made by or with it; and in general to exercise all the powers necessary or proper to the performance of its duties and functions under sections 5–701 to 5–719. § 5–704. Power to acquire and assemble real property.

(a) Subject to and in accordance with the procedures, conditions, and other provisions of sections 5–701 to 5–719, the Agency is hereby granted the power to further the redevelopment of blighted territory in the District of Columbia and the prevention, reduction, or elimination of blighting factors or causes of blight and for that purpose to acquire and assemble real property by purchase, exchange, gift, dedication, or eminent domain, and including the power to rent, maintain, manage, operate, repair, clear, transfer, lease, and sell such real property, but excluding the power to build new structures thereon (other than the improvements mentioned in section 5–706 (i) or the power to enlarge, extend, or make major structural improvements of existing buildings).

(b) Condemnation proceedings for the acquisition of real property for said purposes shall be conducted in accordance with the procedural provisions of sections 16–619 to 16–644. The title to properties acquired under sections 5–701 to 5–719 shall be taken by and in the name of the Agency and proceedings for condemnation or other acquisition of property shall be brought by and in the name of the Agency. § 5–705. General and project area redevelopment plans.

(a) The Planning Commission is hereby directed to make and, from time to time, develop a comprehensive or general plan of the District of Columbia, including the appropriate maps, charts, tables, and descriptive, interpretative, and analytical matter, which plan is intended to serve as a general framework or guide of development within which the various project areas may be more precisely planned and calculated, and which comprehensive or general plan shall include at least a land-use plan which designates the proposed general distribution and general locations and extents of the uses of the land for housing, business, industry, recreation, education, public buildings, public reservations, and other general categories of public and private uses of the land.

(b) For the exercise of the powers granted to the Agency by sections 5–701 to 5–719 for the acquisition and disposition of real property for the redevelopment of a project area, the following steps and plans shall be requisite, namely:

(1) Adoption by the Planning Commission of the boundaries of the project area proposed by it, submission of such boundaries to the District Commissioners, and approval thereof by said Commissioners.

(2) Adoption by the Planning Commission and submission to, and, after a public hearing thereon, approval by the District Commissioners, of the redevelopment plan of the project area which shall contain a site and use plan for the redevelopment of the area, including the approximate locations and extents of the land uses proposed for and within the area, such as public buildings, streets, and other public works and utilities, housing, recreation, business, industry, schools, public and private open spaces, and other categories of public and private uses. Such plan shall also contain specifications of standards of population density and building intensity. Any such plan may also specify, by means of specification of maximum rentals or other basis, the amount or character or class of any low-rent housing for which the area or part thereof is proposed to be redeveloped.

(c) In relation to the location and extent of public works and utilities, public buildings, and other public uses in the general plan or in a project area plan, the Planning Commission is directed to confer with the Federal and District public officials, boards, authorities, and agencies under whose administrative jurisdictions such uses respectively fall. In the project area planning, the Planning Commission is directed to consult from time to time with the Agency, and the Agency shall be free at all times to submit to the Planning Commission suggestions regarding both the location and extent of project areas and the use and site plans of project areas.

(d) After a project area redevelopment plan shall have been adopted by the Planning Commission and approved by the District Commissioners, the Planning Commission shall forthwith certify said plan to the Agency, whereupon said Agency shall proceed to the exercise of the powers granted to it in sections 5–701 to 5–719 for the acquisition and assembly of the real property of the area. Following such certification, no new construction shall be authorized by the District Commissioners in such area, including substantial remodeling or conversion or rebuilding, enlargement or extension or major structural improvements on existing buildings, but not including ordinary maintenance or remodeling or changes necessary to continue the occupancy. (Aug. 2, 1946, 60 Stat. 794, ch. 736, § 6.)

§ 5–706. Transfer, lease, or sale of real property in project area for public and private uses.

(a) After the real property in the project area shall have been assembled by the Agency, the Agency shall have the power to transfer to and shall at a practicable time or times transfer by deeds to the United States or to the District of Columbia, or to the appropriate Federal or District public body, department, or agency, those pieces of real property which, in accordance with the approved project area redevelopment plan, are to be devoted to public uses (other than public housing) falling within the construction or administrative jurisdiction of Federal or District agencies, such as streets and other utilities and works, Federal and District public buildings, public recreational spaces, and schools. The Federal agencies and the public agencies of the District of Columbia are hereby empowered, respectively, to acquire real property from the Agency for the uses respectively specified in the project area plan and to pay for same out of their funds duly appropriated for such acquisition. Excepting for such property as may be transferred by dedication, gift, or exchange, the transferee agency shall pay to the Agency such sum as may be agreed upon or, in the absence of agreement, as may be fixed by the Chief Justice of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

(b) The Agency shall have the power to lease or sell the remainder of the project area as an entirety to a redevelopment company or to an individual or a partnership. Said remainder may include streets or parts thereof which in accordance with the plan are to be closed or vacated or other than publicly owned properties; and the Federal and District departments and agencies are empowered to transfer said spaces or properties to the Agency for such sums or other consideration as may be agreed upon.

(c) Any such lease or sale may be made without public bidding but only after a public hearing, after ten days' public notice, by the Agency upon the proposed lease or sale and the provisions thereof.

(d) The term of any such lease shall be fixed by the Agency and the instrument of lease may provide for renewals upon reappraisals and with rentals and other provisions adjusted to such reappraisals. Every such lease or sale shall provide that the lessee or purchaser shall carry out or cause to be carried out the approved project area redevelopment plan or approved modifications thereof and that no use shall be made of any land or real property included in the lease or sale nor any building or structure erected thereon which does not conform to such approved plan or approved modifications thereof. In the instrument, or instruments, of lease or sale, the Agency may include such other terms, conditions, and provisions as in its judgment will provide reasonable assurance of the priority of the obligations of any other obligations of the lessee or purchaser and the lease or sale and of conformance to the plan over also assurance of the financial and legal ability of the lessee or puchaser to carry out and conform to the plan and the terms and conditions of the lease or sale; also, such terms, conditions, and specifications concerning buildings, improvements, subleases, or tenancies, maintenance and management, and any other related matters as the Agency may reasonably impose or approve, including provisions whereby the obligations to carry out and conform to the project area plan shall run with the land. In the event that maximum rentals to be charged to tenants of housing be specified, provision may be made for periodic reconsideration of such rental bases, with a view to proposing modification of the project area plan with respect to such rentals.

(e) Until the Agency certifies that all building constructions and other physical improvements specified to be done and made by the purchaser of the area have been completed, the purchaser shall have no power to convey the area, or any part thereof, without the consent of the Agency; and no such consent shall be given unless the grantee or mortgagee of the purchaser obligates itself or himself by written instrument to the Agency to carry out that portion of the redevelopment plan which falls within the boundaries of the conveyed property, and also that the grantee, his or its heirs, representatives, successors, and assigns, shall have no right or power to convey, lease, or let the conveyed property or any part thereof or erect or use any building or structure erected thereon free from the obligation and requirement to conform to the approved project area redevelopment plan or approved modifications thereof.

(f) In lieu of the lease or sale of a project area as an entirety, the Agency shall have the power to lease or sell parts of such area separately to individuals, partnerships, or redevelopment companies. Any such sale or lease of a part or parts of a project area shall be fully subject to the provisions of subsections (c), (d), and (e) of this section.

(g) No lease or sale of any project area or portion thereof shall be made by the Agency to any public redevelopment company unless the terms of such lease or sale shall provide greater compensation to the Agency than any offer or combination of offers based on substantially the same area and substantially the same redevelopment plan which shall be received from any responsible private sources (eligible as purchasers or lessees under sections 5–701 to 5–719) within a reasonable announced period of time (not less than thirty days) after the public hearing on such proposed lease or sale. It is the intent of this provision that private enterprise as represented through a responsible private redevelopment company, individual, or partnership shall be given a preference over any public redevelopment company in such lease or sale provided such preference can be given, in the judgment of the Agency, consistently with the protection of the public interest and consistently with a purpose to resort to a public redevelopment company only in the event that private enterprise shall not reasonably be available for the development of the project area or the part thereof under consideration.

(h) The Agency may itself demolish any existing structure or clear the area or any part thereof, or may specify the demolition and clearance to be performed by a lessee or purchaser within a reasonable time after such lease or purchase. The Agency may specify a reasonable time schedule and reasonable conditions for the construction of buildings and other improvements by a lessee or purchaser: Provided, That any such time schedule or condition shall be specified prior to the offering of the area or part thereof for lease or sale, and shall be equally binding upon any purchaser or lessee, public or private. The cost of demolition or clearance made by the Agency pursuant to this subsection shall be treated as an item of cost of the acquisition of the area.

(i) In order to facilitate the lease or sale of a project area or, in the event that the lease or sale is of parts of an area, then to facilitate the leases or sales of such parts, the Agency shall have the power to include in the cost payable by it the cost of the construction of local streets and sidewalks within the area or of grading and other local public surface or subsurface facilities necessary for shaping the area as the site of the redevelopment of the area. The Agency may arrange with the appropriate Federal or District agencies for the reimbursement of such outlays from funds or assessments raised or levied for such purposes. § 5–707. Housing for displaced families.

(a) Prior to approval by the District Commissioners, pursuant to subparagraph (2) of section 5–705 (b), of any redevelopment plan, the District Commissioners shall satisfy themselves (and shall so state at the public hearing required by such subparagraph) that decent, safe, and sanitary housing, substantially equal in quantity to the number of substandard dwelling units to be removed or demolished within the project area, under the proposed redevelopment plan, are available or will be provided (by construction pursuant to the redevelopment plan, or otherwise) in localities, and at rents or prices, within the reach of the low-income families displaced or to be displaced (temporarily or permanently), pursuant to the redevelopment plan, from the project area.

(b) Families displaced by slum clearance or redevelopment under sections 5–701 to 5–719 shall be given preference as tenants to fill vacancies occurring in housing owned or operated within the District of Columbia by Federal or District of Columbia governmental agencies until appropriate housing is available to such families. § 5–708. Acquisition of property from prospective lessee or purchaser.

As an aid in the acquisition of the real property of a project area, the Agency may accept a fund or, at an agreed value, any parcel or parcels of property within such area, from any redevelopment company or partnership or individual, subject to a provision that in the event the supplier of any such fund or the conveyor of such property shall become the purchaser of the project area or any part or parts thereof such fund or the agreed value of such property shall be credited on the purchase price of such area or part thereof and if there be an excess above the cost of acquisition of the area such excess shall be returned, and that in the event that such supplier or conveyor does not become the purchaser of such area or any part thereof, the amount of the fund or the agreed value of such property (as the case may be) shall be paid to such supplier or conveyor. (Aug. 2, 1946, 60 Stat. 797, ch. 736, § 9.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

§ 5–709. Use-value appraisals.

After the Agency shall have assembled and acquired the real property [1] of a project area, it shall, as an aid to it in determining the rentals and other terms upon which it will lease or the price at which it will sell the area or parts thereof, place a use-value upon each piece or tract of land within the area which, in accordance with the plan, is to be used for private uses or for low-rent housing, such use-value to be based on the planned use; and, for the purpose of this use valuation, it shall cause a use-value appraisal to be made by two or more land-value experts employed by it for the purpose; but nothing contained in this section shall be construed as requiring the Agency to base its rentals or selling prices upon such appraisal.

The aggregate use value placed, for purposes of lease or sale, upon all land, within a particular project area, leased or sold by the Agency pursuant to sections 5–701 to 5–719 shall be not less than one-third of the aggregate cost to the Agency of acquiring all such land (excluding the cost of old buildings destroyed and the demolition and clearance thereof). (Aug. 2, 1946, 60 Stat. 797, ch. 736, § 10.)

(a) Previous to the execution and delivery by the Agency of a lease or conveyance to a redevelopment company or previous to the consent by the Agency to an assignment or conveyance by a lessee or purchaser to a redevelopment company, the articles or certificate of incorporation or association or charter or other basic instrument of such company shall contain provisions so defining, limiting, and regulating the exercise of the powers of the company that neither the company nor its stockholders, its officers, its directors, its members, its beneficiaries, its bondholders, or other creditors or other persons shall have any power to amend or to effect the amendment of the terms and conditions of the lease or the terms and conditions of the sale without the consent of the Agency or, in relation to the project area redevelopment plan, without the approval of any proposed modification in accordance with the provisions of section 5–711; and no action of stockholders, officers, directors, bondholders, creditors, partners or other persons, nor any reorganization, dissolution, receivership, consolidation, foreclosure, or any other change in the status or obligation of any redevelopment company, partnership, or individual in any litigation or proceeding in any Federal or other court shall effect any release or any impairment or modification of the lease or terms of sale or of the project area redevelopment plan unless such consent or approval be obtained.

(b) Redevelopment corporations may be organized under the provisions of chapter 2 of title 29; and said corporations shall have the power to be redevelopment companies under sections 5–701 to 5–719 and to acquire and hold real property for the purposes set forth in sections 5–701 to 5–719 and to exercise all other powers granted to redevelopment companies in sections 5–701 to 5–719 subject to the provisions, limitations, and obligations set forth in sections 5–701 to 5–719.

(c) A redevelopment company, individual, or partnership to which any project area or part thereof is leased or sold under sections 5–701 to 5–719 shall keep books of account of its operations of or transactions relating to such area or part thereof entirely separate and distinct from its or his accounts of and for any other project area or part thereof or any other real property or enterprise; and no lien or other interest shall be placed upon any real property in said area to secure any indebtedness or obligation of the redevelopment company, individual, or partnership incurred for or in relation to any property or enterprise outside of said area. An approved project area redevelopment plan may be modified at any time or times: Provided, That any such modification as it may affect an area or part thereof which has been sold or leased shall not become effective without the consent in writing of the purchaser or lessee thereof: Provided further, That such modification may be effected only through adoption by the Planning Commission and subsequent submission to and approval by the District Commissioners, as hereinafter provided. Before approval, the District Commissioners shall hold a public hearing on the proposed modification, notice of the time and place of which shall be given by mail sent at least ten days prior to the hearing to the then owners of the real properties in the project area and of the real properties immediately adjoining or across the street from the project area. The District Commissioners may refer back to the Planning Commission any project area redevelopment plan, project area

(a) There is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, whatever amounts are necessary to the Planning Commission, in addition to other funds which may be appropriated to it or private funds made available to it (the acceptance of which is hereby authorized), for the making or modification of a general or comprehensive plan and the making or modification of project area redevelopment plans and for surveys as authorized in sections 5–701 to 5–719, and other administrative expenses in connection therewith. The Commission is also authorized to receive any grants that the Congress may appropriate for said purposes to the various States and municipalities and the District of Columbia.

(b) There is further authorized to be appropriated out of any moneys in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $20,000,000, which sum shall be placed to the credit of a special trust fund to be established for the purposes hereinafter set out. There shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States and credited to said special trust fund all revenues, rentals, proceeds, and other funds received by the Agency. The said special trust fund is hereby made available to the Agency for the purpose of acquiring real property and performing any act required or authorized by sections 5–701 to 5–719. The Agency shall from time to time submit to the District Commissioners estimates of amounts for the reasonable and necessary expenses of the Agency, including personal services, and such amounts as may be approved by the District Commissioners shall be available from the said special trust fund for such expenses.

(c) As of the last day of the tenth fiscal year beginning after approval of sections 5–701 to 5–719, or as of such later date as may be fixed by the Congress, there shall be transferred and credited to miscellaneous receipts of the United States the balance in the said special trust fund after deducting (a) such amount as may be necessary for the completion of any approved project the acquisition of which has been begun and (b) such amount for operating expenses of the Agency for one year as may be approved by the District Commissioners. If the balance so transferred and credited be insufficient to reimburse the United States for appropriations made pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section, then an amount equal to 50 per centum of the deficit shall be payable to the United States from revenues of the District of Columbia in installments of equal amounts for each of ten years. The District Commissioners shall include in their annual estimates of appropriations items for the payment of such installments. The aforesaid deficit shall be determined by deducting from the total of said appropriations an amount equal to (a) the fund transferred and credited to miscellaneous receipts of the United States, (b) the cost to the Agency of the real property owned by it on said date, and (c) the reserve for completion of approved projects. All subsequent proceeds, revenues, and rentals from said real property shall be credited to the said special trust fund, to be disposed of as the Congress may direct. Any real property acquired by the Agency under the authority of sections 5–103 to 5–116 may be transferred or may be sold or leased by the Agency as provided in sections 5–701 to 5–719 for real property acquired for a project area redevelopment. § 5–717a. Acceptance of financial assistance authorized.

(a) As an alternative method of financing its authorized operations and functions under the provisions of this chapter (in addition to that provided in section 5–715), the Agency is hereby authorized and empowered to accept financial assistance from the Housing and Home Finance Administrator (hereafter in this section referred to as the Administrator), in the form of advances of funds, loans, and capital grants pursuant to title I of the Housing Act of 1949, to assist the Agency in acquiring real property for redevelopment of project areas and carrying out any functions authorized under this chapter for which advances of funds, loans, or capital grants may be made to a local public agency under title I of the Housing Act of 1949, and the Agency, subject to the approval of the District Commissioners and subject to such terms, covenants, and conditions as may be prescribed by the Administrator pursuant to title I of the Housing Act of 1949, may enter into such contracts and agreements as may be necessary, convenient, or desirable for such purposes.

(b) Subject to the approval of the District Commissioners, the Agency is authorized to accept from the Administrator advances of funds for surveys and plans in preparation of a project or projects authorized by this chapter which may be assisted under title I of the Housing Act of 1949, and the Agency is authorized to transfer to the Planning Commission so much of the funds so advanced as the District Commissioners shall determine to be necessary for the Planning Commission to carry out its functions under this chapter with respect to the project or projects to be assisted under title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

(c) The District Commissioners are authorized to include in their annual estimates of appropriations items for administrative expenses which, in addition to loan or other funds available therefor, are necessary for the Agency in carrying out its functions under this section.

(d) Notwithstanding the limitation contained in the last sentence of section 110 (d) or in any other provision of title I of the Housing Act of 1949, the Administrator is authorized to allow and credit to the Agency such local grants-in-aid as are approvable pursuant to said section 110 (d) with respect to any project or projects undertaken by the Agency under a contract or contracts entered into under this section and assisted under title I of the Housing Act of 1949. In the event such local grants-in-aid as are so allowed by the Administrator are not sufficient to meet the requirements for local grants-in-aid pursuant to title I of the Housing Act of 1949, the District Commissioners are hereby authorized to enter into agreements with the Agency, upon which agreements the Administrator may rely, to make cash payments of such deficiencies from funds of the District of Columbia. The District Commissioners shall include items for such cash payments in their annual estimates of appropriations, and there are hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the amounts necessary to provide for such cash payments. Any amounts due the Administrator pursuant to any such agreements shall be paid promptly from funds appropriated for such purpose.

(e) All receipts of the Agency in connection with any project or projects financed in accordance with this section with assistance under title I of the Housing Act of 1949, whether in the form of advances of funds, loans, or capital grants made by the Administrator to the Agency, or in the form of proceeds, rentals, or revenues derived by the Agency from any such project or projects, shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of a special fund or funds, and all moneys in such special fund or funds are hereby made available for carrying out the purposes of this chapter with respect to such project or projects, including the payment of any advances of funds or loans, together with interest thereon, made by the Administrator or by private sources to the Agency. Expenditures from such fund shall be audited, disbursed, and accounted for as are other funds of the District of Columbia.

(f) With respect to any project or projects undertaken by the Agency which are financed in accordance with this section with assistance under title I of the Housing Act of 1949—

(1) sections 5–702 (f), 5–702 (k), and 5–706 (g), and the last sentence of section 5–705 (b) (2) shall not be applicable to those pieces of real property which, in accordance with the approved project area redevelopment plan, are to be devoted to public housing to be undertaken under Public Law 307, Seventy-third Congress, approved June 12, 1934, as amended;

(2) the site and use plan for the redevelopment of the area, included in the redevelopment plan of the project area pursuant to section 5–705 (b) (2) shall include the approximate extent and location of any land within the area which is proposed to be used for public housing to be undertaken under Public Law 307, Seventy-third Congress, approved June 12, 1934, as amended;

(3) notwithstanding any other provisions of this chapter, the Agency, pursuant to section 5–706 (a), shall have power to transfer to and shall at a practicable time or times transfer by deeds to the National Capital Housing Authority those pieces of real property which, in accordance with the approved project area redevelopment plan, are to be devoted to public housing to be undertaken under Public Law 307, Seventy-third Congress, approved June 12, 1934, as amended, and, in accordance with the requirements of section 107 of the Housing Act of 1949, the National Capital Housing Authority shall pay for the same out of any of its funds available for such acquisition.

(g) It is the purpose and intent of this section to authorize the District Commissioners and the appropriate agencies operating within the District of Columbia to do any and all things necessary to secure financial aid under title I of the Housing Act of 1949. The District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency is hereby declared to be a local public agency for all of the purposes of title I of the Housing Act of 1949. As such a local public agency for all of the purposes of title I of the Housing Act of 1949, the Agency is also authorized to borrow money from the Administrator or from private sources as contemplated by title I of the Housing Act of 1949, to issue its obligations evidencing such loans, and to pledge as security for the payment of such loans, and the interest thereon, the property, income, revenues, and other assets acquired in connection with the project or projects financed in accordance with this section with assistance under title I of the Housing Act of 1949, but such obligations or such pledge shall not constitute a debt or obligation of either the United States or of the District of Columbia.

(h) Nothing contained in this section or in any other section of this chapter shall relieve the Administrator of his responsibilities and duties under section 105 (c) or any other section of the Housing Act of 1949. The Administrator shall not enter into any contract of financial assistance under title I of this chapter with respect to any project of the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency for which a budget estimate of appropriation was transmitted pursuant to law and for which no appropriation was made by the Congress. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Generally, health laws and ordinances are liberally construed, but when they appear to violate a constitutional right, courts must carefully weigh value of the end accomplished. When abatement of a nuisance is provided for only after notice and hearing, health officers cannot inspect, when challenged, without the ordinary preliminary steps for search in the absence of immediate danger or nuisance per se. Little v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 874, affirmed 178 F. 2d, 13, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 242, 70 S. Ct. 468, 339 U. S. 1, 94 L. Ed. 424).

POLICE POWER

It is within the police power of municipal corporations to control and regulate the manner of collection and disposition of garbage, refuse and filth, and in so doing they may provide for the inspection of premises as a health measure but must not unduly infringe upon individual rights in absence of immediate danger or nuisance per se. Little v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 874, affirmed 178 F. 2d 13, 70 S. Ct. 468, 339 U. S. 1, 94 L. Ed. 424).

SEARCH AND SEIZURE

When abatement of a nuisance is provided for only after notice and hearing, health officers, when challenged, cannot inspect without the ordinary preliminary step for search in the absence of immediate danger or nuisance per se. Little v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 874, affirmed 178 F. 2d 13, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 242, 70 S. Ct. 468, 339 U. S. 1, 94 L. Ed. 424).

SUMMARY ACTION

Unless the condition which is the object of inspection amounts to an immediate danger or a dangerous nuisance per se, municipal authorities would be acting beyond their power in taking any summary action. Little v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 874, affirmed 178 F. 2d 13, 70 S. Ct. 468, 339 U. S. 1, 94 L. Ed. 424).

The director of public health is authorized to provide and furnish proper containers for the reception, burial, and identification of the ashes of all human bodies of indigent persons that are cremated at the public crematorium, which ashes remain unclaimed after twelve months from date of such cremation. (May 21, 1928, 45 Stat. 669, ch. 659; July 3, 1930, 46 Stat. 975, ch. 848; Aug. 1, 1950, 64 Stat. 393, ch. 513, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

§ 6–116 [20: 996]. Dairy inspectors may act as inspectors of live stock.

Any inspector of dairies and dairy farms may act as inspector of livestock when directed by the director of public health. (Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 993, ch. 192; Aug. 1, 1950, 64 Stat. 393, ch. 513, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

See note following § 6–101.

§ 6–117 [20: 997]. Tuberculosis Sanatoria under direction of Health Department.

The following hospital and sanatoria, on and after July 1, 1937, shall be under the direction and control of the health department of the District of Columbia and subject to the supervision of the Board of Commissioners: Tuberculosis Sanatoria. (June 29, 1937, 50 Stat. 376, ch. 403, § 1.)

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized and empowered to promulgate and enforce all such reasonable rules and regulations as they may deem necessary to prevent and control the spread of communicable diseases in the District of Columbia, including the authority and power to provide for the isolation, quarantine, and restriction of the movements of persons affected by or believed, upon probable cause, to be affected by communicable disease and of persons who are or are believed, upon probable cause, to be carriers of communicable disease. NOTES TO DECISIONS

BURDEN OF PROOF

Where a person is charged with being one suspected of being infected with a communicable disease and refusing to submit to an examination and accuracy of charged or reasonableness of suspicion is put in issue, except in the case of a common prostitute, the burden is upon health officer and not upon person suspected. Huffman v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 558). See also District of Columbia v. Huffman (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 502).

CONSTITUTIONALITY

This section authorizing commissioners of District of Columbia to promulgate and enforce reasonable rules and regulations to prevent and control spread of communicable and preventable disease is not objectionable as containing language too broad in its delegation of power to commissioners. Huffman v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 558). See also District of Columbia v. Huffman (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 502).

Legislation designed to prevent the spread of communicable disease will be upheld so long as it is not oppressive, arbitrary, or unreasonable. Huffman v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 558). See also District of Columbia v. Huffman (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 502).

EXAMINATION OF PERSONS

Where defendant's attorney offered to prove to health officer that his client was free from all infection with communicable disease and offered to submit client for additional examination by any doctor in city selected at random by health department, there was no basis for a reasonable suspicion that defendant was infected so as to sustain a charge that defendant, a person suspected of being infected with a communicable disease, refused to submit to an examination. Huffman v. District of Columbia (D. C. Munn. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 558). See also District of Columbia v. Huffman (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 502).

Evidence which disclosed that health department physician had no reasonable suspicion that defendant was infected with venereal disease was insufficient to sustain conviction of charge that defendant was a person suspected by health department of being infected and refused to submit to an examination. Huffman v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 558). See also District of Columbia v. Huffman (D. C. Mun App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 502).

POLICE POWER

This section authorizing commissioners of District of Columbia to promulgate and enforce reasonable rules and regulations to prevent and control spread of communicable and preventable diseases constitutes a legitimate exercise of the police power. Huffman v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 558). See also District of Columbia v. Huffman (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 502).

§ 6–119. "Communicable disease" defined.

The words "communicable disease" when hereinafter used shall mean such communicable diseases as the Commissioners by regulation shall denominate as such. (Aug. 11, 1939, 53 Stat. 1408, ch. 691, § 2; Aug. 8, 1946, 60 Stat. 919, ch. 871, § 2.)

AMENDMENTS

Sec. 2 of the act of Aug. 8, 1946, cited to text, struck out former § 6–119 and "in lieu thereof and by way of addition" substituted the language of the present section and sections 6–119a to 6–119k.

The catchline has been reworded.

§ 6–119a. Removal of persons believed to be carriers.

Whenever the director of public health has probable cause to believe that any person is affected with any communicable disease or is a carrier of communicable disease and that the continuance of such person in the place where he may be is likely to be dangerous to the lives or health of other persons, or that by reason of the noncooperation or carelessness of such person the public health is likely to be endangered, the director of public health may by written order direct the removal of any designated officer or employee of the Health Department or by any member of the Metropolitan Police force of such person to and the detention of such person in any place or institution in the District of Columbia designated by the director of public health, or any institution located without the District of Columbia which may be designated by the director of public health and which is under the supervision of the government of the District of Columbia or any agency thereof. Such officer, employee, or member so designated in such order shall take such person into his custody and shall remove such person to such place or institution as may be designated in such order. Such officer, employee, or member shall immediately make known to such person the contents of such order, and also shall deliver to such person a true copy of such order. (Aug. 11, 1939, 53 Stat. 1408, ch. 691, § 2, as amended and renumbered Aug. 8, 1946, 60 Stat. 919, ch. 871, § 2; Aug. 1, 1950, 64 Stat. 393, ch. 513, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

§ 6–119b. Authority for detention—Expiration of order—Hearing—Minors.

A copy of the order provided for in section 6–119a hereof shall be delivered to the person in charge of such place or institution to which the person taken into custody may be removed and shall constitute the authority for the detention of such person in such place or institution until such order expires or until such person is discharged in the manner set forth in this section or section 6–119c. Such order shall expire forty-eight hours (exclusive of Sundays and holidays) after such officer, employee, or member shall take into his custody such person as provided in section 6–119a, unless it shall be continued in force and effect by a judge of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia, or unless such detained person shall stipulate in writing that the order be continued in force and effect. Such order shall be continued in force and effect if it shall appear to said judge by affidavit that the probable cause, required by section 6–119a, exists. If the judge continue in force and effect the order of the director of public health, the judge at that time shall set a date for a hearing upon the question of whether the person detained is at the time of such hearing affected with any communicable disease or is a carrier of communicable disease and, if so affected, upon the further question whether his release would be likely to endanger the lives or health of any other person. If such person be not sooner discharged such hearing shall be had within ten days of the date of the order of the court continuing in force and effect the order of the director of public health unless such hearing be continued by the court, or unless the detained person shall, in writing, waive such hearing, which waiver shall be filed with the court. Such hearing shall be in or out of the presence of the detained person, in the discretion of the court. If, after such hearing, the court shall find that the detained person is not affected with any communicable disease and is not a carrier of communicable disease, or that the discharge of such person, even though affected with, or a carrier of, a communicable disease is not likely to endanger the lives or health of any other person the court shall order such detained person to be discharged, otherwise the court shall continue in force and effect the order of the director of public health until such person be discharged in the manner set forth in section 6–119c. If a minor is detained pursuant to this section or section 6–119e hereof, or is found guilty and sentence is suspended as provided in section 6–119g hereof, and such minor is in need of treatment for the communicable disease with which he is affected or of which he is a carrier, the court is empowered to authorize the director of public health to administer such treatment or cause the same to be administered. No person under eighteen years of age detained under sections 6–119a, 6–119b, 6–119c or 6–119e, shall be detained in a room in which a person over that age is so detained. (Aug. 11, 1939, 53 Stat. 1408, ch. 591, § 2, as amended and renumbered Aug. 8, 1946, 60 Stat. 919, ch. 871, § 2; Aug. 1, 1950, 64 Stat. 393, ch. 513, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

See note following §§ 6–101 and 6–119.

§ 6–119c. Examination and diagnosis—Discharge or detention for quarantine — Application for discharge—Hearing.

It shall be the duty of the director of public health to make or cause to be made by a physician such examination or examinations of such person as may be necessary to determine the existence or nonexistence of such communicable disease in such person or whether such person is a carrier of communicable disease. The diagnosis resulting from such examination or examinations shall be reduced to writing and signed by such examining physician within ten days after the removal of such person to such place or institution and a copy thereof shall be filed in the office of the person in charge of such place or institution and a copy in the office of the director of public health. If such diagnosis does not disclose that such person is affected with such communicable disease or that such person is a carrier of communicable disease, such person shall be discharged from such place or institution forthwith. If the diagnosis does disclose that such person is affected with such communicable disease or that such person is a carrier of communicable disease, the person in charge of the place or institution to which the infected person has been removed shall, subject to the provisions of section 6–119b, detain such person for such reasonable time as may be fixed by regulation under the authority of sections 6–118, 6–119 to 6–119k as is deemed necessary in the interest of public health and safety for the isolation, quarantine, and restriction of movement of persons affected by the particular communicable disease or of persons found to be carriers of the particular communicable disease, unless sooner discharged by the director of public health or the municipal court. A person so detained, however, may apply at any time to the person in charge of such place or institution for his discharge, and the person in charge of such place or institution shall deliver the application for discharge to the director of public health, who shall give to such person an opportunity to be heard before the director of public health. If after hearing held by the director of public health, the director of public health be of the opinion that such person is not affected with such communicable disease and that such person is not a carrier of communicable disease, then such person shall be discharged. If denied his discharge such detained person may apply to the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia for such discharge and the hearing on such application shall be in or out of the presence of the detained person, in the discretion of the court. Only such persons as have a direct interest in the case and their representatives shall be admitted to any hearing held pursuant to this section or section 6–119b: Provided, That if the detained person shall request a public hearing then the general public shall be admitted thereto. (Aug. 11, 1939, 53 Stat. 1408, ch. 691, § 2, as amended and renumbered Aug. 8, 1946, 60 Stat. 920, ch. 871, § 2; Aug. 1, 1950, 64 Stat. 393, ch. 513, § 1.)

§ 6–119d. Unlawful leave.

It shall be unlawful for a person detained in a place or institution pursuant to an order of the director of public health to leave said place or institution unless discharged in the manner provided in sections 6–119b or 6–119c. (Aug. 11, 1939, 53 Stat. 1408, ch. 691, § 2, as amended and renumbered Aug. 8, 1946, 60 Stat. 921, ch. 871, § 2; Aug. 1, 1950, 64 Stat. 393, ch. 513, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTITUTIONALITY

Generally, health laws and ordinances are liberally construed but when they appear to violate a constitutional right, court must carefully weigh value of the end accomplished. When abatement of a nuisance is provided for only after notice and hearing, health officers cannot inspect, when challenged, without the ordinary preliminary step for search in the absence of immediate danger or nuisance per se. Little v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 874, affirmed 178 F. 2d 13, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 242, 70 S. Ct. 468, 339 U. S. 1, 94 L. Ed. 424).

POLICE POWER

It is within the police power of municipal corporations to control and regulate the manner of collection and disposition of garbage, refuse and filth, and in so doing, they may provide for the inspection of premises as a health measure but must not unduly infringe upon individual rights, in absence of immediate danger or nuisance per se. Little v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 874, affirmed 178 F. 2d 13, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 242, 70 S. Ct. 468, 339 U. S. 1, 94 L. Ed. 424).

SUMMARY ACTION

Unless the condition which is the object of inspection amounts to an immediate danger or a dangerous nuisance per se, municipal authorities would be acting beyond their power in taking any summary action. Little v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 874, affirmed 178 F. 2d 13, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 242, 70 S. Ct. 468, 339 U. S. 1, 94 L. Ed. 424).

§ 6–502 [20: 1292]. Commissioners may contract for collection and disposal of garbage and refuse.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized to enter into contract or contracts for the collection and disposal of garbage, miscellaneous refuse, ashes, night soil, and dead animals, for periods not exceeding five years, subject to annual appropriations by Congress, under such conditions and specifications as they may prescribe. Night soil may be collected and disposed of by any process satisfactory to the commissioners. (May 18, 1910, 36 Stat. 389, ch. 248; Mar. 3, 1915, 38 Stat. 904, ch. 80.)

(May 6, 1918, 40 Stat. 541, ch. 67, § 6.)

§ 6–504 [20: 1294]. Collection and disposal of refuse a municipal function—Facilities to be purchased or leased—Sale of products—Employees to accept no gratuities—Penalty.

The commissioners are authorized, if in their opinion such action shall be to the best interests of the District of Columbia, after July 11, 1919, to conduct any or all of the operations involved in the collection and disposal of city refuse of every kind as municipal functions, and for that purpose to purchase or lease the necessary plants, buildings, and land, to purchase or hire horses and horse-drawn vehicles, passenger-carrying and other motor-propelled vehicles, equipment, and machinery, and to employ expert and other personal services, and labor, and to pay traveling, maintenance, incidental, and contingent expenses: Provided, That products arising from such operations conducted as authorized herein may be sold and the proceeds arising therefrom shall be paid for each fiscal year into the treasury of the United States to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia in the same proportions as appropriations for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for such fiscal year are paid from the treasury of the United States and the revenues of the District of Columbia: Provided further, That any or all operations herein authorized to be conducted as municipal functions may be put into effect as such upon the expiration of any of the contracts existing July 11, 1919, for the collection and disposal of city refuse or upon the failure of any of the contractors existing July 11, 1919 to properly perform the work covered by their contracts existing July 11, 1919: Provided further, That it shall be unlawful for any employee of the District of Columbia engaged in the removal of garbage, ashes, miscellaneous refuse, dead animals, or night soil, or for any employee of a contractor doing such work for the District of Columbia, to accept any gift, except from his employer, in money or any other thing of value for any service performed in connection with the removal of city refuse as hereinbefore described; and it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, except such employer, to pay or offer to pay, any money or to make any gift to any such employee for such service; that any person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction, be fined in a sum of not less than $5 nor more than $40 for each such offense. (July 11, 1919, 41 Stat. 39, ch. 6; Feb. 22, 1921, 41 Stat. 1144, ch. 70, § 7.)

AMENDMENT

NOTES TO DECISIONS

EVIDENCE, ADMISSIBILITY

In prosecution for violating municipal blackout regulations when it was not sought to charge principal with actions of agent admitting testimony of defendant's admission that he was person in charge of property where violation occurred was not error. Dibble v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 825).

EVIDENCE, SUFFICIENCY

Evidence that defendant was the manager and person in charge of premises where light was displayed in violation of municipal blackout regulations, was sufficient to sustain conviction for violating regulations although there was evidence that engineers were in charge of lighting arrangements. Dibble v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 825).

In prosecution for violating blackout regulations, evidence established that plaintiff failed to extinguish the offending light as promptly as possible or within 15 minutes as required by ordinance, and failed to establish any excuse for such violation. Dibble v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 825).

JUDICIAL NOTICE

In prosecution for violating ordinance regulating blackouts, the ordinance was not required to be introduced in evidence, since the municipal court would take notice of the ordinance. Dibble v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 825).

§ 6–1012. Same—Damage to other persons and property.

Neither the District of Columbia nor any officer, agent, employee, or regularly appointed volunteer worker in the service of said District, nor any individual, receiver, firm, partnership, corporation, association, or trustee, or any of the agents thereof, in good faith and without willful or gross negligence carrying out, complying with, enforcing or attempting to carry out, comply with, or enforce this chapter or any order, rule, or regulation issued or promulgated pursuant to this chapter, shall be liable for any damage sustained to any persons or property as the result of such activity. (Dec. 26, 1941, ch. 625, § 12, as added Aug. 6, 1942, 56 Stat. 741, ch. 548, § 2.)

§ 6–1013. Extent of power and duties of Commissioners.

The power and duties conferred upon the Commissioners of the District of Columbia by this chapter or any other Act shall not affect, impair, limit, or interfere with the powers of the military or naval authorities with respect to the control and disposition of military or naval personnel or of civilians, or with respect to any other military or naval activity or duty. (Dec. 26, 1941, ch. 625, § 13, as added Aug. 6, 1942, 56 Stat. 741, ch. 548, § 2.)

(Dec. 26, 1941, ch. 625, § 14, as added July 13, 1943, 57 Stat. 560, ch. 234.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

NATURE OF POWERS

District of Columbia is a municipal corporation and is responsible for the negligence of its officers having the care of streets, avenues, and sidewalks, as resulted in personal injuries to individuals. District of Columbia v. Woodbury (136 U. S. 450, 34 L. Ed. 472, 10 Sup. Ct. 990).

Under this section, the powers of the Board of Public Works have been vested in the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. Bauman v. Ross (167 U. S. 548, 42 L. Ed. 270, 17 Sup. Ct. 966).

The Commissioners have the right to make reasonable regulations for the use of driveways across sidewalks, but the right to regulate is one thing, and prohibition is another. The right of access is a property right, though subject to regulation, which can not be taken away without just compensation. Brownlow v. O'Donoghue (51 App. D. C. 114, 276 Fed. 636).

§ 7–103 [12: 2a]. Abutment of Highway Bridge under control of Commissioners.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DUTIES OF COMMISSIONERS

Under this act the Commissioners were required to prepare a plan for a permanent system of highways throughout the District, exclusive of the cities of Washington and Georgetown, and to cause to be prepared a map of the same showing the boundaries, and the dimensions of the streets, avenues, and roads, established by them with authority to name all streets, avenues, alleys, and reservations laid out or adopted under the provisions of the act. Rudolph v. Warwick (56 App. D. C. 128, 10 Fed. (2d) 993).

EXISTING PLANS

In an act authorizing Commissioners of District to prepare new highway plans, they were not limited to previous plans subject to above section. Wilkinson v. Dougherty (58 App. D. C. 81, 24 Fed. (2d) 1007).

§ 7–109 [12: 8]. Permanent highway—Plans to be prepared in sections—Conformity to subdivisions—Plans to be submitted to National Capital Park and Planning Commission—Recordation—Landowners to submit plat of proposed highways.

The said plans shall be prepared from time to time in sections, each of which shall cover such an area as the commissioners may deem advisable to include therein, and it shall be the duty of the commissioners in preparing such plan by sections, as far as may be practicable, to select first such areas as are covered by existing suburban subdivisions not in conformity with the general plan of the city of Washington. The commissioners in making such plans shall adopt and conform to any then existing subdivisions which shall have been made in compliance with the provisions of the Act of Congress approved August 27, 1888, entitled "An act to regulate the subdivision of land within the District of Columbia" (25 Stat. 451), or which shall, in the opinion of the commissioners, conform to the general plan of the city of Washington: Provided, however, That no place or street extending no farther than from one principal street to another, which has been opened under the direction of the commissioners, or in conformity with any subdivision approved by them prior to August 27, 1888, and recorded, and which was on March 2, 1893, paved with asphalt or other sheet pavement, shall be altered, affected, or interfered with by any plan adopted or anything done under or by virtue of sections 7–108 to 7–112. Whenever the plan of any such section shall have been adopted by the commissioners they shall cause a map of the same to be made showing the boundaries and dimensions of and number of square feet in the streets, avenues, and roads established by them therein; the boundaries and dimensions of and number of square feet in each, if any, of the then existing highways in the area covered by such map, and the boundaries and dimensions of and number of square feet in each lot of any then existing subdivision owned by private persons; and containing such explanations as shall be necessary to a complete understanding of such map. In making such maps the commissioners are further authorized to lay out at the intersections of the principal avenues and streets thereof circles or other reservations corresponding in number and dimensions with those existing on March 2, 1893, at such intersections in the city of Washington. A copy of such map, duly certified by the commissioners, shall be delivered to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, who shall make such alterations, if any, therein, as it shall deem advisable, keeping in view the intention and provisions of sections 7–108 to 7–112, and the necessity of harmonizing as far as possible the public convenience with economy of expenditure; and if such commission shall see fit, they may cause to be made a new map in place of the one submitted to them. When such commission, or a majority thereof, shall have come to a final determination in the matter, they shall approve in writing the map which they shall adopt, and shall deliver it to said commissioners of the District of Columbia, and the same shall at once be filed and recorded in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia, and after any such map shall have been so recorded no further subdivision of any land included therein shall be admitted to record in the office of the surveyor of said District, or in the office of the recorder of deeds thereof, unless the same be first approved by the commissioners and be in conformity to such map. Nor shall it be lawful when any such map shall have been so recorded for the commissioners of the District of Columbia, or any other officer or person representing the United States or the District of Columbia, to thereafter improve, repair, or assume any responsibility in regard to any abandoned highway within the area covered by such map, or to accept, improve, repair, or assume any responsibility in regard to any highway that any owner of land in such area shall thereafter attempt to lay out or establish, unless such landowner shall first have submitted to the commissioners a plat of such proposed highway and the commissioners shall have found the same to be in conformity to such map, and shall have approved such plat and caused it to be recorded in the office of said surveyor. (Mar. 2, 1893, 27 Stat. 532, ch. 197, § 2; Apr. 30, 1926, 44 Stat. 374, ch. 198.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section is largely temporary and executed.

AMENDMENT

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission was created by act of April 30, 1926, cited to the text. The act of 1893 originally provided for a commission "composed of the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Interior, and the Chief of Engineers."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

FURTHER SUBDIVISION

It was clearly within the authority of Congress to provide that after the recording of the map under this section, no further subdivision not in accordance with the map should be admitted of record, and such provision did not constitute the taking of land. Bauman v. Ross (167 U. S. 548, 42 L. Ed. 270, 17 Sup. Ct. 966).

PROPERTY OWNER'S RIGHTS

Provision in this section forbidding commissioners to improve, repair, or assume any responsibility in regard to highways not in conformity with map filed under this section did not affect the rights of owners of the land. Bauman v. Ross (167 U. S. 548, 42 L. Ed. 270, 17 Sup. Ct. 966).

§ 7–110 [12: 9]. Adoption of subdivision by reference in will or deed.

When any such map shall have been recorded as aforesaid in the office of the surveyor of the District it shall be lawful for the owner of any land included within such map to adopt the subdivision thereby made by a reference thereto and to this section in any deed or will which he shall thereafter make, and when any deed or will containing any such reference shall have been made and recorded in the proper office it shall have the same effect as though the grantor or grantors in such deed or the maker of such will had made such subdivision and recorded the same in compliance with law. (Mar. 2, 1893, 27 Stat. 533, ch. 197, § 3.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

REFERENCE IN DEED OR WILL

Provision of this section giving to any deed or will duly recorded, which referred to subdivision made by map filed under § 7–109, the same effect as if subdivision had been made and recorded by the testator or grantor, benefited rather than injured the land. Bauman v. Ross (167 U. S. 548, 42 L. Ed. 270, 17 Sup. Ct. 966).

§ 7–111 [12: 10]. Entry upon property authorized for purposes of survey.

For the purpose of making surveys for such plans and maps the commissioners and their agents and employees necessarily engaged in making such surveys are authorized to enter upon any lands through or on which any projected highway or reservation may run or lie. (Mar. 2, 1893, 27 Stat. 534, ch. 197, § 4.)

§ 7–112 [12: 11]. Commissioners authorized to name streets.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized to name all streets, avenues, alleys, and reservations laid out or adopted under the provisions of sections 7–108 to 7–112. (Mar. 2, 1893, 27 Stat. 534, ch. 197, § 5.)

In order to provide grounds for educational, religious, or similar institutions, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be and they are hereby, authorized to abandon or readjust streets or proposed streets affecting localities that may be or that have been purchased for such purposes: Provided, That under the authority hereby conferred no changes shall be made in existing subdivisions or in avenues or in important lines of travel.

The plat of such readjustment, after being duly certified by said commissioners, shall be forwarded to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and when approved by said commission or a majority thereof the change shall be recorded in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia and become a part of the permanent system of highways, and take the place of any part inconsistent therewith. The owner or owners of land over or upon which any highway or reservation shall be projected upon any map filed under sections 7–108 to 7–112 shall have the free right to the use and enjoyment of the same for building or any other lawful purpose, and the free right to transfer the title thereof, until proceedings looking to the condemnation of such land shall have been authorized and actually begun. And as to any highway or part of highway which by any such map is to be abandoned neither the right of those occupying or owning land abutting thereon or adjacent thereto, nor the right of the public to use such highway or part of highway, shall be affected by the filing of such map until condemnation proceedings looking to the ascertainment of the damages resulting from such proposed abandonment shall have been authorized and actually begun; nor shall the obligation of the municipal authorities to keep the same in repair be affected until they are rendered useless by the opening and improvement of new highways, to be evidenced by public notice by the commissioners of the District of Columbia. (June 28, 1898, 30 Stat. 520, ch. 519, § 5.)

§ 7–115 [12: 14]. Public notice to owners of plan—Opportunity to be heard.

§ 7–116 [12: 15]. Powers may be exercised through Beatty and Hawkins's addition to Georgetown.

All the powers given to the commissioners and others under sections 7–108 to 7–112 shall apply to and be capable of being exercised upon and through Beatty and Hawkins's addition to Georgetown, where it may be necessary to connect streets in parts of the District lying outside of cities, or to connect any street in the city with streets in the District of Columbia. (Apr. 12, 1904, 33 Stat. 587, Res. No. 21.)

§ 7–117 [12: 16]. Acceptance of dedicated streets—Building restrictions—Right-of-way for sewers and water-mains.

In order to facilitate the extension of streets and encourage the donation of land in accordance with the plans for the permanent system of highways, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized, whenever in their judgment it may seem proper, to accept the dedication of streets shown on said plans, and record same, under the following conditions, namely: Streets which are shown as ninety feet in width on said plans may be accepted with a width of not less than sixty feet: Provided, That the parties dedicating same agree to establish building restriction lines to agree with the street lines as shown on said plans; and streets shown on said plans as one hundred and twenty feet or more in width may be accepted with a width of not less than ninety feet: Provided, That the parties dedicating same agree to establish building restriction lines to agree with the street lines as shown on said plans: And provided further, That the space between the street lines, as established under the terms hereof, and the building restriction lines shall be considered as private property set aside and to be used for parking purposes: But provided further, That the parties so dedicating shall agree that said parking shall be subject to the regulations of said commissioners in regard to height of parking and the projection of buildings beyond the building line, and that the District of Columbia shall have a right of way through said parking for sewers and water-mains free of cost, and to lay thereon sidewalks, if, in the judgment of said commissioners, the space between street lines is not sufficient to admit the construction of such sidewalks within said lines. NOTES TO DECISIONS

EMINENT DOMAIN

Commissioners have no authority to widen street 60 feet in width to 120 feet since 15 foot space of the street though dedicated to certain purposes, does not constitute a part of the street for all purposes. Dougherty v. Galliher, (58 App. D. C. 166, 26 Fed. (2d) 538).

It is not error to allow credit in assessment for benefit of land previously dedicated for street purposes, as well as value of land condemned. Nealy v. Hazen (63 App. D. C. 239, 71 Fed. (2d) 692).

WIDENING OF STREETS

Where a street is 60 feet wide with a mere building restriction on an additional 15 feet, the widening of the street by 45 feet is not authorized, since such widening will not make a 120-foot street. Dougherty v. Galliher (58 App. D. C. 166, 26 Fed. (2d) 538).

§ 7–118 [12: 17]. Streets abandoned under highway plan to revert to abutting owners.

Upon the abandonment of any street, avenue, road, or highway, or part thereof, under the provisions of sections 7–108 to 7–112, the title to the land contained in such abandoned portion shall revert to the owners of the land abutting thereon. (Feb. 16, 1904, 33 Stat. 14, ch. 159, § 2.)

EXTENSION OF STREET AT ANGLE

Widening of Street—Right to Object.—Commissioners were authorized to institute a proceeding for the extension of street at an angle. Briggs v. Brownlow (49 App. D. C. 345, 265 Fed. 985).

When widening of street benefits properties, the owners of same are not as matter of right entitled to challenge the regularity of the proceedings unless it clearly appears that such owners were in fact prejudiced or defrauded. Nealy v. Hazen (63 App. D. C. 239, 71 Fed. (2d) 692).

Question for consideration is whether or not, by the widening of the street, the properties of the respective appellants were benefited to the amount assessed against them; hence they are not in position to challenge the regularity or irregularity of the condemnation proceedings, unless it clearly appears that it operated to their prejudice, or fraud was practiced in making the awards. Nealy v. Hazen (63 App. D. C. 239, 71 Fed. (2d) 692).

Whenever land is needed for the opening, extension, widening, or straightening of any street, avenue, road, or highway in the District of Columbia, authorized by Congress, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia may institute, in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, sitting as a District Court, by petition, a proceeding in rem for the condemnation of the land needed. (Apr. 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 151, ch. 2070, § 491a.)

REVIEW, LOCAL LAWS OF DISTRICT

the same. The said court shall appoint a guardian ad litem for any person interested in the proceedings who may be under disability. (Apr. 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 151, ch. 2070, § 491c; Feb. 28, 1916, 39 Stat. 21, ch. 37.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

"It is clear that the statute requires both general notice by publication and personal service of the notice by the marshal upon such owners of land to be condemned as can be found within the District of Columbia." Edwards v. Brownlow (50 App. D. C. 331, 271 Fed. 797), affd. (236 U. S. 692, 59 L. Ed. 792, 35 Sup. Ct. 477); National Savings & Trust Co. v. Reichelderfer (61 App. D. C. 38, 57 Fed. (2d) 404).

APPEARANCE BY COUNSEL

In condemnation proceedings, the provision of the statute as to notice by publication does not apply to one who has actual notice and appeared, represented by counsel. Cafritz v. Hazen (66 App. D. C. 94, 85 Fed. (2d) 260). See Mitchell v. Reichelderfer (61 App. D. C. 50, 57 Fed. (2d) 416).

COMPUTATION OF TIME

The statute means that notice shall be given not less than 20 days before the time set, and does not mean on 20 distinct days before that time. Newman v. Lynchburg (236 U. S. 692, 59 L. Ed. 792, 35 Sup. Ct. 477).

CONSTRUCTION

Statutes authorizing the taking of property for public use must be strictly construed. Fay v. Macfarland (32 App. D. C. 295); Edwards v. Brownlow (50 App. D. C. 331, 271 Fed. 797).

DUE PROCESS

It must be affirmatively shown that all provisions of the statutes that apply to the condemnation of lands have been substantially complied with, otherwise the whole proceeding would be void and without effect. Brown v. Macfarland (19 App. D. C. 525).

Every step to be taken by public officials in condemning private property must be literally followed. Lynchburg Inv. Corp. v. Rudolph (40 App. D. C. 129).

The failure to give appellant notice in fact amounts to a taking of property without due process of law. Wilkinson v. Dougherty (58 App. D. C. 81, 24 Fed. (2d) 1007).

NOTICE JURISDICTIONAL

Entry of the judgment as to appellant's property, being without notice of any kind or opportunity on his part to object, was a nullity, and the requirement of the statute as to notice being mandatory, a failure to comply is jurisdictional. Smith v. Gotwals (61 App. D. C. 304, 62 Fed. (2d) 466).

PARTICIPATION IN PROCEEDING

Where owners of land involved in condemnation proceeding received notice contemplated by law and had full opportunity to make such showing as was appropriate to their right, their contention that they had been denied a hearing, and opportunity to cross-examine witnesses and generally to participate in condemnation proceeding was not sustained. Brown v. District of Columbia, 1944 (143 F. 2d 374, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 148).

§ 7–205 [25: 55]. Jury—Drawing—Oath.

After the return of the marshal and the filing of proof of publication of the notice provided for in section 7–204 said court shall order the jury commission to draw from the special box the names of as many persons as the court may direct, and from among the persons so drawn the court shall appoint a jury of five capable and disinterested persons, to which jury the court shall administer an oath or affirmation that they are not interested in any manner in the land to be condemned, and are not related to the parties interested therein, and that they will, without favor or partiality, and to the best of their judgment, ascertain the damages each owner of land to be taken may sustain by reason of the opening, extension, widening, or straightening of said street, avenue, road, or highway, and the condemnation of the land needed for the purpose thereof, and to assess the benefits resulting therefrom as hereinafter provided. (Apr. 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 152, ch. 2070, § 491d; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 566, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENT

Act of April 19, 1920, cited to the text, inserted the word "next" before "preceding section which has been translated to read" "section 7–204." The provision as to the jury to be chosen originally read as follows: "Five experienced, judicious, disinterested men, who shall be freeholders within the District of Columbia, not related to any person interested in the proceeding and not in the service or employment of the District of Columbia or of the United States, to be summoned by said marshal."

§ 7–206 [25: 56]. Objection to jurors—Hearings—Verdict.

The court, before accepting the jury, shall hear any objections that may be made to any member thereof, and shall have full power and authority to pass upon any such objections, and to excuse any juror or cause any vacancy in the jury, when impaneled, to be filled; and after the jury shall have been organized and shall have viewed and examined the land and premises affected by the condemnation proceeding they shall proceed, in the presence of the court, to hear and receive such evidence as may be offered or submitted on behalf of the District of Columbia and by any person or persons having any interest in the proceeding. When the hearing is concluded, the jury, or a majority of them, shall return to the court, in writing, their verdict, setting forth the amount found to be due and awarded to the owners of the land to be condemned as damages by reason of said opening, extension, widening, or straightening of said street, avenue, road, or highway, under the provisions hereof, and the lots, pieces, or parcels of land benefited by said opening, extension, widening, or straightening, and the amounts of the assessments for the benefits against the same. NOTES TO DECISIONS

NUMBER OF VIEWS BY JURY

This section authorized the jury to view and examine the "land and premises affected by the condemnation proceedings." It was not error to permit jury to have second view after hearing the evidence. Briggs v. Brownlow (49 App. D. C. 345, 265 Fed. 985).

§ 7–207 [25: 57]. Condemnation of part of plot.

If a part only of any lot, piece, or parcel of ground is to be condemned, the jury, in determining its value, shall not take into consideration any benefits that may accrue to the remainder thereof from said opening, extension, widening, or straightening of said street, avenue, road, or highway, but such benefits shall be considered by the jury in determining what assessment shall be made or levied against such part of such lot, piece, or parcel of land as may not be taken as hereinbefore provided. (Apr. 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 152, ch. 2070, § 491f.)

§ 7–208 [25: 58]. Assessment of benefits and damages—Excess damages and costs paid by District.

Of the amount found to be due and awarded as damages for and in respect of the land to be condemned for said opening, extension, widening, or straightening, plus the costs and expenses of the proceeding, such amount shall be assessed by the jury as benefits, and to the extent of such benefits against the lots, pieces, or parcels of land on each side of the street, avenue, road, or highway to be opened, extended, widened, or straightened, and against any and all other lots, pieces, or parcels of land which the jury may find will be benefited by the opening, extension, widening, or straightening, as the jury may find said lots, pieces, or parcels of land will be benefited; and in determining the amounts to be assessed against said lots, pieces, or parcels of land the jury shall take into consideration the respective situations and topographical conditions of said lots, pieces, or parcels of land and the benefits and advantages they may severally receive from the opening, extension, widening, or straightening of the street, avenue, road, or highway. If the total amount of the damages awarded by the jury and the costs and expenses of the proceeding be in excess of the total amount of the assessment of benefits, such excess shall be borne and paid by the District of Columbia. (Apr. 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 152, ch. 2070, § 491g; Feb. 25, 1907, 34 Stat. 930, ch. 1195; Apr. 11, 1935, 49 Stat. 153, ch. 57, § 6.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of 1907, cited to the text, added the following sentence which was repealed by the 1935 amendment: "And where part of any lot, piece, parcel, or tract of land has been dedicated for the opening, extension, widening, or straightening of the street, avenue, road, or highway, the jury, in determining whether the remainder of said lot, piece, parcel or tract is to be assessed for benefits, and the amount of benefits, if any, to be assessed thereon, shall also take into consideration the fact of such dedication and the value of land so dedicated."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ISSUES FOR JURY

Where notice is given by publication, parties to be assessed for the betterment could not be mentioned by name in the notice since by statute the jury decides what land is benefited as well as the sum with which it shall be charged. Newman v. Lynchburg (236 U. S. 692, 59 L. Ed. 792, 35 Sup. Ct. 477).

PART OF LAND DEDICATED

The value of the land dedicated, as well as the value of the land condemned, should be considered as of the date of condemnation. Briggs v. Brownlow (49 App. D. C. 345, 265 Fed. 985).

Congress has delegated to the jury authority to determine not only whether and to what extent any particular piece of property is benefited, but the area within which benefits are to be assessed. Wilkinson v. Dougherty (58 App. D. C. 81, 24 Fed. (2d) 1007).

§ 7–209 [25: 59]. Objections—Exceptions—When filed—Court may vacate verdict and grant new trial—Vacated in part.

The said court shall hear and determine any objections or exceptions that may be filed to any verdict of the jury and shall have power to vacate and set any verdict aside, in whole or in part, when satisfied that it is unjust or unreasonable, in which event the court shall order the jury commission to draw from the special box the names of as many persons as the court may direct, and from among the persons so drawn the court shall thereupon appoint a new jury of five capable and disinterested persons, who shall proceed to ascertain the damages or assess the benefits, or both, as the case may be, in respect of the land as to which the verdict may be vacated, as in the case of the first jury: Provided, That if vacated in part, the residue of the verdict as to the land condemned or assessed shall not be affected thereby: And provided further, That the objections or exceptions to the verdict shall be filed within twenty days after the return of the verdict to the court. (Apr. 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 153, ch. 2070, § 491h; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 566, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENTS

Prior to amendment this section provided for the summoning of a "new jury of five experienced, judicious, disinterested men, who shall be freeholders in the District of Columbia, not related to any person interested in the proceeding and not in the service or employment of the District of Columbia or of the United States."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ISSUES FOR COURT

There was no abuse of discretion by the lower court either in not granting the motion for a new trial, under the rules governing trials of civil cases in general, when the issue presented was an alleged error of fact, or in refusing to grant a new trial, under the additional powers given by the special provisions of the condemnation statute, since there was no "grave error of fact indicating plain partiality or corruption." Willis v. United States (69 App. D. C. 129, 99 Fed. (2d) 362).

In the absence of a showing that property owner was prejudiced or defrauded, the concern of the owner is whether he was benefited by the assessment. Johnson & Wimsatt v. Hazen (69 App. D. C. 151, 99 Fed. (2d) 384).

In proceeding by District of Columbia to condemn land for street purposes, trial court had no jurisdiction to determine what lands, if any, were exempt from assessment for benefits. Brown v. District of Columbia, 1944 (143 F. 2d 374, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 148).

Where landowners contended that while proceeding to condemn land for street purposes instituted by District of Columbia was pending, Federal Government filed declaration of taking against their property and took title thereto whereupon compensation was paid to them by the Federal Government and that thereafter land was no longer subject to assessment for benefits by District of Columbia, issue thus tendered was not appropriate for decision in the condemnation proceeding. Brown v. District of Columbia, 1944 (143 F. 2d 374, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 148).

NATURE OF OBJECTIONS

"Had actual notice been given appellant after the return of the verdict, he could have protected his interests through the filing of objections or exceptions." Wilkinson v. Dougherty (58 App. D. C. 81, 24 Fed. (2d) 1007).

Objections and exceptions are in the nature of a motion for a new trial, and are not to be tried by the condemnation jury, but are to be heard by the court, and only in case they are sustained by the court shall another jury be impaneled to retry the issue. Mitchell v. Reichelderfer (61 App. D. C. 50, 57 Fed. (2d) 416).

Mere filing of objections and exceptions to the verdict of a condemnation jury does not entitle a property owner to reopen and retry the case to the same or another jury. Mitchell v. Reichelderfer (61 App. D. C. 50, 57 Fed. (2d) 416).

TIME FOR OBJECTION

Objections to verdict in condemnation proceedings must be filed within time limited. Shannon & Luchs Constr. Co. v. Reichelderfer (61 App. D. C. 36, 57 Fed. (2d) 402).

It was intended by Congress to require a party in a condemnation proceeding to bring his objections and exceptions to the attention of the court within 20 days, the time limit prescribed, or else be taken to have waived them. Walker v. Hazen (67 App. D. C. 188, 90 Fed. (2d) 502).

§ 7–210 [25: 60]. Confirmation of verdict—Payment of award.

When the court shall have finally ratified and confirmed the verdict of a jury condemning the land needed for the opening, extension, widening, or straightening of the street, avenue, road, or highway, the amounts of money found to be due and awarded to the owners of the land condemned shall be paid to such owners by the disbursing officer of the District of Columbia from moneys advanced to him by the Secretary of the Treasury, upon requisitions of the commissioners of said District, as provided by law. (Apr. 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 153, ch. 2070, § 491i.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

TIME OF PAYMENT

In the exercise by the United States of the power of eminent domain, compensation need not be paid, or even finally determined, in advance of the taking, provided reasonable, certain, and adequate provision is made at the time of the taking to ascertain and secure the compensation to be made to the owner. Miller v. United States (61 App. D. C. 58, 57 Fed. (2d) 424).

§ 7–211 [25: 61]. Assessments made liens—How paid—Set-off of damages and benefits.

When finally ratified and confirmed by the court, the several assessments authorized to be made or levied by the jury shall severally be a lien upon the land assessed, and shall be collected as special-improvement taxes in the District of Columbia, and shall be payable in five equal annual installments, with interest at the rate of four per centum per annum from and after sixty days after the confirmation of the verdict of the jury. In all cases of payments the accounting officers shall take into account the assessments for benefits and the award of damages, and shall pay only such part of the award in respect of any lot, piece, or parcel of land condemned as may be in excess of the assessment for benefits against the part of such lot, piece, or parcel of land not taken, and there shall be credited on said assessment the amount of said award not in excess of said assessment. NOTES TO DECISIONS

ABANDONMENT OF PROJECT

Assessments paid for benefits to property from proposed street extension must be returned where the proposed extension is abandoned. District of Columbia v. Thompson (281 U. S. 25, 74 L. Ed. 677, 50 Sup. Ct. 172, aff'g 58 App. D. C. 313, 30 Fed. (2d) 476).

In landowner's action to recover benefit assessment payments made as result of a condemnation proceeding on ground of failure of consideration because project had been abandoned, where court found that improvements were promptly undertaken, that work on project continued after institution of action and that at time of trial all work had been completed, record justified denial of recovery on ground that there had been no "abandonment" or intention to abandon. Boss v. District of Columbia, 1943 (134 F. 2d 14, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 142, 145 A. L. R. 1126).

On abandonment of a street improvement project for which assessments had been levied and paid, there is a failure of "consideration" and the moneys received as assessments must be returned to those entitled thereto. Boss v. District of Columbia, 1943 (134 F. 2d 14, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 142, 145 A. L. R. 1126).

§ 7–212 [25: 62]. Power to amend proceedings.

Said court shall have full power and authority, at any time, to allow amendments in form or substance in any petition, process, verdict, record, or other proceeding, or in the description of property proposed to be condemned or of property assessed for benefits whenever such amendment will not interfere with the substantial rights of the parties interested. (Apr. 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 153, ch. 2070, § 491k.)

§ 7–213 [25: 63]. Compensation of jurors.

Each juror shall receive as compensation for his services the sum of five dollars per day for every day necessarily employed in the performance of the duties herein prescribed. (Apr. 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 153, ch. 2070, § 491*l*.)

§ 7–214 [25: 64]. Right to appeal—Parties not appealing.

Any party aggrieved by any final order of the court may appeal therefrom to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia; but no appeal from any order of the court confirming any award of damages or assessment for benefits, nor any other proceeding that may be taken by any person, at law or in equity, against the confirmation of any award of damages or any assessment for benefits shall delay or prevent the payment of the damages awarded to other persons in respect of the property condemned, or delay or prevent the taking of the property sought to be condemned, or delay or prevent the opening, extension, widening, or straightening of the street, avenue, road, or highway. VESTED TITLE

Once title vests, it stays vested until it passes by grant, by descent, by adverse possession, or by some operation of law such as escheat or forfeiture; but title does not pass by inaction on the part of the owner. Faulks v. Schrider (69 App. D. C. 137, 99 Fed. (2d) 370).

§ 7–215 [25: 65]. Deposit of award in registry—Transfer of title.

In case any of the owners of land condemned are under disability or can not be found, or neglect or refuse to receive the money awarded to them; or in case the title to the property is in dispute or uncertain, the money due the owners of the property for damages for land taken may be deposited in the registry of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, for the use of the rightful owners without cost or expense to said District; and thereupon the title to the land condemned shall become vested in the District of Columbia. (Apr. 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 154, ch. 2070, § 491n; Dec. 18, 1908, 35 Stat. 582, ch. 4.)

AMENDMENT

Section 491n of the act of 1906, read as follows: "In case any of the owners of the land condemned are under disability or can not be found or neglect to receive the money awarded to them, or in case the title to the property condemned is in controversy, the money awarded to any of such persons, or for any such property the title to which is in controversy, shall be deposited in the registry of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, without cost or expense to said District, to the credit of the person or persons who may be entitled thereto."

(June 26, 1912, 37 Stat. 178, ch. 182.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abandonment of Proceedings

Court cannot assume that Commissioners have abandoned condemnation proceedings but on the contrary must assume that they are acting for the best interest of the public. Johnson & Wimsatt v. Reichelderfer (62 App. D. C. 237, 66 Fed. (2d) 217).

There is hereby authorized to be appropriated out of the revenues of the District of Columbia such sums as may be necessary from time to time to pay the costs and expenses of the condemnation proceedings instituted under the authority of this act and for the payment of the amounts awarded as damages, the amounts collected as benefits to be covered into the treasury of the United States to the credit of the revenues of the District of Columbia: Provided, however, That if the total amount of damages awarded by the jury in any such proceeding, plus the costs and expenses of said proceedings, be in excess of the total amount of assessments for benefits, such excess shall be paid out of the appropriation herein authorized. (May 28, 1926, 44 Stat. 676, ch. 418, § 2.)

§ 7–221 [25: 71]. Benefits assessed against land no part of which was taken—Notice of assessment, how given.

Where in any condemnation proceedings instituted by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in accordance with the provisions of sections 7–202 to 7–215 or in accordance with the provisions of sections 7–301 to 7–327, the jury of condemnation shall assess benefits against any land or parcel of land no part of which was taken by the condemnation proceedings, and the owner of the land or parcel of land so assessed for benefits was not served with notice of the condemnation proceedings, notice of such assessment for benefits shall be given by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia by registered letter, mailed to the last known address of the person listed on the records of the assessor of the District of Columbia as the owner of the land or parcel of land so assessed, and, in addition thereto, the court shall give public notice of the land or parcels of land assessed for benefits, no part of which was taken by the condemnation proceedings, by advertisement once in each of three daily newspapers published in the District of Columbia showing the amount assessed against each such piece or parcel of land and stating the time within which interested parties may file with the court any objections or exceptions they may have to the verdict. The mailing by registered letter and the notice by publication herein provided for shall be sufficient notice to the owner of any land or parcel of land assessed for benefits as aforesaid. Nothing herein contained shall be considered to abrogate or nullify the option conferred upon the commissioners of the District of Columbia by sections 7–219, 7–220. (May 29, 1928, 45 Stat. 953, ch. 863.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Injunction

Suit to enjoin collection of street improvement assessment brought within a year after receiving tax bill is not laches. Smith v. Gotwals (61 App. D. C. 304, 62 Fed. (2d) 466).

Issues for Jury

In condemnation proceeding, the amount of benefits to be assessed against land which was not taken, was for the jury, and there is nothing in the record to show that the jury acted unreasonably or unjustly. Johnson & Wimsatt v. Hazen (69 App. D. C. 151, 99 Fed. (2d) 384).

Notice

This provision of the statute for notice by publication and registered letter does not apply to appellant, although benefits were assessed against his property, no part of which was condemned, since he had actual notice of the proceedings and was represented by counsel who appeared therein. Cafritz v. Hazen (66 App. D. C. 94, 85 Fed. (2d) 260).

After the publication of the general notice of the condemnation proceedings, the assessments of benefits against lands not taken may be made by the condemnation jury. Johnson & Wimsatt v. Hazen (69 App. D. C. 151, 99 Fed. (2d) 384).

Notice by publication together with a registered letter containing such notice is sufficient under this statute. Johnson & Wimsatt v. Hazen (69 App. D. C. 151, 99 Fed. (2d) 384).

Time for Objections

In condemnation proceedings owners receiving notice must file objections within 20 days after verdict. Shannon & Luchs Constr. Co. v. Reichelderfer (61 App. D. C. 36, 57 Fed. (2d) 402).

It is the duty of the Commissioners to give notice to person listed on the assessors' books at his last-known address. Smith v. Gotwals (61 App. D. C. 304, 62 Fed. (2d) 466).

Without strict compliance with the statute in regard to giving notice by registered mail, an order of assessment is a mere nullity. Smith v. Gotwals (61 App. D. C. 304, 62 Fed. (2d) 466).

The requirement of the statute as to notice being mandatory, a failure to comply is jurisdictional. Smith v. Gotwals (61 App. D. C. 304, 62 Fed. (2d) 466).

Under this section authorizing Commissioners of District of Columbia to open, widen, and straighten alley on petition of owners, when Commissioners deem that public interests require such opening, etc., or when public health officer of District certifies to necessity for same on grounds of public health, each of the three conditions specified need not exist to justify action of Commissioners. Bailey v. Young (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 15, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 65).

If the alley to be closed is an original alley, they may sell the land contained therein for cash at a price not less than the assessed value of contiguous lots. NOTES TO DECISIONS

REDEDICATION OF ALLEYS

"To make such a dedication requires not alone that the street or alley be given, but that it be accepted. The reason for this is self-evident. The acceptance of a public street or alley imposes burdens on the District. 'The law is well settled that, to constitute a public street or highway by dedication, there must not only be an absolute dedication—by a setting apart and a surrender to the public use of the land by the proprietors—but there must be an acceptance and a formal opening thereof by the proper authorities, or a user which is equivalent to such acceptance and opening.'" Watson v. Carver (27 App. D. C. 555).

"There was no valid statutory dedication, for an essential provision of the statute was not complied with, and without this there could be no valid statutory dedication." Watson v. Carver (27 App. D. C. 555).

§ 7–308 [25: 79]. Obliterating subdivisions and alleys—Filing copy of order.

Whenever the title in fee simple to an entire square is vested in one person or in tenants in common, or partners, and such owner or owners desire to improve said square by the erection of a building thereon, covering not less than two-thirds of the area thereof, or for the purpose of some business enterprise, the Commissioners of the District may, on the petition of such owner or owners, setting forth such ownership, the purpose for which it is desired to use such square, and the manner and the time in which it is proposed to improve the same, on being satisfied of the truth of the facts stated in the petition, and also that the proposed change and use will not be detrimental to the public interests, make an order canceling any previous subdivision of said square and obliterating all alleys therein. They shall cause a certified copy of such order to be filed for record with the recorder of deeds, and also the surveyor of the District, each of whom shall record the same. The expense of the recording provided for by this section and section 7–307 shall be advanced by the petitioner to the commissioners under such regulations as they may prescribe. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1429, ch. 854, § 1607; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 545, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1902 amended § 1607 of the act of 1901 by striking out in the last sentence the words "attached to a plat of said square and delivered to the petitioners, who shall file the same" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "filed"; also by adding at the end of said section the words "the expense of the recording provided for by this and the preceding section shall be advanced by the petitioner to the commissioners under such regulations as they may prescribe."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ASSESSMENTS

The front-foot rule can not be applied to the assessment of a lot for paving an alley, which had a boundary of 233.17 feet facing two alleys, which could not be used commercially, and when the lot is assessed 222 per cent. higher than average assessment of other lots bordering the alleys, the assessment must be revised. Willner v. Hazen (71 App. D. C. 373, 111 Fed. (2d) 511).

One seeking to cancel an alley paving assessment on a lot, facing two alleys, which, under zoning regulations was limited to one-family detached house, and which was assessed 222 per cent. higher than other lots, was entitled to trial on the merits, and dismissal of complaint was improperly granted. Willner v. Hazen (71 App. D. C. 373, 111 Fed. (2d) 511).

§ 7–309 [25: 79a]. Closing alleys—Authorized upon acquisition of abutting property by District of Columbia—Property owner's right of access preserved.

POWERS OF COURT

It will be observed that this statute does not require personal service. This is a matter left to the discretion of the court. National Sav. & T. Co. v. Reichelderfer (61 App. D. C. 38, 57 Fed. (2d) 404).

Where court directed newspaper publication, and personal service on owners found in the District, failure to obtain personal service does not require quashing verdict for damages. National Sav. & T. Co. v. Reichelderfer (61 App. D. C. 38, 57 Fed. (2d) 404).

§ 7–315 [25: 82]. Procedure — Jury — Qualifications — Oath—Objections—Hearing—Verdict—Damages—Benefits.

After the return of the marshal and the filing of proof of publication of the notice provided for in section 7–314, said court shall cause a jury of five judicious, disinterested persons, not related to any person interested in the proceedings and not in the service or employment of the District of Columbia or of the United States, to be summoned by the said marshal, to which jurors said court shall administer an oath or affirmation that they are not interested in any manner in the land to be condemned nor in any way related to the parties interested therein, and that they will, without favor or partiality, to the best of their judgment, assess the damages each owner of land taken may sustain by reason of the opening, extension, widening, or straightening of said alley or minor street and the condemnation of lands for the purposes thereof, and assess the benefits resulting therefrom as hereinafter provided. The court, before accepting the jury, shall hear any objections that may be made to any member thereof, and shall have full power to decide upon all such objections, and to excuse any juror or cause any vacancy in the jury, when impaneled, to be filled; and after said jury shall have been organized and shall have viewed the premises, said jury shall proceed to hear and receive such evidence as may be offered or submitted on behalf of the District of Columbia and by any person or persons having any interest in the proceedings for the opening; extension, widening, or straightening of said alley or minor street; but all such hearings shall be in the presence of the court and under its supervision and direction. When the hearing is concluded the jury, or a majority of them, shall return to said court, in writing, its verdict of the amount found to be due and payable as damages sustained by reason of the said opening, extension, widening, or straightening under the provisions of sections 7–301 to 7–308, 7–313 to 7–318, 7–320 to 7–323, 7–325 to 7–330, and of the pieces or parcels of land benefited by such opening, extension, widening, or straightening, and the amount of the assessment for such benefits against the same. § 7–316 [25: 83]. Manner of assessing benefits where part only of parcel condemned.

If a part only of any piece or parcel of ground shall be condemned, the jury, in determining its value, shall not take into consideration any benefits that may accrue to the remainder thereof from such opening, extension, widening, or straightening, but such benefits shall be considered in determining what assessment shall be made on or against such part of such piece or parcel of land as may not be taken as herein provided. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Street Readjustment Act is a condemnation act in reverse, designed, as is the condemnation act, to dispose of all claims in a single suit. Woodbury v. District of Columbia (67 App. D. C. 278, 92 Fed. (2d) 202).

§ 7–402 [25: 99b]. Notice of intention to close public way—Hearing.

Whenever a street, road, highway, or alley, or a part of a street, road, highway, or alley, is proposed to be closed under the provisions of this chapter the commissioners of the District of Columbia shall cause public notice of intention to be given by advertisement for not less than fourteen consecutive days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, in a daily newspaper of general circulation printed and published in the District of Columbia, to the effect that a public hearing will be held at a time and place stated in the notice for the hearing of objections, if any, to such closing. The said commissioners shall, not later than fourteen days in advance of such hearing, serve notice of such hearing, in writing, by registered mail, on each owner of property abutting the street, road, highway, or alley, or part thereof, proposed to be closed, or if the owner can not be located the advertisement provided for above shall be deemed sufficient legal notice. At such hearing a map showing the proposed closing shall be exhibited, and the property owners or their representatives, and any other persons interested, shall be given an opportunity to be heard. (Dec. 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 748, ch. 4, § 2.)

§ 7–403 [25: 99c]. Plats to be prepared showing public way intended to be closed—Approval conditional upon dedication of other property.

After such public hearing the said commissioners, if they are satisfied that the proposed closing will be in the public interest, and that such closing will not be detrimental to the rights of the owners of the property abutting on the street, road, highway, or alley, or part of a street, road, highway, or alley, proposed to be closed, nor cause unreasonable inconvenience to or adverse effect upon the owner or owners of any property abutting on streets connected therewith, nor unreasonably infringe the rights of the public to use such street, road, highway, or alley, shall cause to be prepared a plat or plats showing the street, road, highway, or alley, or part thereof, proposed to be closed and the area to be apportioned to each owner of property abutting thereon: Provided, That if the approval of the proposed closing by the said commissioners shall be conditioned upon the dedication of any other areas for street, highway, or alley purposes, and/or the retention by the District of Columbia of specified rights of way for any public purpose, and/or any other reservations deemed expedient or advisable by said commissioners, such plat or plats shall also show the parcels of land so dedicated, and/or the reserved rights of way, and/or such additional area affected by said closing, with alternative openings occasioned thereby, and/or by certificate thereon any such reservations deemed expedient or advisable by the said commissioners of the District of Columbia. (Dec. 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 748, ch. 4, § 3.)

If, after such hearing, the commissioners are of the opinion that any street, road, highway, or alley, or part thereof, should be closed, they shall prepare an order closing the same and shall cause public notice of such order to be given by advertisement for fourteen consecutive days, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, in at least two daily newspapers of general circulation printed and published in the District of Columbia, and shall serve a copy of such order on each property-owner abutting the street, road, highway, or alley, or part thereof, proposed to be closed by such order, and copy of such order shall be served on the owners in person or by registered mail delivered at the last known residence of such owners, or if the owner can not be located the advertisement provided for above shall be deemed sufficient legal notice; or if he be a nonresident of the District of Columbia, by sending a copy thereof by registered mail to his last known place of address: Provided, That if no objection in writing be made to the commissioners by any party interested within thirty days after the service of such order, then the said order shall immediately become effective; and the said order and plat or plats as provided for herein shall be ordered by the commissioners of the District of Columbia recorded in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia. (Dec. 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 749, ch. 4, § 4.)

§ 7–405 [25: 99e]. Objections to closing public ways—Proceedings.

When any such objection shall be filed with the commissioners as provided in section 7–404, then the commissioners of the District of Columbia shall institute a proceeding in rem in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia for the closing of such street, road, highway, or alley, or part thereof, and its abandonment for street, highway, or alley purposes, and for the ascertainment of damages and the assessment of benefits resulting from such closing and abandonment. NOTES TO DECISIONS

In General

Action in personam to recover assessment from an extension of streets alleging partial failure of consideration for closing one of streets was not barred on grounds, that jury awarded him no damages upon such proceedings, when there was no evidence that the matter was actually litigated and determined. Woodbury v. District of Columbia (67 App. D. COMPILER'S NOTES

This section provides for deposit in the Treasury in the manner provided by law. The act of February 22, 1921, 41 Stat. 1144, ch. 70, § 7, provided: "That on and after July 1, 1921, all fees, fines, and other miscellaneous items of revenue theretofore required by law to be paid into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia in equal parts shall be paid for each fiscal year into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia in the same proportions as appropriations for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for such fiscal year are paid from the Treasury of the United States and the revenues of the District of Columbia; and all collections on account of special assessments for public improvements for which assessments are levied according to the law shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia in the same proportions as the appropriations used in paying for such assessment work are charged, respectively, against the revenues of the District of Columbia and the Treasury of the United States."

As to the proportions in which revenue is credited to the United States and the District of Columbia, see also the acts of June 7, 1924, 43 Stat. 539, 550, ch. 302; Mar. 3, 1925, 43 Stat. 1216, ch. 477; May 10, 1926, 44 Stat. 417, ch. 276; Mar. 3, 1927, 44 Stat. 1297, ch. 271; May 21, 1928, 45 Stat. 645, ch. 659.

§ 7–503 [12: 53]. Cost of maintenance and repairs to Rock Creek bridges—Collection.

The entire cost of paving, repairs, or replacements incident to track repairs, replacements, or changes made at a time when the bridge is not being paved, and one-half the cost of other paving, repaving, or maintenance of paving between its track and for two feet outside the outer rails, and the excess cost of construction and maintenance of any bridge across Rock Creek due to the existence or installation by a street railway or railways of its or their tracks on such bridge shall be borne by the said railway company or companies, and shall be collected in the same manner as the cost of laying pavements between the rails and tracks of street railways as provided for in section 7–604. The amounts thus collected shall be deposited to the credit of the appropriation for the fiscal year in which they are collected. (Aug. 7, 1894, 28 Stat. 252, ch. 232; Jan. 14, 1933, 47 Stat. 759, ch. 10, § 3.)

AMENDMENT

As originally enacted the section commenced as follows: "One-half the cost of maintenance and repair of any bridge across Rock Creek occupied by the tracks of a street railway or railways shall bear * * *."

The language inserted in lieu thereof was taken from the act of Jan. 14, 1933, 47 Stat. 759, which was not directly amendatory of the act of Aug. 7, 1894, but applied generally to all bridges.

CROSS REFERENCE

§ 7–504 [12: 54]. Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge.

The East Washington Heights Traction Railroad Company shall bear the cost of maintenance, construction, and repair of the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge over the Anacostia River in like manner and under the same conditions as are provided by section 7–503. (July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. 636, ch. 1360; Jan. 14, 1933, 47 Stat. 759, ch. 10, § 3.)

AMENDMENT

The act of Jan. 14, 1933, 47 Stat. 759, ch. 10, § 3, was not directly amendatory of the act of July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. 636, but contained language which affected the last-mentioned act, therefore its wording has been changed to conform to the meaning of the act of Jan. 14, 1933.

§ 7–505 [12: 55]. Anacostia Bridge—Cost of paving—Repairs.

The Anacostia and Potomac River Railroad Company shall pay the entire cost of the pavement between the exterior rails of its tracks on said bridge (the Anacostia Bridge) and for a distance of two feet from the said exterior rails of said tracks on each side thereof and the cost of the entire floor system supporting said pavement, to be collected in the same manner as the cost of laying pavements between the rails and tracks of street railways as provided for in section 7–604 and paid for each fiscal year into the treasury of the United States to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia in the same proportions as appropriations for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for such fiscal year are paid from the treasury of the United States and the revenues of the District of Columbia: Provided further, That any other railroad company on or after April 27, 1904, authorized by Congress to use said bridge shall have the right to use the tracks of the Anacostia and Potomac River Railroad Company thereon upon such reciprocal trackage and such compensation as may be mutually agreed upon, and in case of failure to reach such an agreement that the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia shall, upon petition filed by either party, fix and determine the same. And after April 27, 1904, one-half of the cost of the maintenance and repairs of this bridge shall be borne by the said railway company or companies, and shall be collected in the same manner as the cost of laying pavements between the rails and tracks of street railways, and paid into the treasury, as provided for above. The entire cost of maintenance of such underfloor construction as may be necessary in order that the cars of said company may be propelled over said bridge by underfloor electrical conductors or cables shall, after March 3, 1905, be borne by said railroad company, and no cars shall be propelled across said bridge unless all electrical conductors or cables furnishing power for the propulsion of the same shall be placed under floor of said bridge. (Apr. 27, 1904, 33 Stat. 372, ch. 1628; Mar. 3, 1905, 33 Stat. 893, ch. 1406; Feb. 22, 1921, 41 Stat. 1144, ch. 70, § 7.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

While the law has been changed as to what must be done by street railways and as to what they must pay toward the cost, maintenance, and paving of bridges, the change seems limited to street railways (see § 7–604) and therefore inapplicable to steam roads and that their liability would remain as here set out.

AMENDMENTS

This section is a composite of the credits cited in the history line. The 1904 act originally provided that the cost when collected should be paid into the Treasury one-half to the credit of the United States and one-half to the credit of the District of Columbia.

For the change made by the act of 1921, and proportions in which revenue has been credited between the United States and the District of Columbia, see Compiler's Note to § 7–502.
